STATE POPULATION IS TO BE GIVEN OUT FOR MEETING AT BRAINERD

Delegates Will Have Chance to Act on Reapportionment.

Wisconsin Organizations Will Be Represented at Convention.

Anti-Liquor Forces Promise Fight If Subject Is Mentioned.

Bemidji, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—"The census of Minnesota by counties will be wired to you Wednesday, Nov. 30."

This message from Census Director Durand at Washington was received by W. R. Mackenzie, secretary of the Northern Minnesota Development association, just before he left this morning for Brainerd to complete arrangements for the two days' convention which opens in that city Thursday morning. This assurance from the census bureau means that the Brainerd convention, which is to be attended by 500 representatives from thirty-two northern counties, will be able to pass upon reapportionment, the most important problem to be solved by the convention.

Mr. Mackenzie has just received renewed assurances that Governor Eberhardt and nearly all of the state offi-

SAYS TSCHERTKOFF WAS A TRAITOR

Tolstoi's Son Writes Bitter Accusation of Father's Friend.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 29.—Count Leo Tolstoi publishes a bitter denunciation of Count Tschertkoff, the intimate friend and literary agent of the late Count Tolstoi. The son declares that Tschertkoff was the worst enemy that his father had in all educated Russia and the civilized world, and that he was directly guilty for the tragedy of Yasnaya Poliana.

"The malign influence of Tschertkoff," writes Count Leo, "caused the premature death of my father, his superhuman sufferings and the separation from his family."

But for his literary agent, the son adds, his father would have lived to many years peacefully at Yasnaya Poliana with the family who loved him and whom he loved so devotedly. The arrival of Tschertkoff was the beginning of the end.

DR. BUCK HELD AS UXORICIDE

Kansas Physician Accused of Giving Young Wife Cyanide.

Greensburg, Kan., Nov. 29.—Dr. J. H. Buck of this city at his preliminary hearing here was held for the murder of his wife, who died a month ago. His bond was fixed at $20,000.

Physicians who examined the viscera of the dead woman testified that the symptoms of her death indicated cyanide.

Mrs. Buck was 24 years old and married the physician a year ago.

MAN MURDERED IN THE STREET

New York, Nov. 29.—One of a group of four well-dressed men, apparently all Americans, was shot dead as he was walking along a Harlem street early today. According to the only known witness of the shooting, an occupant of a nearby apartment house on Manhattan street from which the group had just emerged, the man was shot by one of his companions.

Vincent Riondo, who saw the tragic happening, says that one member of the party dropped to the rear of the others as they were walking along the street. There was a flash, a shot and one of the men in the group fell to the sidewalk. The others leaned over the fallen man an instant and then ran off. A policeman and an ambulance surgeon who were summoned found the man dead.

GIVES UP HIS FIGHT TO KEEP OUT OF CELL

M. DWIGHT FORTNER.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 29.—M. Dwight Fortner of St. Louis, under two years' sentence to the penitentiary for forging a name to a $12,000 check, appeared in the supreme court with his lawyer today, dismissed his appeal and was taken by Marshal Finks to the penitentiary to begin his sentence. Fortner was arrested in Paris after a chase through Central America.

TRANSPLANT THE SALMON

Chinook Fish Are Growing in New Hampshire Lake.

Washington, Nov. 29.—After nearly forty years of endeavor to establish the Chinook salmon of the Pacific coast in waters of the United States, where it is not indigenous, conclusive evidence of success in one instance has come to hand, according to United States Fish Commissioner George M. Bowers in his annual report to the secretary of commerce and labor.

"Within the last year it has been ascertained," says Mr. Bowers, "that the species has become established in Lake Sunapee, N. H., where numerous specimens of from three to five pounds have been taken. This is undoubtedly the result of a plant made in 1904 by the

NEBRASKA GROWS ELEVEN PER CENT

Maryland Also Has Bigger Population Than in 1900.

Washington, Nov. 29.—The population of the state of Nebraska is 1,192,214, according to statistics of the thirteenth census made public today. This is an increase of 125,914, or 11.8 per cent, over 1,066,300 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 7,390 or 7 per cent.

The populations of the counties containing the principal cities are: Douglas county, 168,546 compared with 140,590 in 1900; Lancaster county, 73,793 compared with 64,865 in 1900.

Maryland Growth Less.

The population of the state of Maryland is 1,294,450, according to statistics made public today. This is an increase of 106,406, or 9 per cent, over 1,188,044 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 154,654, or 14 per cent.

FORMAN ANGRY ABOUT PARDON

Forman, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The indignation over the reported pardon of Sherman Wells, who killed Frank A. Carr in this town, resulted in a mass meeting to protest against the pardon and the appointment of a committee to appear before the state board of pardons this week at Bismarck. The murder was regarded as especially cold-blooded. Wells killed Carr for a small sum of money and concealed his body in a pile of filth near a livery barn, where it lay till spring. Wells escaped with a fifteen-year sentence and has served only half of it.

MEXICO NEAR PEACE AGAIN

Francisco Madero Sends Word That He Is Uninjured.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Conditions in Mexico are rapidly approaching a normal status and the revolutionary disturbances are believed to be practically confined to the state of Chihuahua.

Such is the tone of a telegram received by the state department today from Henry Lane Wilson, United States ambassador to City of Mexico.

In the battle between the government and revolutionary forces, which was waged near Chihuahua on Sunday, Mr. Wilson reports that the defeat of the rebels was accompanied with considerable loss to them. The strength of the government troops in

BOMB JARS WHOLE NEW YORK BLOCK

Explosion Is Laid to Men Involved in Petrosino's Murder.

New York, Nov. 29.—The kidnaping case originating five years ago in which the late Lieut. Petrosino, who was murdered in Italy, played the part of investigator, is believed to have led indirectly to a bomb explosion early today which shook up one of the most thickly populated blocks in New York, did extensive damage and created a panic in the neighborhood.

The bomb exploded in the doorway of the Bella Trinacria saloon, in the heart of the Sicilian settlement in Elizabeth street. It completely wrecked the saloon, the front of which was blown inward; badly damaged adjacent stores, hurled sleepers in the tenements above from their beds, and cracked windows for blocks around. The police reserves had their hands full quieting the panic-stricken foreigners, who flocked to the streets by hundreds.

Lynx Act to Kidnapers.

Francesco Le Barbera is the owner of the saloon. He had left the place about half an hour before the explosion. Today he gave the police his theory of the animus behind the bomb.

About five years ago, he said, his son, Peitro Yyso, was kidnaped and he has never heard from him. The police were notified and Lieut. Petrosino worked on the case. Le Barbera received many letters threatening his life if a large sum of money was not paid for the return of the boy, but paid no attention to them, and it is believed by him that the kidnapers are now starting in on their revenge.

Special Agent Johnson's Deputies Looking Into Saloon Matters.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Officers Way and Qiunn, deputies under Special Agent Johnson, have closed the only saloon at Gorgetown, Minn., seventeen miles from Moorehead where they are today. It is not expected any action will be taken there as representatives from that city have the promise of Secretary Ballinger that nothing would be done as long as the saloonmen obeyed the order not to sell or ship liquor to Indians. Moorhead saloon men, are, however, on the anxious seat and awaiting developments.

Duluth's population on April 15, 1910, was 78,466, according to the official figures of the United States thirteenth decennial census. The announcement of the census bureau, made today at Washington, is given in a special dispatch to The Herald. The new figures show an increase of 48.1 per cent over the population in the federal census of 1900, when Duluth had a population of 52,969, and a gain of 20.8 per cent on the basis of the state census of 1905, which gave Duluth 64,942 population.

Every decade, since Duluth first broke into the federal census figures in 1870, the city has shown an increase in population. Between 1870 and 1880, the gain was nominal, but in the following ten years, the growth was phenomenal, the census of 1890 showing an increase of 850.8 per cent in the ten years. Since 1890, the gain has been substantial in every decade and whereas Duluth people were hoping that the census this year would show a population of 75,000 or more, the fact that the announcement today shows that the city has passed the 78,000 mark will be a source of great gratification.

Duluth stood seventy-second in the list of cities of the United States in point of population ten years ago. In 1880, the city stood one-hundred and and fifty-second in the list. It is expected that the complete returns of this year's census will place the city well to the front among some cities which have heretofore been in a higher classification.

FORTY YEARS OF GROWTH.

The increase in population in Duluth in the last forty years has been almost continuous. After the Jay Cooke failure in 1873, the city was almost entirely wiped out, but before the next federal census was taken, the people had returned and the city showed an increase in population for the ten years.

In 1895, the state census gave Duluth a population of 59,396, whereas the federal census of 1900 showed but 52,969. The accuracy of the state census of 1895 has been consistently doubted until it has almost been discredited and the general opinion is that whereas the census figures, state and federal together, show a decrease in the population of the city for the five years, the population was actually on the increase.

The census announced today was taken at an inopportune time, for during the next two or three years thousands of people will come into Duluth on account of the building of the steel plant and the establishing of other industries. The figures will stand for ten years, the state census being almost entirely local in its application, but the gain is enough to attract attention to Duluth as a city that is progressing.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 29.—With five jurors already accepted, the second day of the rial of Joseph Wendling for the murder of Alma Kellner opened this morning with prospects favoring the completion of the jury by nightfall. Houston, Texas, Nov. 29.—Posing as "the man without a dime," Irwin A. Brown, wealthy clubman and sociological worker of Denver, Colo., ran afoul a member of the Houston police department last night and spent two hours behind the bars. He was arrested at an establishment, which furnishes cheap lodging, where he had gone in pursuit of his investigations, attired as a tramp. His only offense, Brown declares, was to ask for a bed, explaining that he was penniless.

Brown was released when identified.

NAN PATTERSON JUROR ON TRIAL FOR BRIBERY.

New York, Nov. 29.—One of the jurors in the second of the famous murder trials of Nan Patterson is on trial himself, charged with accepting a bribe to hang a jury. He is George W. Yeandle, an architect, and was discharged from the jury drawn to try Edward T. Rosenheimer, whose automobile killed Miss Grace Hough, and against whom the state tried to establish murder in the first degree.

With Yeandle was indicted Dagebert Tiemenderfer, accused of being the go-between. Tiemenderfer testified that, acting under instructions from Yeandle, he had informed James W. Osborne, counsel for Rosenheimer, that for $3,000 he could deliver the vote of a juror in favor of Rosenheimer.

Mr. Osborne told the district attorney that he had been approached, and a trap was set. Money, it is alleged, was passed, and Yeandle and Tiemenderfer were arrested and indicted.

SICKNESS AMONG POOR

County Institution Is Rapidly Filling Up—Many Suffer Injuries.

According to Poor Commissioner Charles Shogran there is more sickness among the poor people of the city at the present time, than there was during the early spring and summer months combined.

A great many of the unfortunates are being sent to the poor farm for treatment and that institution contains 150 people. There is room for but 200 at the most, and, as they are coming in very rapidly, the poor commissioner is commencing to worry as to what will finally be done with them if the number gets up above the 200 mark.

Quite a number of people are suffering from typhoid fever and not having the means or a proper place in which to be cared for, they are sent to the farm. An extraordinary number are being injured in a great many ways and they have to be cared for.

Mr. Shogran says that the poor of the city are in fair shape but they are in no condition to cope with illness and general hard luck. Nearly three-fourths of the people at the farm at this time are there only because they are ill.

PANAMA BONDS FOR INVESTORS

Secretary MacVeagh Wants the Issues to Pay Bigger Interests.

Washington, Nov. 29.—It is the desire of Secretary MacVeagh that any future issues of Panama bonds shall not be used as a basis for national bank circulation, but that they shall bear a rate of interest which will make them attractive to investors.

There is authority for the statement that there is no prospect of any issue of these bonds in the near future, but Secretary MacVeagh and Assistant Secretary A. Piatt Andrew are strongly of the opinion that any issue in the future ought to be at a rate which would cause the bonds to be absorbed by investors for their earning power without regard to any special privilege.

Possible Change in Laws.

The treasury department is not in favor of any inflation of national bank currency by means of bond issues at this time in view of the possibility of a change in the banking laws. Mr. MacVeagh is pursuing an investigation of the selling price and the earning power of the leading issues of other countries and is in correspondence with bankers throughout the country, seeking to find the proper rate at which United States bonds could be issued and absorbed for investment purposes without regard to the national bank circulation privilege.

The Payne-Aldrich tariff act fixed the rate of interest of future issues of Panama bonds at a rate not exceeding 3 per cent.

SACK OF FLOUR BOUGHT ISLAND

That Is Tradition About Spot Famed as Cloquet's Saloon Center.

Cloquet, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—There is considerable discussion and speculation here as to the future of the saloons, in view of the recent ruling that makes a "dry" country of all or parts of thirteen counties. Many Cloquet people wonder why Cloquet is so far exempted from the new ruling, when a part of Carlton county is included in the country under a ban, and that Cloquet may at any time be doing away with her saloons by the enforcement of a similar treaty, that of 1854, is news to a good many citizens.

There are few places in the United States where the saloons are as uniquely and peculiarly situated as here. Provision against them is made in every warranty deed issued for property in the city of Cloquet, and still they have existed at the very doors of the heart of the city since it was a straggling sawmill village. By the situation on a small island in the center of the St. Louis river, not five minutes' walk from any part of the business district, they have been maintained for more than twenty-five years. Of recent years, and especially since the famous raid of gambling dens on the island, and the taking away of the slot machines in enforcing the state law against them, tales of the fabulous sums made on the island have dwindled, but stories are still told of the old days in Cloquet, the times when the main street was the trail from the sawmill to the mill boarding house and back again. Men had not yet begun to bring their wives and families here and social features centered on the "island." A saloon keeper then made his hundreds of dollars before breakfast on a Sunday morning after a Saturday pay night. There was no "lid" on Sunday, at holdnight, nor any other time, and Cloquet was certainly a "wide-open" town.

Island Three Blocks Long.

The island is about three blocks long, two blocks presenting a solid flank of saloons, the yards of the Duluth & Northeastern road, and the buildings of the St. Louis River Mercantile company occupying the balance of it. But the "island" as it is commonly referred to locally takes none of these into consideration—it means just one thing—the place where you buy booze in Cloquet. The wet region is two blocks deep and connected with the city proper on one side by a bridge, and in the same manner on the other side with the country district. The direct exit on this side being the Duluth road.

The location on which Cloquet was originally built was owned by the Nelson Lumber company, to whom the Northern Lumber company of the present day are the successors. When the Nelson Lumber company sold the lots a clause was inserted in the deeds forbidding the sale of liquor in Cloquet forever, and when the village became a city, the very fact that no liquor could be sold in the section which once belonged to the Nelson Lumber company, made it necessary to allow the clause to extend to all deeds in the new additions that were platted in order to protect the original part of the city. But the island belonged to a man named William Dunlap, and local tradition says that it was purchased from a squaw for a sack of flour. But as the island may not come under the old provision of the Nelson Lumber company, it is nevertheless included in the Indian treaty of 1854, which if ever enforced would do away with a saloon interest more uniquely situated than any other in the country.

LONG DENIES HE WAS OPPOSED TO DEWEY.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—Former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long takes exception to a statement made by John Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American republics that he (Long) was opposed to the appointment of Commodore George Dewey to command the fleet which captured Manila. The statement is contained in one of Mr. Barett's publications.

In a communication to the press, the former secretary said:

"There was in the fall of 1897 a vacancy in the command of the Asiatic squadron. The turn of Dewey and another commodore for sea service had come and the choice was between them. I selected Dewey, giving the other the European squadron, having satisfied myself by inquiry among naval experts and without consideration of any outside influences, that each was better fitted than the other for the post assigned. President McKinley never suggested Dewey's name to me, nor was it mentioned by him until I had made the selection and taken it to him for approval."

DRAW NEW CHARTER IN PLACE OF PATCHING OLD

That Seems to Be Sentiment of Citizens and Charter Commission.

List of Cities Which Are Under the Commission Plan Now.

The announcement in The Herald last evening that the sub-committee of the charter commission, appointed to hear any suggestions for proposed amendments to the charter, will recommend to the charter commission at its meeting tonight that that body investigate the commission plan of government, met with much approval today throughout the city.

The substance of the sub-committee's report is that in view of the many amendments to the charter and the numerous proposed amendments, as well as the apparent need of certain changes, it would be well to thoroughly investigate the commission form, to determine whether or not all alterations could not be more satisfactorily made in this manner, in one sweep.

It is understood that the committee also takes cognizance of the fact that there is a wide demand in Duluth for the elimination of the present charter and the adoption of the commission form. Many others are more conservative and state that, at least, the commission plan should be thoroughly investigated from every standpoint.

Limit on Funds.

One of the strongest objections made to the present charter is the financial handicap which it places upon the city. As it now stands, the fourth to the sixteenth funds inclusive are limited to $320,000. Those not included are the interest fund, the sinking fund, the fire department fund, the storm sewer and street intersection paving fund and the street maintenance fund. The last two were authorized at the general election early this year.

The authorities feel that the city is in need of many improvements which cannot be made because of this handicap. When the conference committee had its sessions the present fall, this matter became particularly apparent. The members of the committee felt that it is almost imperative that some action be taken to remedy this condition.

There has also been an agitation for the abolition of the board of public works, consolidating that department with the engineering department under one head. This has been twice voted down. Some people have declared that this would be a step towards the commission form of government, but those who have made a study of the subject declare that the comparison is poorly taken. They explain that under the commission plan all the heads of the departments, or the commissioners, in other words, confer with one another as to matters of policy and have the judgment of the others upon which to act. On the other hand, they point out that the man at the head of the department, were the amendments carried out under the present charter, would be alone and would be very liable to serious mistakes.

The Band Concerts.

Another feature, and one which does not amount to a great deal financially, is that under the present charter the park board cannot give free band concerts. The board is willing to give concerts and believes that they would be an excellent thing, but it is pointed out that under the hampers of the present charter this is impossible.

There has also been considerable complaint about some of the streets and street improvements in the city. It is claimed that it is impossible under the present charter to fix the responsibility for the work upon any one man or department, thus causing much trouble, and sometimes a considerable expense which is considered unnecessary.

Duluthians are still expressing their approval of the change.

Frank W. Hessenmueller, being by profession an architect and believing that structures of government as well as those of steel, stone and wood should have well thought out designs for their building, is a firm believer in the commission form. He bases his faith in that form of government largely on the obvious imperfections of the old system and the demonstrated advantages of the new.

"It is my belief that under the commission form of government we might arrive at a more equitable and fairer imposition of the burdens of taxation, among other beneficial results," said Mr. Hessenmueller. "I am heartily in favor of a change in the form of our municipal government along the lines of the commission system, or any other system that will serve to afford us the opportunity to correct conditions existing today.

"I was four years a resident of Chicago and know of conditions there under the old order of things that would not permit of the advancement of the interests of the city at large, and I am most decidedly in favor of a newer and better alignment of civic forces working for progress.

"It seems to me, too, that the commission government would permit of a closer co-operation between the government of the city and such bodies of citizens as our Commercial club. Much good could be done in this closer affiliation of forces."

HAS SPLENDID EXPOSITION

French & Bassett's Store Is Thronged With Delighted Visitors.

If one would make the hold that a showing of the season's finest furniture and handsome housefurnishing effects has on the people of Duluth and vicinity, a visit to the French & Bassett store this afternoon, must have been convincing.

The big housefurnishing establishment was thronged from basement to roof today in event of its annual exposition, a showing that far exceeded the firm's previous creditable efforts. A pleasing feature, however, was the ease and comfort with which the visitors were handled, there being no overcrowding or other annoyances.

The main floor was partially cleared of its usual stock to give room for the seating of visitors, an item of comfort much appreciated by the women.

The handsome decorations of smilax used at the Charity ball performed a like office in the store today, the effect being especially artistic and delightful to the eye.

The air of hospitality, that has marked similar events at the Brench & Bassett store in the past was in no way lacking this afternoon, and every visitor seemed ready to see as much as possible of the splendid display of goods and enjoy the amusement features to the fullest extent.

During the afternoon a delightful musical program was rendered by La Brosse's orchestra and Miss Gladys Reynolds, soloist.

In point of attraction, perhaps, the new rug and drapery department on the third floor was a strong drawing card, and this floor carried almost as large a crowd during the afternoon as the main floor.

In point of elegance, convenience of arrangement, completeness of stock and equipment, this department certainly vies with any of its kind in the West. A casual visit to the department now will be something of a surprise, while a more thorough inspection would open the eyes of some of those people who in the past have had the idea that it was necessary to go to Chicago houses or the East for the very best. The firm's excellent equipment and facilities for complete housefurnishing are indeed a revelation, whether in the kitchen, dining room, the living room, the reception hall, the library, the bedroom or the parlor. Whether it is dishes, or the most exquisite or lace curtains, draperies or portieres, or choicest furniture, the big store stands ready to fill the order.

Among the features on the third floor are the model rooms with the reproductions in Flemish and Flanders old oak, the reproduction of the original model of the chairs in the hall of Castle Kent, England, A. D. 1513, Kenilworth style, the Colonial and post-Colonial, Chippendale, Sheraton, Miller, Dorset, Braidstreet, Jakobine and other reproductions of famous old pieces.

The blending of the furniture, rugs, walls, draperies, and overdrapes into a harmonious color scheme denotes the skilled hands that arranged the display.

The big rug racks were another interesting feature of the department, this modern method being a vast improvement over the old laborious way of rolling the rugs on the floor.

The china and crockery department was in its very best order for visitors and to say that it did not receive its share of attention would be putting it mildly.

Every lady visitor was the recipient of a handsome souvenir of the exposition, a colonial candlestick.

The exposition will continue this evening, with a change of musical program, beginning at 8 o'clock.

POOR, SICK AND FRIENDLESS

Her husband dead and her health impaired by the ravages of tuberculosis Mrs. Sanna Maki was unable to earn a living for herself and her two little children. After a battle of two years' length against disease and poverty, the woman and her children drifted to the poor farm. Tomorrow night, they will leave in charge of an immigration officer for St. John's N. B., from which port they will be deported to their former home in Finland.

The woman, with her husband and two children, came to this side of the water less than three years ago. They remained in Canada for a short time and the husband died. With the little means she had at her disposal, the woman came to the United States with her children.

For a time she fared well enough, but when tuberculosis attacked her, she drifted into abject poverty and became a public charge subject to deportation.

BIG PARTY WILL GO TO BRAINERD.

Between fifty and sixty Duluthians will go to Brainerd tomorrow night to attend the first annual meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association.

Reservations have been received from most of them by Major Eva, secretary of the Commercial club, who is arranging the details of the trip. The Duluthians will be joined by delegates from other towns in the county, and just how large the party will be cannot be known at this time.

The party will travel in special cars attached to the Great Northern train and will be housed in the sleepers while attending the convention, which will be in session Thursday and Friday. The delegates will return to Duluth Saturday morning.

PENSIONS BY STEEL TRUST

Employes Twenty Years in Service May Retire at Age of 60.

New York, Nov. 29.—The United States Steel corporation is to announce a pension plan for employes between 60 and 70 years of age, which will become effective Jan. 1. Employes in the service twenty years can retire at the age of 60, and when after twenty years of service they reach the age of 71 years a compulsory retirement clause operates.

A NURSERY FOR DULUTH

Agricultural Committee of Club Approves Plan to Establish One.

Duluth will have a nursery which is expected to give a decided impetus to the development of Northeastern Minnesota as a horticultural region. At a meeting of the agricultural committee of the Commercial club this afternoon C. E. Roe set forth his ideas and his project for the establishment of such a nursery, and detailed what progress he has made toward the incorporation of a company to carry on the business, with the result that the committee gave the project its approval.

The experiences of St. Louis county horticulturists has not been entirely free from disasters, as in the case of those growers who put in strawberry plants at Meadowlands and suffered a shrinkage of from 30 to 50 per cent. It is calculated that had these plants been the product of a Northern Minnesota district, instead of coming, as they did, from the Lake Minnetonka district, the shrinkage would have been not more than 15 per cent. Planters of fruit trees, getting their stock from places south of here, have suffered losses amounting to 100 per cent. The result would have been far different had the trees been obtainable from a northern nursery.

Mr. Roe is an experienced nursery man. He was brought up in the fruit and produce business in the vicinity of Stillwater and knows the business. The company which he is promoting will be capitalized at $25,000, with at least $10,000 paid in, to insure the success of the project.

A number of persons and concerns deeply interested in the development of this part of the state have already become subscribers to the stock, and others have signified their intention of going into it.

A ten-acre tract about a mile frim the present eastern terminus of the Woodland car line, at the Greysolon farms, has been secured for the nursery plant.

LABORER HELD FOR PASSING WORTHLESS CHECK.

Arvid Lake, a Finnish laborer, who understands little English, was arrested this afternoon by Lieut. Charles E. Wilcox of the West Duluth department and is held at headquarters station on a charge of uttering a forged check.

PHYSICAL VALUATION PROPER STOCK BASIS.

Washington, Nov. 29. — "The interstate commerce commission believes that a physical valuation of the railroad properties of the United States is the first step toward adequate regulation of rates; and I believe the same principle applies to the establishment of a basis for the control of stock and bond issues," said Judson C. Clements of the interstate commerce commission at the first public meeting of the new railroad securities commission.

The committee, appointed by President Taft under authority of the new railroad law passed by the last congress, has begun hearings at which members of the interstate commerce commission and state commissioners from Massachusetts and other states will present their views of federal control of the issuance of railroad securities. President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale university, presided at the hearing.

TWO GET SENTENCES FROM JUDGE ENSIGN.

Arthur E. Lavelle, a young lad, was sentenced in juvenile court this afternoon to the reformatory at St. Cloud by Judge Ensign. He was accused of breaking into a room at the Holland hotel and pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary in the third degree.

Jack Smith, who was up on a statutory charge, was sentenced to state's prison on the reformatory plan.

The Coat Sale

They seemed to know intuitively that this coat event was something out of the ordinary.

The appeal doesn't lie so much in the near-halved prices as in the latest-style-individuality of the Coats themselves.

It isn't a "forced" sale of don't-sell styles or the usual third-off on the residues of a season, but—spic-span-fresh models, made up within the past two weeks into the latest Paris styles.

CONCERNING WOMAN.

If on Saturday noon you should be at Third avenue west and Superior street and a young woman in a dazzling white fur coat should scoot around the corner in a scarlet automobile and stop you will realize suddenly that there is your opportunity to buy your Red Cross Christmas seals.

Annette Kellerman who is crazy about health and anxious to give it a boost along whenever she gets a chance, is going to help along the first week of the Duluth sale of Red Cross Christmas seals and Saturday at noon she will be at Third avenue for half an hour to sell the seals.

Miss Kellerman was intensely interested in hearing about the open air treatment of tuberculosis patients. She glowed with enthusiasm when she heard about the patients sleeping out of doors with snow on their coverlets even when it got down to 30 below zero. She was anxious to help extend the custom.

"I didn't think anybody in America liked fresh air," said Miss Kellerman. "They're so afraid of 'drafts.'"

The interview started in the dressing room at the Orpheum with Miss Kellerman garbed in the most fetching head dress of a craftily arranged oriental scarf and the soft white blanket coat. Miss Kellerman divested herself of headdress and coat. She revealed a slim figure clad in the simplest

There's one thing about Miss Kellerman. She's so honest.

"But the getting out in the morning," shivered the interviewer.

"Oh, yes! That's awful," said Miss Kellerman. "But Mabel comes in and closes my window and I skip into her room that is warm."

Now wouldn't that have been a grand time to say "Oh, I don't mind getting out into the cold a bit." But Miss Kellerman is honest. Something was mentioned about what old time writers call "stays."

"I won't say I never wear them," said Miss Kellerman, "because then if I should put them on once and somebody caught me I should feel that I had told a story. But I never wear them when I can get out of it. If I have a gown that needs them in order to make it look just right I put them on but that is as seldom as possible. It is practically never."

There's another thing about Miss Kellerman. She never consults a calendar and says: "Now it's Oct. 15, I'll put 'em on," or "It's April 15, I'll take 'em off." She wears the same kind the year around. Little thin gauzy ones. Well, honest——!

But in spite of America's aversion for "drafts" Miss Kellerman is keen about it. "You have everything here, everything," said she. "Now this Red Cross business. Think of just undertaking to wipe out that awful consumption and preventing it and everything, and you'll do it, too. America's wonderful. You're so clever and willing to take a chance and you have everything. I should think the American women would be the most contented on earth. American husbands, well, the wife here rules the roost. And when I get married," said Miss Kellerman, with a bounce from the grease paint to the vaseline jar, "I'm going to marry an American man."

Miss Kellerman called for her bathing suit and in a twinkling she stood looking just exactly like that column picture you see sometimes of a lady ready to take a dive. She pulled a Japanese kimona around her and was ready for the splash.

Miss Kellerman believes that swimming is good for your figure and fine for your disposition. Nothing can be better for the complexion and it is tonic for the nerves. But, and this shows how honest Miss Kellerman is, it won't do what the Bunderland sisters claim for their discovery. "Getting your hair wet twice a day is no go," says Miss Kellerman, so she has just as little as possible and doesn't pay much attention to it. She likes to look nice though and she puts on a puff or two and a few curls where they'll do the most good, but she that is without such offense among you let her cast the first stone.

Miss Kellerman is busy making her arrangements for the Saturday sale. She expects a large sale of the seals. She doesn't see how any one can resist contributing in such a way for such a cause. She will wear a white fur coat and come in a scarlet automobile, but if any one should be unable to identify her she will especially wear a red cross seal on the coat sleeve of her left arm.

The City Home.

By HARRIET PRESCOTT SPOFFORD.

In the city it is not so much the location or anything of the exterior that has to do with happiness so much as it is the inside of the house. Outer sunshine is important there, of course; but the sunshine of gentle manners and pleasant faces is more important still, and the social enjoyment of friends that is impossible anywhere else for a length of time. The large rooms, the airy sleeping rooms, the hot and cold water and gas, the bath at any hour of the day or night, the physician at tel...one call, comfortable conveniences for getting about, cheap means of reaching some of the most superb gardens of the world, such as Druid, Fairmount, Prospect and Central and Franklin parks; all these things add a great deal to the enjoyment of life.

If one wants more there is a summer vacation for many, in which the clerk, the student, the tired housekeeper, the business man, the journalist, the professional man, can go out and lie in the sun on the grass, and feel the pulse of the old planet, or sit on the sand, watching the rise and fall of the sea, like the placid heaving of a mighty breast, hid in the shadow of the woods, till they feel like the wildwood creatures themselves, launch their best in the breakers, and know the exhilaration of conquering the unconquerable, or slip it through lilypads, and watch their doubles in the depths below, receive the freedom of the fields, as heroes are given the freedom of cities, and take hold of the real business of life when they return to town with renewed youth; each enjoying the pleasure of friend or neighbor, as it is narrated to him, as if it were his own.

And even when there is no vacation, the city gives a social pleasure of companionship when sitting on the steps and stoops in the warm evenings, in the strolls after ices, in the visits to the roof gardens, the steamer trips, the trolley rides, that have a pleasure all their own. It is certain that there is a great human happiness in the congregation and aggregation of life in towns, of which the widely separated rural populace can know but little, while the free interchange is stimulating to mental growth and the reception of new ideas.

The opportunities for growth and improvement are innumerable. Is there a painter whose canvas brings the beauty of the world into the compass of a few feet—the sight and the inspiration are at our command; is there a speaker of world-wide repute, a singer to whom kings and emperors are glad to listen, a preacher that moves men's souls, it is ours to listen, too; is there a play that thrills, a spectacle that delights, a song that charms, it is all within our reach in the city.

We gather the news of the world there on a larger scale than that on which it is given to rustic communities, and we have absorbed and assimilated the last new thing before it has reached what is sometimes called the provinces, and have gone on to something newer yet.

Hints for the Boudoir

By MILDRED WYCKOFF.

A nice ointment for the hands can be made of one ounce of bay rum, one ounce with hazel, one ounce water, one ounce glycerine, ten drops of camphor. (Two tablespoonfuls roughly equal one ounce.) Directions for using: Wash the hands and rinse, then apply while the hands are damp. This will keep the hands smooth and white in all weathers.

* * *

Homemade Toothpaste—Mix together two ounces of precipitated chalk, an ounce each of powdered areca nut and powdered orris root, half an ounce of shredded white Castile soap, and one drachm of Armenian bole. When these ingredients are thoroughly amalgamated stir them to a paste by slowly adding six drachms of glycerine and the same quantity of rose water. Perfume with one drop of attar of roses and two drops of oil of cloves.

Beautiful Eyebrows.

The most neglected feature of the face is the eyebrows. Yet perhaps more of one's expression depends upon them tha nany other feature.

Do not omit a day without drawing the eyebrows gently between the fingers from the bridge of th nose outwards. Do this several times.

If the eyebrows are thin and scant, cultivate them with the same care given to the hair. Rubbing with vaseline at night, then washing it off in the morning with hot and then cold water, will induce growth.

The ideal eyebrow is thinly pencilled and arched. Almost any one can do some training to their eyebrows with promise of success.

THE EVENING STORY

A HALLOWEEN EXPERIMENT

By James Talbot.

It was a blustering October afternoon, with wild winds that sent the glorious foliage rioting from the trees in showers of gold and crimson.

As the big car glided swiftly over the winding country roads, Miss Trevyllian leaned back in her corner with an extreme expression of preoccupation of her charming face, framed in the soft gauze folds of a voluminous motor veil.

A tiny perplexed frown wrinkled the delicately arched brows above the long lashed, dark blue eyes, while the somewhat vague replies she returned to the occasional remarks of her companion, a good-looking, broad-shouldered, bronzed young man, who was skilfully steering the car, showed a distinctly distrait frame of mind.

Beatrice Trevyllian was just 19, absolutely pretty, and rich beyond the average modern maiden, for she was a considerable heiress. She and her aunt —who, with an obese poodle, occupied the tonneau—were on their way to join a house party at Haldon hall, where John and Mrs. Haldon, a childless couple, delighted to surround themselves with a crowd of cheery and congenial young people.

Miss Trevyllian was looking forward to her visit with mixed feelings for a very crumpled rose leaf threatened to spoil her pleasure. She happened to be in the position of the proverbal donkey between the two bundles of hay. She had two admirers, both devoted, both good looking, and she could not make up her mind which she liked the best, for she had nearly, if not altogether, lost her heart equally to both, if such a thing is possible.

She was almost certain she liked Guy Lorraine best, with his good-looking bronzed face and honest grey eyes. But when she was with Capt. Eskeith, a beguiling handsome soldier, with eloquent hazel eyes and a face like the Apollo Belvedere's, she felt absolutely fascinated.

She knew Guy was madly in love with her, ready to die fo rher if necessary. While she was not so sure about Capt. Eskeith's feelings—for he treated her with a sort of veiled homage inexpressibly delightful to a young girl in her first season—there was yet a subtle suggestion of something deeper conveyed to her in every glance, and almost every word he spoke, that hinted at a heart-felt devotion on his part.

The whole position was a somewhat awkward one, and threatened to become complicated in the immediate future, for Beatrice was aware that Capt. Eskeith was actually a guest at Haldon, while no less a person than Guy was whirling her and her aunt thither in his big motor car.

It was nearly 5 o'clock and dusk when they swept up the curving avenue leading to Haldon, and pulled up before the grey stone portico. The lofty oak paneled hall was full of people, and tea was going on as usual as Mrs. Haldon rushed forward to greet the new arrivals.

As Beatrice drew herself from the old lady's warm embrace, her glance almost immediately alighted upon Walter Eskeith, looking handsomer than ever in his thick shooting tweeds, lounging beside a tall, slender, startlingly beautiful girl with large, pathetic brown eyes. And a spasm of jealousy shot through her heart.

Capt. Eskeith and Maude Ferrars had been inseparable when Miss Trevyllian made her debut, and the latter had felt almost in the position of an unconscious rival to the other girl when Walter Eskeith had incontinently transferred all his attentions to herself.

The days sped rapidly away to Haldon, what with hunting, shooting and motoring, and the party, composed almost entirely of young people, was a very merry one. But Beatrice Trevyllian was not enjoying herself. The solution of the problem that was worrying her gave her no peace. Both Guy and Capt. Eskeith strove with ill-concealed jealousy and eagerness for her favor, and poor Beatrice vacillated weakly between the two. Mrs. Haldon had decided to celebrate All Hallow's Eve with a ball, and she had sent out invitations far and wide, and Beatrice recklessly determined on that night to leave the momentous question that was agitating her to the many time-honored superstitions that clung around Halloween.

Beatrice now racked her brain for the recollection of one of those mystic rites that were supposed on Halloween to assist the destinies of all true lovers satisfactory—or the reverse.

On the day of the ball Beatrice had succeeding in avoiding both her admirers up to lunch time in quite a masterly manner. There was a look of terrible determination about both young men that warned her the crucial moment was approaching when she would be called upon to make up her mind once and for all between them.

After lunch she hastily donned her walking things and started for a long ramble across the park and out along the lonely country roads.

She had walked for a couple of miles or so when the toot, toot of a motor-car sounded behind her. And then a big Renault car, driven by a solitary young man, slowed down and drew up along side of her. And with a startled exclamation she found herself staring into the good-looking face of Guy Lorraine.

"What luck," he exclaimed. "You must let me drive you home."

And in spite of her feeble protestations that she infinitely preferred to walk, she found herself seated by his side while he drove slowly along. The fresh, crisp autumn air blew on her face, and she felt her spirits rising almost unconsciously. If only there had been no fascinating Walter Eskelth, how absolutely happy she would have been driving on like this forever—just she and Sir Guy.

Then, before she realized what was about to happen, the young man was telling her in quick, passionate tones how he worshipped her, adored her, and was asking her to be his wife.

"You don't dislike me, do you, darling?" he whispered, trying to look into her flushed averted face. "Say that you care a little."

"Yes, I do care—like you," she stammered. "But it is sudden. Give me a little time to think."

"Until when?" he demanded breathlessly.

"Until midnight," she answered recklessly. "You must wait until I have consulted the oracle."

"What oracle?" he asked. "Your aunt? I know she is on my side, anyway," smiling.

"No, the oracle of All Hallow's Eve," she retorted. "Now please, you are not to mention this subject again."

It was a quarter to twelve (midnight) and in the big hall room dancing was going on merrily. But here, in Mrs. Haldon's boudoir, all was silence. The room seemed full of ghostly shadows, accentuated by the pale flickering light of one candle. The thin curtains were pulled across the window.

Seated before a long Chippendale mirror that adorned one of the walls was Beatrice Trevyllian, looking not unlike a wraith herself in her flimsy white ball-gown, as she gazed half fearfully into the dark depths of the glass for the possible appearance of the wraith of the man she was destined to marry.

At once footsteps sounded on the terrace outside. A couple had paused just below the window nearest to Beatrice, which was partly open. Then she heard Maude Ferrars speaking, in a plaintive and passionate tone.

"Oh, Walter, you are breaking my heart," she wailed. "I know you must marry Beatrice Trevyllian, but the thought of it is driving me mad."

Then Capt. Esketh's voice, low, caressing, replied:

"My dearest, be reasonable. You know I only care for you in the whole world, and I can never forget all we are to each other. But what can I do? You know how hopelessly in debt I am and that I must marry money. Where shall I find a better opportunity? Miss Trevyllian," with a slight, conceited laugh, "is ready to marry me tomorrow, and I should be a madman if I threw away such a chance."

A low sob was all the response. Then they moved away, leaving Beatrice stricken dumb with mortification and burning indignation. And she continued to stare into the mirror with eyes flashing with wrath, to think how nearly she had been duped by a mere mercenary man of the world.

But suddenly, out of the lurking shadows of the glass, there appeared a face, framed in the darkness of the room beyond, and with a little scream of fright she turned to find a tall, dark figure standing before her.

"Well, has the oracle spoken?" said the voice of Guy Loraine.

For a moment Beatrice stared at him without speaking, her heart beating wildly. Here at all events was no fortune hunter; Sir Guy's wealth, if anything, far surpassed her own. And all at once a feeling of great relief and sudden happiness swept over her, and with a little sobbing cry she clung to him wildly.

"Oh, I love you; I love you so much," she whispered tearfully, burying her face against his coat.

"My darling; my own, own darling," he murmured, straining her to him, his voice broken by his sudden emotion.

"And to think I might never have belonged to you if it had not been for that looking glass," she said piteously.

But he, not comprehending the hidden tragedy of her words, laughed unbelievingly, joyously, as he stooped to kiss the sweet, tear-stained face.

HUSBAND SAVED--WIFE OVERJOYED.

Gratitude-Filled Letter Received By Boston Drink Cure Firm.

"Gentlemen:—I feel it my duty to tell you how grateful I am to you for saving my husband from a drunkard's grave. My husband had drank steadily for ten years, and although at times he really seemed to make a determined effort to stop, the craving was stronger than his will-power. I had tried three advertised so-called cures, without the slightest effect; in fact, they only seemed to aggravate his appetite. A friend of mine whose son was cured by your blessed medicine, told me about it, but it was with very little confidence that I started giving him White Ribbon Remedy. He did not realize the damage drink was doing him and his business. He was not sober long enough. Whenever I tried to talk to him about taking a remedy to relieve his appetite for liquor, he would fly into a rage and say, 'Haven't you any sense at all? Why, woman, all such things are frauds. But how little he knew. It has been three weeks since he has touched a drop and our home is now so happy. I gave him all the eight boxes secretly."

The name of the writer of the above letter is, of course, withheld, because all such correspondence is considered absolutely confidential by the White Ribbon Remedy company.

The White Ribbon Remedy is honestly made by honest people, with the sincere desire to help the homes that are being injured and, perhaps, even desolated by alcohol. WEST END

NO GUARANTEE WILL BE GIVEN

Hillside People Want No Restrictions on Water System Extension.

To ascertain as nearly as possible what benefit the hillside residents at the West end will derive from the proposed $300,000 bond issue, a committee will be appointed at the next meeting of the West End Hillside Improvement club, Friday, Dec. 9, to interview the water board in the matter.

"It is true that the water board recommended to be set aside $25,000 for the extension of water mains to the Ensign school," said Former Alderman Peter Olson, who is president of the Hillside club, "but the question is, does the water board expect people on the hillside to furnish a guarantee for this amount? If they do we will vote against the bond issue out here. There is altogether too much vacant property between the terminal at Fourteenth avenue west and the Ensign school to expect much from the hillside residents.

The matter of water extension has been long agitated at the West end and is one of the primary reasons why the Hillside club was organized. The club was successful in getting Piedmont avenue graded and in securing street car service up the hillside and hopes to win out in its fight for city water for homes along the hillside.

WAYNE NEED NOT STAY IN PRISON

Washington, Nov. 29.—Frank Wayne will not be compelled to serve four more years in the penitentiary for the alleged larceny of some postage stamps and $3 from the Sellwood postoffice in Portland, Or., in 1907. The supreme court of the United States has declined to review the action of the federal courts of Oregon, which released him from serving the sentence.

Wayne has already served a three-year sentence for the alleged burglary. He procured his release from prison on the ground that the additional sentences for the alleged larcenies constituted a second punishment of an offense for which he had already been imprisoned. The department of justice asked the supreme court to review the decision of the lower court in order to establish the principle, if possible, that in federal jurisdiction a person may be punished both for burglary and larceny growing out of the same transaction.

Many Want Relief.

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 29.—Attorney Robert E. Blewett of this city, who took up Frank Wayne's case and carried it to the supreme court of the United States, is being flooded with appeals from all the federal prisons in the country to take up cases which are said to be similar to Wayne's. The government attorneys fought against Wayne's release on the ground that it would open the way to similar action for other prisoners, and their contentions seem to be supported by the letters Blewett is getting. Blewett is a former Wisconsin boy, his parents living in Fond du Lac, Wis.

DENIES LAND TO WHITE MAN.

Ballinger Files Answer to Oklahoma Mandamus.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Secretary Ballinger has filed in the District of Columbia supreme court his answer to a mandamus proceeding instituted against him by James F. Rowell of Oklahoma, in which Rowell seeks to compel the secretary to issue a patent to him for 160 acres of land bordering on the town of Lawton, Okla.

By representing that he was a full member of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache tribes of Indians, Rowell, it is said, secured the passage of a special act of congress allotting to him the land in question, which is declared to be worth at least $50,000. In his answer, the secretary declares among other things, that Rowell is a white man and has been denied enrollment by the Dawes commission. He further says that the patent is being held up under orders from the president pending the reassembling of congress, when it is expected the special act will be reconsidered.

Demurring to the answer of the secretary, Rowell, it is said, sets forth that any act of concealment or misrepresentation, even if made to congress by Rowell, cannot be set up or relied on as a defense.

FLEES LAW THREE YEARS AND THEN IS ACQUITTED.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 29.—A fugitive from justice since Sept. 27, 1907, Thomas Jordan, a wealthy fruit dealer of McKeesport, who was alleged to have shot and killed Pasquale and Giovanni Rizzo on that date, has surrendered to the county detectives, was arraigned in court, pleaded not guilty, was placed on trial and within six hours was acquitted on the murder charge, without his attorneys calling witnesses in his defense.

The Rizzos were cousins of Jordan and witnesses for the prosecution testified that the shooting was done while Jordan was defending another cousin, a girl, from the attacks of one of the brothers. Judge Marshall Brown ordered the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

Leech, a glove buyer in a department store, will receive an annuity of $1,000 besides the profits from fifty shares of stock that pays large dividends. Miss Leech and Mr. Gwynner were to have been married just previous to the illness that caused his death on April 27.

Miners' Plea Not Settled.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 29.—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor adjourned last night to meet in Washington on Jan. 16. At that time the Western Federation of Miners' application for a charter probably will be disposed of. The matter was referred to President Gompers with authority to bring about conferences between the miners and the Machinists, who are opposing the charter.

Keep Your Hair Clean and Bright

(From Eastern Style Reporter.)

"It is a problem to keep the hair free from dust during the summer months. If one shampoos with soap and water too often, she is likely soon to find her hair brittle, coarse, dull in color and becoming thin and scanty.

"Since dry shampooing has become so popular there is a noticeable improvement in the coiffures one sees at summer resorts, in theaters and other places.

"It is easy to keep the hair clean and bright by using a dry shampoo made by mixing four ounces of orris root with four ounces of therox. Keep the mixture in a sifter-top can and sprinkle a little over the head and brush it out before dressing the hair.

"By this method a satisfactory shampoo is possible in ten or fifteen minutes, and there is no doubt that if this treatment is kept up regularly two or three times a week a better growth of hair will be the result. Therox keeps the hair light and fluffy, making it easy to put up, and giving it a beautiful lustre."

NO REASON FOR IT

When Duluth Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Duluth citizen says:

Mrs. J. E. Kennell, 324 N. Twentieth Ave. W., Duluth, Minn., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have given entire satisfaction in our home. About a year ago a member of our family was so crippled with his back that he could hardly straighten. This person had much pain and lameness in the kidneys and there were other troubles in evidence which plainly showed what was wrong. Doan's Kidney Pills were publicly recommended and a supply was procured. This remedy brought relief and thus proved its merits."

PLAN LIKED IN BEMIDJI

Alderman Roe Finds Much to Commend in Commission Government Plan.

Citizens of Beltrami County Seat May Vote Upon Adopting Plan.

Bemidji, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Bemidji may have the chance of voting on the proposition of changing to the commission form of government, at the coming city election, in February.

Knute K. Roe, alderman from the Third ward, has become interested in the commission plan, and has received pamphlets from Des Moines, explaining at length the famous method by which that city is governed.

"It can do no harm to investigate," says Mr. Roe, "and if we find that it might be desirable for Bemidji, the change can be voted upon, giving the citizens a chance to express their wishes.

"Eighty-two cities in the United States have—since Galveston, Tex., first tested it—traded their old charters for the commission form. There is but one city in Minnesota now governed by a commission, Mankato.

City Politics Cut Out.

"The plan, loosly stated, is to eliminate city politics and transact business of the city by departments, the voters at all times reserving the right to make changes of membership.

"In Des Moines there are five departments: Public affairs, accounts, and finances, public safety, street and public improvements and parks and property.

"Of course, these departments could be narrowed down to suit the needs of a smaller city like Bemidji."

Alderman Roe proposes to gather intelligent information as to the exact workings of the commission plan and if enough interest is displayed in the matter will endeavor to have it brought up for a vote at the city election, in Fberuary.

WINS LAWSUIT AND DROPS DEAD

Pioneer Lamson of North Dakota Expires Following Court Decision.

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 29.—Edward K. Lamson, one of the pioneers of the state, dropped dead Sunday night. He was apparently in as good health as ever and Saturday night was feeling particularly well. He had just received a decision from the supreme court which cleared up the title to a valuable piece of property in the city.

Lamson was one of the few real old-timers left in the state, he having come to Bismarck before the railroads. The cause of his death was heart trouble.

SAUGSTAD CASE THE SENSATION

Contest Against Polk County Senator-Elect Promises to Be Lively.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The contest started to ascertain whether John Saugstad or A. D. Stephens will represent Polk county in the state senate is the local sensation. The main points set up are:

That Saugstad having been defeated at the primaries was not eligible as an independent candidate at the general election; that in his only published statement he said:

"I had not intended to become a candidate after defeat at the polls but if elected I will qualify and serve," and this is construed as announcing that he was a candidate in effect; that hundreds of stickers with his name on were counted for him as a candidate for senator when they were placed on the ballot for every office thereon from governor down to county surveyor, and even in the place designated to record the vote on county division; that at scores of voting precincts peddlers of stickers were inside the polling places, and in many instances the peddlers followed the voters into the booths. They also left handfuls of stickers with Saugstad's name on in the booths after they had been removed repeatedly.

In addition it is claimed overzealous followers of Saugstad insisted, after voting, in showing their ballots publicly before the judges and others in the polling places, and pointing the sticker they had affixed and announcing: "I want people to know that I voted for Saugstad."

Attorneys Rowe of this city, Finlayson of East Grand Forks and a St. Paul firm will conduct the contest. The notice was served on John Saugstad late yesterday afternoon at Climax by Sheriff Daniels.

GIRL NOW ADMITS SHE TOLD UNTRUTH

Confesses to Swearing Falsely Against Former East Grand Forks Alderman.

East Grand Forks, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.) — Evidence that she gave in the municipal court against A. J. Shelly, when she charged him with assaulting her, was entirely according to Inga Sweedberg, 13 years old, who brought about the arrest of Mr. Shelly, formerly an alderman here.

The girl was arraigned in municipal court yesterday and sentenced to the state training school at Red Wing. In her evidence, the girl testified that the story resulting in Shelly's arrest had been trumped up by Ellen Clein, colored, who is awaiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of abducting the girl for immoral purposes.

Tomorrow Caroline Fraisier, charged with perjury in connection with the Shelly action, will be arraigned for a hearing before Judge Sullivan.

HAYS WILL SPEAK ON RURAL SCHOOLS

Former Minnesotan's Address to Be Feature of Brainerd Meet.

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the interesting features of the meeting here next Thursday and Friday of the Northern Minnesota Development association will be an address by W. M. Hays, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Mr. Hays is a former student, instructor and practioner of Minnesota and has risen to be an assistant to a cabinet officer at Washington. Mr. Hays has for years given the rural school question a thorough and systematic study, and the ability to present the results of his researches in a simple, attractive, intelligent and forceful manner.

By means of charts and diagram he demonstrates how our log house country schools are to be replaced by one central intsitution for each township, arranged with suitable accommodations and with symmetery and beauty so that school days will be a pleasure and a treat to our country children, and provide them with a modern education, such as they deserve, at the hands of the most competent instructors. Courses in simple farming and domestic science will be the features, and the future will then hear less about the "Back to the Farm" cry and the wail of "high cost of living."

WILLISTON, N. D., TO HAVE FINE ARMORY.

Williston, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—A fund of $25,000 will be subscribed toward the construction of an armory and auditorium, and plans for the building contemplated are already being considered. It is proposed to make the structure one of the very finest of its kind in the entire state.

For some time the officers of Company E of the North Dakota National Guard have been engaged in an effort to bring about action with a view to securing an armory, and they finally have been successful in securing the general indorsement of the city's business interests.

SANDSTONE CARPENTER IS DEAD OF PARALYSIS.

Sandstone, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—John Lundquist, who has been a sufferer with paralysis for nearly two years, died Monday morning. He was a member of the I. O. G. T. lodge, which will have charge of the funeral Wednesday. Deceased was about 44 years of age, a carpenter by trade, and formerly connected with the firm of Lundquist Bros. in the shoe and harness business, and has been a resident of this section since his arrival from Sweden about twelve years ago. A wife and daughter and his mother and a brother survive.

ACCUSED KEEPS COOL.

Defendant in Moorhead Murder Trial Not Losing Nerve.

Moorhead, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Dahl who is on trial in the district court here on the charge of murdering Trygvd Fossum in a saloon row, is not losing his nerve through the trying ordeal although some damaging testimony is being offered against him.

Drs. Verne and Darrow, who performed the postmortem examination, testified as to the cause of death. Their testimony was largely technical and showed that Fossum died as a result of a blow which drove the nose bones back into his head, causing concussion of the brain.

Thomas, the star witness for the state, was called. He was in A. J. Rustad's saloon and is practically the only man, now available to the state, who saw the affair. He testified that Fossum had been hanging about the saloon and that Dahl seized him by the neck and dragged him to the center of the tile floor of the saloon and threw him down.

DULUTHIAN WINS POINT.

Secures New Trial in Big Timber Case at Brainerd.

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 29.—Pending arguments by H. B. Fryberger of Duluth for the plaintiff and H. L. Schmidt of Mankato for the defense, Judge McClenahan of the district court has granted a new trial in the case of the Itasca Cedar and Tie Co. vs. George A. McKinley. William G. Hoerr, Edward Austin and the Brainerd Lumber & Mercantile Co.

The verdict rendered in this case Jan. 15 last, gave the defendant, George A. McKinley, possession of the property involved and assessed his damages at $23,614.97 with interest at 6 per cent from Sept. 25, 1908, to date.

In the memorandum attached to the order granting a new trial Judge McClenahan states:

"I think it is an error to receive in evidence the books offered by the defendant McKinley to show the result of the estimate made of the material in the yard at the time this action was commenced. But were this otherwise if the books were properly received in evidence, the methods adopted in making the inspection and estimate in question were not such as to justify the full measure of credit which must have been extended to them by the jury. I feel that substantial justice has not been done by this verdict."

The case will again appear for trial at the December term of court.

PAROLED YOUTH DIES.

Fall Sustained By McHenry, N. D., Boy Proves Fatal.

Mandan, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—From injuries received when he fell from a small building on the George Murry farm in Custer township, George Soiluk, paroled from the state reform school in this city, is dead. He was hurt in such a manner that partial paralysis resulted. The lad had been sent to the reform school about three years ago from Velva, McHenry county, and had been paroled about six months ago.

Garrison, N. D., Man Perishes When Dwelling Is Destroyed.

Garrison, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank McGregor, aged 43, was burned to death in his home here when a fire almost completely destroyed the structure. The flames started from an unknown cause, and before help could be procured McGregor had been overcome by the smoke while trying to make his way to the door. This had been securely fastened from the inside and before the early arrivals on the scene the fire could force an entrance, the flames had reached his body and he was burned to death. His head and the upper part of the body had been horribly burned. The only relatives located by the authorities reside in Vermont, and they have ordered the remains buried here.

Liable to Proceed Against Pembina County Over a Bridge.

Drayton, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Pembina county board of commissioners, already defendants in one action, may soon be defendants in another. The second one is promised by the city of Drayton to compel the payment of an appropriation of $25,000 for the purpose of constructing a bridge across Red river at this point. Such an appropriation was made by the board, but it was afterwards rescinded.

The Drayton city council holds that the county commissioners have no authority to rescind such an appropriation, and the city is now taking steps to fulfill its part of the obligation by giving a bond to pay its share toward the construction of the bridge. Shoul the county board continue in its refusal to make the appropriation available, immediate action will be instituted in the courts to compel such steps by the county fathers.

PHYSIQUE CHANGING

Dr. Sargent Says Feminine Type Is Losing Peculiar Characteristics.

Athletics and Different Corset Are Given as the Reasons.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 29.—That the physical type of American womanhood has undergone a tremendous change in the short space of twenty years and is approaching that of the opposite sex is the belief of Dr. Dudley Allen Sargent, director of the Sargent and Harvard gymnasiums in Cambridge, who is recognized throughout the country as the foremost authority of the day on the physical development of women.

Twenty years ago, according to Dr. Sargent's statements, woman's ultra-feminine characteristics—small waist, large hips, small feet, etc.—were over-developed, and she was the positive antithesis of man in physical proportions. Today her physique has become revolutionized, he says, and already approximates that of the other sex. This great evolution has taken place, says Dr. Sargent, since 1890.

Reversion to Savage Type?

"Although I have no actual figures to verify the statement," he said, "I know for a fact that the women of today are more mannish than the women of that time. Women in the savage state were so like men in form that it was well-nigh impossible to tell them apart. Then, as civilization progressed, their especially feminine characteristics became accentuated until the exaggeration was almost painful to look at.

"Since that time woman's physique has been thoroughly made over. It is approximating that of man. The sloping shoulders of her grandmother's time have disappeared. They are no longer in fashion. They are no longer desired. In their place we find well-knit, athletic shoulders—broad ones. Her hips, on the other hand, are not so large as they once were. The entire pelvic region has decreased in size, and the result has been an enlargement of the waist. The small waist is a thing of the past.

Measurements Show Changes.

"Her neck is thicker and more muscular; her limbs more smoothly developed; her hands and feet are larger. In every respect of which we in taking measurements of many women daily take note, the woman of today is getting to be more like man. Her chest has been said to be flatter. I should hardly wish to indorse that opinion. It is true, however, that her chest may appear flatter, because, I am glad to say, the corset which formerly forced it upward has of late been somewhat modified.

"It is this modification of the corset which is responsible for the betterment of woman's figure. The tightly laced corset is no longer in style, but seems to be replaced by the corset waist. Thus both the upper and lower parts of the trunk have more room. The chest is therefore larger and better developed. In certain persons, as in Miss De Capetan, who is constantly doing trapeze work and other things which tend to develop it, the chest is developed to an extreme degree, and is stronger than that of many a man.

Athletics Largely Responsible.

"The modification of the corset, as I have said, is one reason for the change in women's physique. Another reason is that within the last twenty years women have done more in the way of athletics than they did formerly. Golf, tennis, running and swimming have done much to improve woman's physical development. Being the sports which one naturally takes to be masculine, they have the inevitable result of making those who indulge in them more like men.

"For it is a rule to which one may take few exceptions that if a man devotes himself to the activities of a woman, or if a woman devotes herself to the activities of a man, there is bound to be a loss of sex. And it must be admitted that is one of the tendencies of our time. It is a result of commercialism. We find a great many women doing work which men ought to do, and vice versa.

"This approximation of man's physique is, from an anthropological point of view, a bad thing. It is to be hoped that men and women will not grow to be more alike than they are today. The same may be said of men. From the overdeveloped Sandow, man has changed to the effeminate and the foppish being. The assimilation of the sexes by each other is a possibility to be decried."

Both Speedy and Effective.

This indicates the action of Foley Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, Battle Creek, Mich., illustrates: "I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backaches and severe shooting pains with annoying urinary irregularities. The steady use of Foley Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my former troubles. They have my highest recommendation." Sold by all druggists.

NORTON TELLS HIS SUSPICIONS

Says Foreign Shipping Interests Have Lobby at Washington.

New York, Nov. 29.—A committee of congressmen appointed to investigate the charges that certain steamship companies have maintained a lobby to defeat legislation at Washington has begun an inquiry here. George L. Norton, editor of the Marine Journal, who wrote an article attacking the alleged lobby, was the only witness. Norton admitted that he had no personal knowledge of the matter, but he believed that "every man, woman and child knew" that there were grounds to think that some foreign shipping interests were opposing American shipping interests.

"Congressmen Get Patronage."

"I believe there are congressmen in the Middle West who are interested in newspapers in thir districts, whose patronage from the advertisements of the foreign steamship lines is greater than in this section," he testified.

"Can you name a congressman?" asked Representative Longworth.

Capt. Norton said he could not.

Representatives of various steamship companies and others have been subpoenaed. The investigating committee consists of Representatives Olcott of this city, Longworth of Ohio, Garrett of Tennessee, Hackley of Oregon and Humphrey of Mississippi. Mr. Olcott is chairman.

Want No Hats in Church.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 29.—The ministerial association of Johnson City has issued an address to the women of that city urging them to remove their hats at Sunday evening church services. The address, signed by every minister in town, except one, states that it is not because the ministers do not admire the lovely creations worn but in order that the gospel may have full power.

KILLS MANY CHILDREN.

St. Paul Health Official Scores Saintly City Milk.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 29.—That 116 St. Paul children under the age of 2 years died last fall as a result of diseases attributed to the use of impure milk was the assertion of Dr. J. H. Armstrong, assistant commissioner of health, before the assembly committee on streets, which today considered the milk ordinance of Alderman Montgomery, prepared by Dr. Armstrong and intended to eliminate some of the serious conditions now said to exist in St. Paul. It provides that all milk and cream sold in St. Paul shall be delivered to the consumer in bottles.

"If you gentlemen knew the sort of stuff you were drinking you would not think much of our milk," said Dr. Armstrong, "and when it is considered that the greatest danger from milk is dirt, it is time that action should be taken to insure clean milk."

Loses Money; Kills Himself.

Hastings, Neb., Nov. 29. — Will M. Reed, for nearly seventeen years a stock dealer in this neighborhood, committed suicide last evening by shooting himself. A few years ago he was worth $30,000, but had recently sustained heavy losses. A letter to his brother recounted that he was in debt and in failing health.

PRAISES AMERICAN STEEL MANUFACTURERS.

New York, Nov. 29.—"No better equipment for the economical and efficient production of iron and steel is to be found anywhere than exists in your great plants. I have visited both those of the steel corporation and of the leading independents."

Maj. C. Von Stum, general staff officer of cavalry, military expert and a member of one of the leading steel manufacturing firms of Germany, made this statement in New York on the eve of sailing for home. He had just completed a tour of the steel and iron plants of the country after attending the recent meeting of the iron and steel institute.

WIDOW MUST PAY TAX ON JOINT-OWNED PROPERTY.

Washington, Nov. 29.—That the surviving wife's share in "community" property, owned by the husband and wife, according to California law, is subject to the inheritance tax, authorized to be imposed by the state of California in 1905, is the effect of a decision by the supreme court.

The widow of James Moffitt, a manufacturer of Alameda county, who died in 1906, began this action in the court of California to avoid the payment of the $26,000 inheritance tax. In her behalf it was contended she had such an ownership in the property under the laws of California as enabled her to take it up on the death of the husband, not as his heir and not by succession, but by a certain right of survivorship. The California courts held, however, that she took the property as an heir, and this attitude was sustained by the supreme court.

THIRTEEN KILLED IN OKLAHOMA MINE.

Antlers, Okla., Nov. 29.—Thirteen miners were killed in the explosion at the Jumbo mine, twenty miles from here, yesterday and one of the fourteen in the workings at the time was brought out alive, but unconscious. Five men were blown from the mouth of the shaft by the force of the explosion and the other nine were entombed at depths varying rom 225 to 290 feet. The bodies of eight were brought out of the mine last night, after rescuers had dug in the workings all day.

Greatest Invention In the Sewing Machine World

THE STANDARD CENTRAL NEEDLE SEWING MACHINE.

Look at the two illustrations shown here. Which looks the most healthful and comfortable to you? Perhaps you have wondered, after spending a few hours at your sewing machine, how girls in factories stand it to sit at a machine and sew all day long, day after day. You have, no doubt, dismissed the subject from your mind with the conjecture that "they get used to it." Now these girls don't get used to it—they don't have to get used to it—they use CENTRAL NEEDLE Sewing Machines, and have used them for years. But this is the first opportunity you have had to buy one for your home, because its the first time a machine for the home has been built with a central needle bar.

We invite you to see them demonstrated in our store this week.

The New Way Is the Right Way

Compare this picture with the other one. Which way do you prefer to sit when sewing? You have no choice with the old style machine—you are forced to sit with your spine curved and twisted.

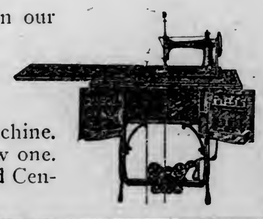

The Old Way Is the Wrong Way

This is the way you sit at your sewing machine — it's neither comfortable nor healthful. It causes undue weariness and trouble that you can easily avoid. The remedy is a Standard Central Needle Sewing Machine.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 13.—Divided Responsibility.

One great trouble in most cities under the old system of city government is that the ordinary citizen and taxpayer, when he wants to complain about anything or to get anything done, is often unable to find the office or the man whose duty it is to take care of his matter.

He goes to the officer whom he supposes to be responsible, and that officer explains that he isn't responsible for the matter at issue, and that the man to see is down the next corridor, two doors from the corner.

The taxpayer goes down the next corridor, applies to the office two doors from the corner, and makes his cause known. He is informed that he has come to the wrong place; that the proper authority is up on the next floor, third door to the left. The citizen wearily trudges up the stairs, finds the office indicated, and there he is referred back to his starting point. Disgusted and defeated, he goes home to swallow his grievance as best he may.

It is due to this division of responsibility that many things are overlooked and many wastes creep in. What is everybody's business is nobody's business; and what is the business of two separate public officials usually goes undone. Thus it is that pavements are laid and then torn up for excavations of various sorts, never getting back into their former condition again.

One of the chief merits of the commission form of city government is that it fixes responsibility definitely.

Under it the commissioner in charge of a division of the public business is personally responsible for all branches of work in that division, and the commission itself, acting as a council, is responsible for all branches of all divisions. The government naturally divides itself into groups which practically eliminate all possibility of overlapping or division of responsibility.

This is the way it is done in private business; and therein lies the essence of the success of the commission plan—that it follows closely the system on which modern business on a large scale is successfully performed.

In a private business conducted on the plan of divided and diffused responsibility peculiar to the old fashion of city government, bankruptcy would be inevitable. It is safe to say that there is scarcely a city in this country that would not have gone bankrupt long ago because of the business methods that prevailed, if the indefinite capacity of the citizens to pay taxes had not been back of it. In a private business managed as cities are managed under the old political system, the outgrowth of many impulses not the least of which has been the politician's desire to make places for as many deserving party workers as possible, everything would go wrong. Much of the time of department heads and employes would be spent in wrangles over placing the blame, unsettled questions would multiply, officials and employes would grow lazy and indifferent, there would be no incentive for the ambition to excel, and those who are naturally unscrupulous would find abundant opportunity to be dishonest in the nooks and crannies of a system so unstable and so disorderly. Such a system would make poor workmen out of good men, and thieves out of others who would have been honest if temptation had not been so plentiful.

The commission plan centralizes authority, and fixes it definitely in each instance. That would be going away from democracy and creating an autocracy, if it were not that the safeguards of the initiative, the referendum and the recall are adopted as essential features of the commission plan, and serve to keep this centralized power and responsibility in close control by the people.

SECRET PUBLICITY.

Word comes from Washington that corporations that have had to give up information to the government under the corporation tax law needn't worry, because none of it will be allowed to leak out. Apparently this information is to be used only as a basis of fixing the amount of the corporation tax, and for no other purpose. At any rate, it is made very clear, by a ruling announced by Secretary MacVeagh, that nobody is going to be allowed to poke an inquisitive nose into the facts about corporations that are on file in the treasury department.

It is perfectly proper to guard these secrets against the merely curious. It is no more than fair to guard them against competitors who might wish to find out something to use against the corporations with which they are striving for business.

But—

Remember when the corporation tax bill came up? Cummins and Dolliver and Bristow and Bailey and Gore and the rest of the progressives in the senate were about to pass an income tax bill. If it had got through the senate it would have passed the house, and the president could hardly have dared refuse to sign it.

There was a great scurrying to and fro. Aldrich rushed to the president. The president bent his ear. Great whisperings and confabulations went on.

Presently Aldrich went back to the senate, and the president said that it wouldn't be a wise thing to pass an income tax law. The supreme court might find it unconstitutional, as it had done by mistake with a previous income tax law. What ought to be done, he said, was to pass a corporation tax law. That would be a wonderfully fine thing in many ways. It would provide revenue, and by publicity it would provide a means of keeping a wholesome check on corporations.

The argument was plausible, and it worked. The income tax was dropped and the corporation tax was made into law.

The president said there was no doubt about the constitutionality of the corporation tax law, but its constitutionality has been attacked and the question is now before the supreme court of the United States. There it may rest until it is decided. That isn't the main question.

The main question is, what has become of all that benevolent and beneficent publicity the president talked about when, under instructions from Aldrich, he induced congress to substitute the corporation tax for the income tax?

If it were a contract, any court in the land would hold that publicity was one of the vital factors in it. In consideration of a law that was to tax corporations in a way which wouldn't permit them to pass the tax on to the consumers, and that was to provide publicity of corporation affairs which would allow wholesome regulation of those corporations in the interests of the people, the income tax was dropped.

The corporation tax may or may not stand the test of the courts. It is no more certain that it will than it was that the income tax would stand that test.

But publicity—not the publicity that merely satisfies idly curiosity or serves the purposes of menacing competitors but the publicity that is essential to a proper regulation of public corporations—what has become of that?

STUDYING THE COMMISSION PLAN.

It is announced that the charter commission, at tonight's meeting, will in all probability decide to take up the commission plan of city government for thorough study, with a view to proposing for Duluth a new charter in which such features of the commission form as seem applicable shall be provided.

By this means the movement for the adoption of the commission form takes the shape that it should take. The charter commission should make the formal study, and should prepare the new charter, which should be submitted at a special election held for that purpose. The step is so important that its consideration should not be clouded by side issues of any kind. It is hardly possible anyway to prepare a new charter in time for the February election, and some time in the spring or early summer will be soon enough to submit the matter to the voters.

In the meantime, the West Duluth Commercial club announces that it will take up the commission plan Dec. 9, when Mayor Cullum will lay its merits before that organization. This is right; and other organizations should take similar action. The Industrial Workers of the World set the example the other night, and the Duluth Commercial club, the West End Commercial club, the Lakeside club, the several hillside clubs, and all other organizations of a public nature should follow it. A joint committee of the city council and the Duluth Commercial club is now preparing a report on the subject that is awaited with much interest.

There cannot be too much discussion and study of a question so important.

THE LEAST THAT COULD BE DONE.

Leaving to experts the discussion of whether or not there should be an ordinance limiting the size of the load, and of what that limit should be if it is agreed that there should be one,—though it is hard to get away from the idea that cruelty is involved when there is no legal limit, unless the master is merciful,—the least that could be done in the interests of humanity is to follow the suggestion made in the Open Court last night by a "retired teamster," who thinks sprinkling sand on one of the avenues would go far toward solving the problem.

What he said about the load limit ordinance of course, depends on what the provisions of that ordinance are. It is easy to imagine a load limit ordinance that would be absurd because it wouldn't leave the horses enough to do to keep in trim. It is as easy to conceive a load limit so large that no team of horses could reach it. It does not seem impossible to arrive at a happy medium that will do justice both to team-owners and teams.

But if, on every slippy morning, somebody were thoughtful enough to get out and sprinkle sand on just one avenue in the down-town district, especially at the tops where the smooth east and west pavement is reached, it would surely help a great deal. Maybe the city will consent to do it. It puts sand on the sidewalks to save people's necks. Perhaps it wouldn't mind putting sand on an avenue to save the knees of horses.

DOING THINGS FOR THE PEOPLE.

One of the by-products of the experiment in government by Socialists in Milwaukee is interestingly described in the Milwaukee newspapers.

Last Saturday night the first "people's dance" in the history of Milwaukee took place, and reports agree that it was a great success in every way.

There have been people's dances of a sort before in Milwaukee, as in every other city. For instance, there have been dances over saloons, where there was easy access to the bar and where hundreds of young girls have danced their merry way to destruction. But never before has there been a real people's dance, held under proper supervision, at which the people—all of the people who would behave themselves—were welcome. Two halls were thrown open to accommodate the crowd, which numbered four thousand. The dance was opened by a short, sensible talk by a minister of the Gospel, and talks were made by Mayor Seidel, the president of the Association of Public Play and Social Education, and the president of the Milwaukee normal school.

The plan is to provide a means whereby the young people of Milwaukee who have no "social connections" to provide them an outlet for the spirit of youth, may gather and enjoy themselves under strict but sensible supervision. Every walk of life was represented. It was just a big section of the human family having a good time together. A nominal charge was made to meet expenses, and, though that is merely incidental, the dance was a financial success. It will be followed rapidly by others.

There are many things a city can do for its people besides providing them with policemen, firemen, street cleaners and taxes.

On to Brainerd.

And then on to St. Paul.

Public sentiment in Northern Minnesota, through the Northern Minnesota Development association, has become a practical, smoothly running engine that will be felt in St. Paul when the legislature meets next month.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

MUST PLAN GOVERNMENT FOR A LARGE CITY.

To the Editor of The Herald:

One fact that must not be overlooked in considering a permanent change in the form of our city government is, that Duluth is destined in the near future to become a large city. This fact alone presents for our consideration the following questions:

1. Is the commission form of government adapted to large cities?

2. If not, can it be modified to meet this difficulty?

To answer the first question we must note some of the good results derived from the commission form of government in smaller cities and see if the same results will follow the new plan in large cities.

The two most important results derived from the commission form of government in small cities are, the elimination of the political machine and the abolition of ward lines. The former is the more important of these for the political machine is the greater evil; it caused and filled the gap between the voters and their representatives and so separated the voters from their government. The elimination of the political machine brings the voters and their representative closer together and, as the real difference between the present form of government and the commission plan comes at the point of contact between the government and the people, there can be little doubt that the abolition of the machine is the greatest benefit derived from the new plan.

The abolition of the political machine has been accomplished by compelling the candidate to swear that he represents no political organization and by having a ballot which carries no party emblem or name. These requirements practically do away with the necessity for a machine in small cities, because the people can transact their simple business with the candidates for so few offices without organizing. But in large cities it is different, for great electorates are so clumsy that they cannot even do a simple task without organizing for it. The very difference in the size of the electorate in large cities as compared with those now governed by commission is sufficient to change completely the nature of the election contest.

In a small city a candidate for a conspicuous office like that of a member of a commission can within a short time meet every voter personally. The expense in connection with a campaign addressed to 6,000 voters is not enormous, the mailing of a pamphlet to all the voters is not a very costly or difficult task and the average business man or loving man can undertake it. Candidates do not depend upon the support of a political organization to stand an equal chance.

How about the large city? Here personal acquaintance must count for very little, for even the most prominent men in a large city are seldom known by more than a tenth of the people. The expense in connection with a campaign addressed to 50,000 voters in a city of 260,000 population is beyond the means of the average man and the addressing of a circular to all the voters is a difficult and costly task. The matter of organizing clubs, arranging for halls, advertising the meetings and drawing the crowds is both an enormous and expensive proposition and is in itself a job for a political expert who is a capable organizer and successful in the art of "making the multitude hear." A candidate for the office of commissioner to be successful would be obliged to build up a costly machine and would have to be a millionaire.

It would seem therefore that the commission plan of government, with the commission elected at large, is not adapted to large cities.

Now can the commission plan be modified to meet this difficulty? The answer is, yes. Then in what does this modification consist? Simply in retaining an apparent evil—in dividing the large city into as many districts as there are members of the commission and letting each district elect one member. The number of voters to be reached by any one candidate will not be larger than in the small city and the expense of campaigning will be correspondingly small. The large city will then reap the same benefits from the commission form of government as the small city, for the political machine will be eliminated and the voters brought close to their government.

Ward lines under the commission plan will not be the same evil they proved to be under the present form of government. The harm to a city lies not in merely having ward lines but in the idea of the voters that their representatives are sent to the council to represent only their respective wards. Destroy this idea by removing the cause and ward lines may be safely retained. What gives a voter this idea is his knowledge of the fact that no one in the council except his alderman takes any interest in his ward. Under the commission form of government it will be the duty of each member of the commission to manage a department and manage it well and that means that he must consider the city as a unit and must show no favoritism or neglect of any ward. When election comes round the question will be not how much good did he do for his own ward but how well did he manage his department. The commission plan with few ward lines retained is therefore not so bad after all, especially for the large city.

If Duluth is expected to become a large city it might be well to take into account the foregoing questions in considering the commission form of government.

J. J. ROBINSON.

Duluth, Nov. 28.

HAS DRUNK ALL KINDS OF LIQUOR AND STILL LIVES.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Permit me to answer Mrs. Mary J. Jaques.

During twenty-five years in four countries I have been drinking all sorts of liquors—from mild Rudesheimer to stronger French cognac, Chartreuse and whisky here of the better grades; even Swedish punch and Cranvih, or Norwegian aguaviz. Have also tried French absinthe and Mexican mescal, etc. A good many of your readers will know what I mean. Here in this country look into the "Bartender's Guide" from "night caps" to "morning glories." In fact, I know the bill of fare of the hotel bars even in this country. I don't suppose that Mrs. Jaques is able to follow my arguments. But, please, let her not suppose that I am a wine agent or a saloon keeper. Quite the reverse. Have made my living in other pursuits. Mrs. Jaques won't even see the reason why I did not get delirium tremens and was planted under the sod long ago. Sad to contemplate and contrary to all Mrs. Jaques' reason, I was not.

Her reason: As we say in kitchen French and on the bills of fare: "Je suis las: Je me sans fatique." In plain English slang it makes me tired.

Whence comes the fact that a fellow like me, going his whole life contrary to all W. C. T. U. reason, is not planted yet? Probably because I never was intemperately temperate, or vice versa. What is the reason of drunkenness if I may ask Mrs. Jaques? The reason is the dividend system and "business smartness." See your lumber jacks. The reason is excise taxes and adulterated liquor, and brutal saloon keeping. The reason is W. C. T. U. closing canteens. Excuse me from being impolite to the ladies. The reason is the general cussedness of present conditions, and the wrongheadedness of us all.

"There is a reason."

PONTI FACX.

Duluth, Nov. 28.

LEISURE IN LUXURY'S LAP.

From William Hard's "The Wasters," in December Everybody's: You see a little crowd of women come into the Mandarin tearoom of the St. Du Barry in Novellapolis in the fresh West. When they remove their automobile veils you see that they were once, and very recently, the nicest sort of members of the sewing circle and the W. C. T. U. of Lone Tree Crossing.

When the waiter comes along with their cocktails and they begin to sip them out of their teacups, you wake up with a jerk to realize that it's 3:30 in the afternoon and the evening has begun.

How rapid it all is!

There's Margaret Simpson. A few years ago you might have seen her pumping the water for Jim's breakfast, cleaning the lamps and picking bugs off the potato vines.

Jim came to town. He struck it poor. Then he struck it rich. He owns a bunch of moving picture places. He manufactures a patented bottle stopper. He's a pavement contractor. His wife has just as much leisure as any duchess.

The duchess has her individual estate and resources, which make it possible for her to lead an almost complete social life within her own walls. But never mind! Margaret has the downtown district, co-operatively owned, co-operatively maintained, magnificently equipped with bright boudoirs in the rest rooms of the department stores, with wonderful conservatories where one may enter and gaze and pay no more attention to the orist than to one's own gardener, with sumptuous drawing rooms, like the purple parlor of the St. Du Barry, with body servants in the beauty shops, with coachmen on the taxicabs, with seclusion in the ladies' department of the Novellapolis Athletic club—an infinitely resourceful estate, which Margaret knows as intimately as the duchess knows hers.

This morning she hunted down a new reduction plant on the eighteenth floor of the Beauty Block and weighed in at 185 on the white enamel scales and after an hour of Thermo-Vibro-Magneto-Magenta-Edison-Company light-therapy weighed out at 182-8.

At luncheon she ate only puree of tomatoes, creamed chicken and sweetbreads, Boston brown bread and butter, orange punch and Lady Baltimore cake, severely cutting out the potatoes.

After luncheon she spent an hour in a tiny room which had mirrors all around it and a maid (as trim and French accented as any maid any duchess could have) and a couple of fitters and a head fitter. It ended up with: "Do you mean to tell me that after all the reducing and dieting I've been doing I can't wear under a twenty-seven? It's ridiculous. I tell you what. Measure me for a made-to-order. These stock sizes all run large. If it's made to order I can wear a twenty-six as easy as anybody."

Purposely Misunderstood.

Buffalo News: She glided into the office and approached the publisher's desk.

"I have written a poem," she began.

"Well!" queried the publisher, with a look intended to annihilate.

"I have written a poem," she clanly repeated, "on 'My Father's Barn,' and—"

"Oh!" interrupted the publisher. "You don't know how greatly I am relieved! A poem written on your father's barn? I was afraid it was written on paper and that you wanted me to publish it. If I ever happen to drive by your father's barn I'll stop and read it."

Reform of Evening Dress.

Christian Science Monitor: There is a widespread popular impression, amounting almost to a conviction, that the first movement for the reformation of evening dress began at Thebes under Ptolemy IV, and that it reached its height under Thothmes III. Archeologists have been discovering in the excavations of that ancient city, and in others, evidence of changes, sometimes gradual, sometimes sudden, in the style of evening dress for both sexes, which goes far toward sustaining the theory that the movement for reform in this particular was carried on practically without cessation throughout ancient times.

In modern times, of course, there never has been a period without its crying demand for the abolition of the spike-tailed coat, the two-button waistcoat and the starched shirt. Athens and Rome had their evening dress reform associations; the agitation for the elimination of the swallowtail was kept up through the Middle Ages; and for the last century or two, when things have been otherwise dull in London and Paris and other European capitals, movements to crush the silk hat and the starched shirt have taken hold of public sentiment, and have been checked only through the influence of the waiters' unions.

For these reasons excitement or alarm over the announcement from New York that the anti-evening clothes agitation is about to be resumed, with music and refreshments, at a well-known New York hotel, will be wholly unnecessary. New York has not been quite itself since the close of the recent campaign. It must have something to occupy its thoughts in its leisure hours, and nothing could be more natural than that it should gather at a hotel and listen, amid flowers, music and refreshments, to eloquent denunciation of the prevalent styles of evening clothes. Everybody will doubtless have on the obnoxious attire, as has been the custom in all periods of agitation from Thebes to Manhattan, but this will not matter. It would matter only if some of them should appear in something else.

The Sower and His Seed.

He planted an oak in his father's park
And a thought in the minds of men,
And he bade farewell to his native shore,
Which he never will see again.
Oh, merrily stream the tourist throng
To the glow of the Southern sky;
A vision of pleasure beckons them on.
But he went there to die.

The oak will grow, and its boughs will spread,
And many rejoice in its shade,
But none will visit the distant grave
Where a stranger youth is laid;
And the thought will live when the oak has died,
And quicken the minds of men,
But the name of the thinker has vanished away,
And will never be heard again.
—William E. N. Lecky.

At the School of Philanthropy.

Bolton Hall, in Life: "Standard Oil Soc—no, I mean Standard School—I mean Conservative Sociologists, say that the poor need aspiration—what they most want is a want," said the professor.

"We want supper now," said the shirt-waist striker.

"That's not what I mean," said the professor. "I mean an abstract want."

"What's an abstract want—the want of something that you have to abstract from them?" asked the scholar.

"No! That's Socialism or Anarchism—or Pragmatism at least. You ought to know that an abstract want is a soul aspiration, something that can't be got."

"You mean enough to eat, then" said the shirt-waist striker.

"Nonsense," cried the professor. "These are prosperous times and the food supply is always short in times of prosperity; look at the high prices of stocks and of merchandise."

"Yes, and of food, too," said the scholar; "look at meat and eggs."

"Oh," said the striker, "we can't look at them, they've gone up out of sight."

"Then," said the professor triumphantly, "they are an Aspiration."

MINNESOTA OPINIONS.

Up to the Democrats.

Glenwood Herald: The Democrats now that they have gained control of the house will have to remember that it was Republican votes who gave them this advantage and that it will be necessary for them to make good during the next two years if their control is to be lasting. If they do not make good they will find that their present advantage will result in Republican gains again in the future.

Granpa Gassaway Pops Up.

Carlton Vidette: It's all the family down in West Virginia. Now that Katherine Elkins is getting out of the limelight, up bobs Granpa Gassaway for a seat in the senate along with Papa Elkins.

Boquet for Walter J.

Sauk Center Herald: Walter J. Smith of Eveleth, elected state treasurer on the Republican ticket Nov. 8, is one of the finest fellows in Minnesota today. Young, able, honest, industrious, a man of strict integrity, Mr. Smith will take to the office the ability to conduct the financial affairs of the state in a manner that will reflect credit upon himself and also upon the judgment of the voters who elected him.

Burke Is a Coming Man.

Little Falls Herald: John Burke of North Dakota is certainly a remarkable man. His election as governor three times in succession is as remarkable a feat as John A. Johnson's three victories, and in some respects the odds were greater against Burke. He is a coming man.

Something Wrong Somewhere.

Moose Lake Star-Gazette: Not being able to convict the grafters, Illinois is undertaking the arduous task of trying to convict the jurors who acquitted the grafters.

Fuss and Improvement.

Pine River Sentinel: An item in the daily press says the "Indian Race is Improving." Heaven knows there has been enough fuss over them during the past year to drive them one way or the other.

Only Sensible Suggestion.

Red Wing Free Press: The suggestion that the county option question be taken out of party politics and submitted to the people on its own merits in individual and separate form as a special amendment, or something of that sort, is the only sensible one we have ever heard or read of in connection with the subject. In its present parasitical form it is a mere political menace and nothing else.

Hammond Party's Big Man.

Madison Independent-Press: Mr. Hammond of St. Louis, has demonstrated that he is the biggest man in the Democratic party of Minnesota, and while we are about it, we may as well say that he will be about the only man from Minnesota in the lower house of the next congress who will cut much figure as he will be on the majority side, a place he had not heretofore occupied during his congressional career.

"REORGANIZE," IS THE SLOGAN.

Roseau Region: The Minnesota Bankers' association intends to make it known to the next legislature that it favors an appropriation of $100,000 a year for advertising the resources of and for carrying on the work of directing desirable immigration into Minnesota. Before the association in question urges this appropriation its membership should make a thorough investigation into the state immigration bureau. Results have not been forthcoming from the department and to dump money into it under the system prevailing is of doubtful benefit to the state. Let that county be heard from that has gained settlers through the efforts of this department? Criticism is not directed at individuals, but against a system that is too feeble to direct affairs it is supposed to handle. Reorganization will remedy present defects. The legislature will be asked to appropriate another $100,000 for protection of forests against fire, and bills are being drafted by budding politicians all over the state embodying this large appropriation. The forests must be protected, but money alone will not do it. Any person at all informed knows that the forest fires that have been so destructive this summer would have raged in spite of any amount of money at the disposition of the state fire commissioner, and for the reason that the fire protection system under the present management is a joke. No serious attempt has ever been made by that department to be of real service and incompetence is met with whatever it is approached. Reorganization must precede appropriation in this department if forests and human life are to be protected. Another large appropriation will be asked for the game and fish department, for the drainage commission, and for the other state boards and commissions. Before appropriations are made for any of them by the next legislature, an honest effort must be made to unite and harmonize all these bureaus and commissions into a department with definite policies and personal responsibility.

Good Government Has Business Value.

Chicago Daily News: American business men have been too prone to regard political corruption as something that is morally baneful but financially profitable.

Bad government means waste, and the producers of the community must ultimately bear the burden resulting from the waste. They must pay taxes without securing an equivalent in service. Good government, on the other hand, brings not only contentment to the people thus served, but higher property values, better facilities for doing business and opportunities for enjoyment that attract outsiders with money to spend.

Graft methods are exceedingly wasteful, in that the grafters in taking their illegitimate toll cause the loss of more than they actually steal. This was illustrated by disclosures in the Illinois Central case. It was shown that good cars were wantonly dismantled in order that the grafters might make a profit of a few hundred dollars in repairing them.

If business men could eliminate the direct and indirect burdens of dishonest and inefficient government they would have more profits to distribute among their stockholders. "Look into the corporations in which you own stock," says Rudolph Spreckles. "Take an interest in their management and strive once more to raise the standard of business in the land; make it honest and a credit to the country. You will find that it will pay you not only in raising your self-esteem, but it will pay you in dollars and cents."

The elimination of corruption in business, Mr. Spreckles declares, would likewise eliminate it from politics. He spoke from experience in making his suggestions. Mr. Spreckles was drawn into the battle for municipal honesty in San Francisco through his efforts to purify the business methods of a corporation in which he was heavily interested.

Old Song.

I cannot wear the old hair
I wore some months gone by.
I've laid it on the topmost shelf
With many a weary sigh.
No longer are they wearing puffs,
And rats are quite de trop;
I cannot wear the old hair—
Oh, what a cruel blow!

I cannot wear the old hair,
For which good gold I paid.
Red hair is so expensive when
One gets the proper shade.
I felt so dreadful when it was coiffed,
And little puffs and curls;
But I can't wear the old hair,
Alas for Fashion's whirls!

I cannot wear the old hair.
Four switches I must buy
And wind them round and round my head
As flat as they will lie.
My face is far too plump for this;
My nose is much too long;
But I can't wear the old hair,
It's altogether wrong.

A MOMENT WITH THE WITS.

Philadelphia Inquirer: "Suppose," hissed the villain, "suppose our plot should leak out?"

"That's all right," said his accomplice, consolingly. "It can't. Don't you remember telling me five minutes ago that it had thickened?"

Washington Star: "Going to the North Pole is no pleasure trip," said the sympathetic friend.

"Well," answered the Arctic explorer, "it reminds me somewhat of the average pleasure trip. Everybody is so anxious to star and so glad to get home."

Chicago Record-Herald: "Do you know," asked the doctor, "that there are about 10,000,000 microbes in you?"

"No," said little Elsie, "them ain't microbes. I have ot scratch that way because mamma made me put on woolens this morning."

Harper's Weekly: "When young fellers gets a courtin," said Farmer Corntossel, "they sure goes plumb crazy, an' that boy Sam o' mine ain't no exception."

"So Sam's started, eh?" queried the nearest neighbor.

"Started? I should say so!" exclaimed Farmer Corntossel. "Why, didn't he go inter town yesterd'y an' blow in half a dollar for a toothbrush?"

Spare the Senate.

Life: The Socialists propose to abolish the senate. We hope that the proposal will be abortive. True enough, the senate is not exactly what the makers of our government intended it to be, but it is more. It is something bigger and better and more important.

So far as our public work is concerned, the senate is not at all necessary, but what would become of those several score millionaires to whom the senate offers a convenient outlet for energies that have tired of mere money-making? When we have taken a young man of tender years and so carefully cultivated his faculties for accumulating property that he finds himself in middle life with more than he knows what to do with, it is our duty to provide him safe harbor for his over-abundant power. Unless we do this right thing, he is liable to get into mischief. He might go prowling about the streets at night and getting into bad company. But, if we put him in the senate, we know what to worry about him. We don't have to worry about the daily papers furnish reports of his daily movements.

CURLERS NEEDING SOME MORE ROOM

Virginia Club Will Have to Enlarge Its Quarters at Once.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—As the membership of the Virginia Curling club has become so large that the two rinks now used by the club is not sufficient to give all the members a chance to play more than about twice per week, the club has given notice to the proprietors of the roller rink, which building adjoins that of the curling club, to vacate the premises before Dec. 22. The present ground quarters of the club and the adjoining 100 feet west is under lease to the club from the Oliver Iron Mining company, and as the club is desirous of adding three more sheets of ice, it was necessary to order the rink proprietors to vacate. The club made an endeavor to rent the roller rink building, but gave up the idea because of too high a rental demanded by the proprietors thereof. The club is, however, willing to purchase the building at its appraised value, and if such a deal cannot be consummated, the building will have to be removed from the premises to make room for a new one to be erected by the club. The club now has a membership of about seventy, and as there are already eighteen rinks ready for play, the present quarters are not large enough to accommodate the number who are desirous of playing at least three or four games per week.

The skips will select their own rinks. The ice is being prepared and it is expected that by tomorrow curling will be begun in earnest.

Many trophies will be put up by the different members of the club, and already a great deal of interest is being manifested in the sport. The club members are going to put forth their best efforts to win the championship of the range, and especially are they after the scalps of the Eveleth curlers. They will also put in some good stiff practice preparatory to sending rinks to the Northwestern bonspiel to be held in Duluth and the bonspiel to be held in Winnipeg the coming winter, with a view to carrying off some of the prizes which will be offered at these meets.

FACIAL WRINKLES FROM SORE FEET

Tells Quick Relief Treatment.

Doctors and persons who have made a study of such matters all claim that there are more prematurely wrinkled faces from sore feet than from worry or sickness. All who suffer the tortures of sore feet will be glad to know of this simple but remarkable remedy said to be the most effective known to science. Bathe the feet from ten to fifteen minutes in a basin of hot water in which two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound has been dissolved. This immediately draws out all the soreness and shrinks corns and callouses so they can easily be peeled off. The feet will feel most delightfully fresh and comfortable. For old corns and collouses it may be necessary to repeat this for several nights for a complete cure. Bad smelling and tender feet generally need but a few treatments. Ingrown toe nails are also quickly relieved. Calocide is strictly a scientific preparation well known to doctors. Any druggist has it in stock or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Twenty-five cents buys sufficient quantity to put the worst feet in fine condition, so it doesn't pay to suffer and look haggard.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Brydenthal Find Deserted Child.

A 5-week-old baby girl was found on the front doorstep of their home about 8 o'clock last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Brydenthal. This is the third case of child desertion of this kind reported in the last three months.

The attention of the Brydenthals was attracted to the infant by its wailings. Opening the door, Mrs. Brydenthal was able to discern that it was an abandoned child, but having scarlet fever in the house she was unable to take it indoors. She telephoned to a neighbor, who promptly took it in.

Chief Troyer went immediately to the scene upon being notified a few minutes later. He was unable to discover any clue as to the identity of the parents. The baby was wrapped in clothes of rather poor material and bundled in a heavy comforter. It was later taken to the children's home.

Just outside the depot he set the grip down for a moment to readjust his muffler, according to the story told the police, and when he had finished the grip was gone.

He reported his loss to the police, but they have little information on which to work.

TAKES OPTION ON COAL LAND

M. H. Alworth and Associates Will Enter the Alberta Fields.

M. H. Alworth of this city, and associates, have taken an option to purchase a controlling interest in 6,000 acres of coal lands in Southwestern Alberta. An extensive system of exploration and development will be instituted at once. The coal is said to be high grade lignite. The property is twelve miles from a railroad from which a spur will be constructed.

Andrew Laidlaw of Spokane, Wash., was in Duluth yesterday when he closed the deal with Mr. Alworth.

MEETING OF THE COMMISSIONERS

County Board Will Meet at Courthouse Wednesday of Next Week.

The regular monthly meeting of the board of county commissioners will be held in the county board room at the courthouse Dec. 7. On the day before the commissioners will meet as a committee of the whole. From present indications the meeting will be a quiet one as but little business has as yet been presented to Clerk J. O. Walker.

The only matter of importance that is known of at this time, is the payment of $2,000 to the St. Louis County Agricultural society.

Four years ago the board appropriated the sum of $400 a year to the society, the money to be used for premiums. The money has never been paid because the vouchers have never been presented in a correct form.

D. D. McEachin, secretary of the association, will be present at the meeting and will present vouchers for the full amount coming to the association under the appropriation, $2,000.

There are numerous road petitions, applications for liquor licenses and other matters to be discussed by the county commissioners. The meeting is the first to be held since the recent election.

PURE FOOD SHOW FOR TEN DAYS

Space in First Street Store Room Filled With Attractive Exhibits.

The Pure Food show, which is to be given under the auspices of the Retail Grocers' association at 222 and 224 West First street, will be opened to the public tomorrow night and will continue for ten days.

The committee in charge of the work this year says that the show is the best ever. The members have worked hard to make it a big success and practically every space is now decorated and occupied.

All the wholesale houses of the city have exhibits, as well as the smaller jobbers and packers. Many of the firms will manufacture articles on a small scale at the show so that the public may see just how the articles are made.

A feature of the show will be the cooking demonstrations by Miss Willis. She is a graduate of Mrs. Borer's school and also of the Philadelphia Cooking school. She will have some interesting things to tell and show the women.

The decorations are this year probably the most artistic ever put up in the city. D. A. Kelly has had charge of the work. He supervised the work of constructing the booths and hanging the colors and has already received many compliments on his work.

COUNCIL WANTS RIGHT TO BUY ELECTRIC PLANT

Enabling Act for Issuance of Bonds to Be Introduced Again.

Amendment Providing for Band Concerts Will Be Submitted.

The city council last night went on record as favoring the municipal ownership of the electric light plant, passing a resolution that the next legislature be urged to pass an enabling act to allow Duluth to issue bonds above the present maximum for that purpose.

Attention was called to the fact that the contract closed with the Duluth-Edison Electric company Sept. 1, 1906, expires Sept. 1, 1911, and that it is important that the city be in a position to take over the plant.

City Clerk Harry W. Cheadle, senator-elect from the Fifty-first district, was directed to send a copy of the resolution to each member of the legislative delegation from this section. Efforts have been made in the past to secure the passage of similar legislation, but without success.

* * *

The city attorney was directed to prepare the proper resolution for the council to pass, to place the request of the board of water and light commissioners for a $300,000 bond issue on the ballot at the coming city election in February. The money, if the bond issue is approved by the voters, will be devoted to extending and improving the system. An issue of $200,000 was recently authorized, with interest at 4 per cent, which was too low to enable the board to dispose of the bonds. The proposed issue will call for a rate of 4½ per cent.

The charter commission was requested to submit an amendment to the charter at the coming election providing for band concerts in the parks. A similar amendment was submitted at a recent election, but because it was so far down the list among numerous other amendments, it failed of passage by a small margin. The proposition has been generally indorsed throughout the city. At the time The Herald gave a series of band concerts in different parks they were attended by crowds of people, proving their popularity beyond question. The expense would be comparatively light, but as the charter stands at present there is no provision whereby the park board can give these band concerts.

The rather unusual spectacle of an attorney asking the city council to sit as a jury in a personal injury case which he had filed against the city was witnessed last night when Attorney J. H. Whitely requested that the city compensate John Lindman for injuries which he had sustained through the alleged negligence of the city. Prefacing his remarks with the statement that it is a recognized fact in the legal profession that a personal injury suit against the city is one of the hardest on which to obtain a favorable verdict, he told a sad story of the hardships which had been undergone by his client, adding that unless relief is obtained from the city he and his aged wife will be obliged to go to the poor farm. Attorney Whitely stated that Lindman came back from the poor farm a comparatively short time ago, with his right hand about useless following blood poisoning. On Nov. 4, on his way to work, he declared that Lindman tripped on a spike in the walk on East Fifth street, fracturing two bones of his left hand, rendering both hands practically helpless. He explained that Lindman is one of the oldest residents of Duluth and had been one of the sub-contractors who helped pave Superior street years ago. The matter was referred to the city attorney. Mr. Whitely desired the council to direct a settlement for a stated amount. In his notice of injuries he asked $1,000.

The bid of the N. J. Upham company for the $50,000 park bond issue was accepted. The proceeds of the sale will be used for improving and extending the park system, including the acquisition of playgrounds in all parts of the city. Arrangements have been practically concluded for the disposition of the bonds to local citizens. It is understood that part of the property to be acquired will be paid for in bonds, the owners having agreed to take them instead of cash.

Following the report of City Engineer Thomas F. McGilvray relative to the conditions of bridges between Seventy-first avenue west and New Duluth, along the proposed street car route, the engineering department was directed to prepare specifications and plans, with the estimated cost, of a concrete culvert and fill at Grand avenue and Trader's court, of a concrete culvert and fill at Ninety-third avenue west, and for repairing the bridge at One Hundredth avenue west. The first two will replace the bridges now at those locations.

* * *

The Klippen-Sloan controversy over the roadway adjacent to the park at Twenty-sixth avenue west, was temporarily settled. The resolution directing the board of public works to do the work at the expense of the property owners, was lost. This leaves Sloan the victor, for the time at least. Later in the evening a resolution was introduced directing the city attorney to compel Sloan to remove part of his house from the street and avenue, on which part of it is now said to stand. This was laid over a week.

* * *

The plans of the Canadian Northern for crossing Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth avenues, were approved. The specifications call for poles in the middle of Fifty-ninth avenue west, which is the widest they have to cross. The aldermen from that ward stated that this met with the opposition of the residents of West Duluth and for that reason that part of the plans was laid over until later. City Engineer McGilvray reported that the nature of the crossing over Grand avenue is still being discussed by him and the company engineer.

* * *

The engineering department estimated that $70,000 would pay for a sanitary trunk sewer from the end of the Woodland car line to Tischer's creek, emptying at St. Marie street. This would also provide for septic tanks. This estimate was called for some time ago, when the Woodland trunk sewer was the subject of much controversy.

* * *

The Duluth Telephone company asked that it be granted an extension of time until June 1 for putting its wires underground on Fifth avenue west from First street to the water line. The company explained that it would be practically impossible to do this after winter sets in. They stated that the wires in First alley between Lake and Third avenue east will be finished by Feb. 1. The request was referred to a committee.

* * *

A resolution was passed directing that a watchman be stationed on Rice's point at the railroad crossing on Birch avenue. It was stated that about fifty men and a number of girls cross their daily.

* * *

The Duluth State bank in the West end was designated as a city depositary under the same conditions as the other banks in the city.

HER HAND AND ARM BURNED AND ITCHED

Could Hardly Sleep at Night for About 11 Months. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and was Completely Cured.

"My mother had a red spot on her right hand which began to grow worse rapidly. The neighbors said it was a tetter. She got some medicine from a doctor, but it did not do any good. In about a week the tetter began to break out on her arm too. She used five or six different kinds of liniments and three different kinds of salves. Not one of these did her a particle of good. Her hand and arm would burn and itch so much that she could hardly sleep at night. Her hand was that way for about eleven months. Finally a friend of ours recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment to us. She bought some immediately and began to use it. She washed her hand and arm with Cuticura Soap and warm water. Then she applied the Cuticura Ointment and bandaged her hand up. The next morning we all noticed a great improvement. Before she had used a half of a box of Ointment and a very little Soap her hand was completely cured. Now her hand is as well as ever. I think Cuticura Soap and Ointment is the greatest skin remedy ever discovered. C. E. Canady, San Leandro, Cal., Mar. 7, 1910."

Cuticura Remedies afford the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. A cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and a box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston. ALL READY FOR Y. M. C. A. CIRCUS

Annual Event at Association Will Be More Elaborate Than Ever.

The Y. M. C. A. circus opens tonight. In years past the show has made good and the friends of the association know that a highly entertaining evening will be provided.

The circus proper, or the main show will begin at 8:15. The side shows will open at 7:30. In these side shows the wonders of the world will be exhibited. Some of the wonders have never been on show before and they may be a trifle nervous. Attendants will see that no one is injured.

Yesterday the two rings were constructed in the gymnasium and regular circus seats erected. Last night there was a dress rehearsal of the whole show, and it went off like clockwork.

The show will open with a parade of all the performers; music will be furnished by a clown band. Between the acrobatic and difficult acts there will be clown stunts, burlesque acts and new features never before introduced into a circus performance.

The circus will have a run of two nights, tonight and tomorrow. During the performance well known men will pass through the audience selling peanuts, lemonade, popcorn. There will be cane racks, nigger babies, at which you may throw balls, and as many other games as you care to call for.

The acts will be put on in the following order: Horizantal bar work and wand drill, clown burlesque boxing match, knock-about acrobatic act and strong man in weight lifting, burlesque orchestra, Scottish dances with bagpiper and dancers attired in kilts, clown shooting gallery, trick bicycle riding, burlesque magician, two young ladies in Hungarian dances, voracious baby, parallel bar work by class, clown contest in tether ball; Maud, the educated mule, eccentric dances, including tumbling and dancing, acrobatic acts by Grenner brothers and Sherrer.

THE PURE FOOD LAW—A MAGNIFICENT VICTORY

Never was such a law more needed than in this country, nor more welcome than to us, who have suffered enormously from the fraudulent imitation of popular labels. This law, some years ago, would have saved us hundreds of thousands of dollars. Yet, to our amazement, a law designed to protect honest manufacturers no less than the public, was immediately made the pretext for an attack upon our world-wide and previously unimpeached reputation. After a costly contest, lasting four years, we have gained a signal and complete victory: in doing which, we have also shown that the law is the just measure it was intended to be.

We have not, as the public has been led to believe, obstructed the PURE FOOD LAW nor opposed the views of the GOVERNMENT. We have simply resisted a mere Bureau's usurpation of authority, and its novel and preposterous theories, submission to which would have driven us out of the American market.

The story is almost incredible, and difficult to tell briefly; yet, in justice to ourselves, and to the patrons who have remained so splendidly loyal to us, we must outline the facts.

For generations, the one universally recognized impurity of Whisky has been FUSEL OIL, which we have always removed by distillation. The Bureau referred to, as late as 1904, insisted that to be "good for consumption" Whisky must have practically no FUSEL OIL.

Kentucky "Straight Whisky," when new, is rank with FUSEL OIL, but the makers always assured consumers that this noxious impurity was transformed by age into delightful ethers, etc. A few years ago it was found that age makes no change in the FUSEL OIL except to remove its vile odor. The Kentucky distillers, knowing well the aversion to FUSEL OIL, were in desperate straits; so they boldly declared that REAL Whisky new or old, must contain all the FUSEL OIL, and denounced all REFINED WHISKY as a base imitation. And the Bureau backed them up.

This is no pleasantry, but sober fact. CANADIAN CLUB WHISKY was condemned, solely because it contains practically no FUSEL OIL.

Some months ago, President Taft, after a searching investigation by the Solicitor-General, overruled the Bureau completely. Now the Attorney-General has decided that the PURE FOOD LAW does not require our label to be changed by a single letter.

At the WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION in 1893, Dr. H. W. Wiley, then, as now, Chief of the Bureau referred to, reported CANADIAN CLUB to be "pure and fully up to the examination required," and, by authority of Congress, it received an award for "Fine aroma, very pleasant taste, thorough maturity, purity and absence of alien matter," which expresses every excellence any whisky can possess. CANADIAN CLUB is the same now as then.

If any consumers really want FUSEL OIL in their whisky, they should use Kentucky "Straight Whisky:" CANADIAN CLUB will not suit them. All who desire that the PURE FOOD LAW shall be rationally administered, and not as the weapon of any one man, should send for our History of this remarkable case. Please name this paper.

"THEY SAVED MY BOY FROM DRUNKARD'S GRAVE"

And They Can Do the Same for Yours

I am a mother—And I know a mother's love for her boys and the terrible anxiety and grief which only the fangs of alcohol can cause. Many were the promises which my boy gave me to quit drinking and each time he broke them. Many were the times that I knelt in silent communion with my God and asked him to give my boy back to me—the lovable, manly, honorable boy of old—but my prayers seemed unavailing. His will power was dead, and although he tried to quit and fought valiantly against the terrible craving for alcohol, he was unable to do so, and he seemed doomed to fill a drunkard's grave. As a last resort he consented to take the

and he was cured at last. After taking the marvelous Neal Treatment, he threw his arms about me and cried, "Mother, you have saved me from a drunkard's grave." The grand Neal Treatment saved my boy for me AND IT CAN DO THE SAME FOR YOURS."

The above is but one of the many letters which come to us from happy mothers, wives and sisters whose dear ones have been saved and restored to them. It tells in a few words the story of the Neal Three Day Drink Habit Cure, which in the space of seventy-two hours will cure ANY drinking man of alcoholism—cure him perfectly and completely, destroying all appetite, desire or craving for liquor—remove all accumulated alcoholic poisons from his system—make a new man of him—in short—cure him completely of alcoholism. A periodical or habitual drinking man can no more resist the craving for alcohol than the craving for water when it is handy.

THE NEAL TREATMENT

is not merely a "sobering up" process, but a safe, perfect and thorough cure, that frees the system of every trace of alcoholic poison and takes away all craving and desire for drink. It makes no difference how confirmed the drinker, how long he has been drinking, or how much he is drinking, nor how many other treatments have failed, the Neal Treatment will effect a perfect cure, in just three days, to the entire satisfaction of the patient and the delight of his relatives and friends.

No Hypodermic Injections—No Injury to Health

The Neal Treatment is convenient to take. It cures in THREE DAYS—the saving of from three to five weeks' time means something to a busy man. There are no hypodermic injections, no substitute stimulants, no poisonous drugs—just a simple, harmless treatment which will, in three days free the system of accumulated alcoholic poison, thereby doing away with the CAUSE of physical and nerve-craving for liquor, appetite and all inclination to drink it.

EXPECTS "LID" ORDER AT BOVEY

Mayor of Town Says Indian Agent Will Probably Close Saloons.

Frank Provinske, mayor of Bovey, Minn., on the Western Mesaba iron range, was at the Lenox today. He said that the twenty-three saloons in Bovey probably would be wiped off the map in a few days if an order from W. E. Johnson, government agent, is forthcoming as expected.

"It'll be a good thing for the town to have the saloons closed for a while," said Mr. Provinske. "Personally, I have no objection to the liquor business as it doesn't concern me directly. I don't approve of too many saloons in a town, and I think they ought to be well managed. Usually licenses are issued to irresponsible people which causes a lot of trouble and a lot of friction between the saloon men and the municipality.

"If the other saloons in the territory near Bovey are closed, the abolishment of saloons in Bovey won't hurt business and won't hurt the town. On the contrary, I am inclined to think it may help business. Time will tell. I'm getting tired of the way the saloon business is conducted, and it will be a good thing for my town to experience the lid. The citizens will then be able to judge for themselves whether or not they want saloons if they ever get a chance again to have final decision in the matter."

SPANISH WAR VESSEL IS TO GO AT AUCTION.

Washington, Nov. 29.— The Winslow, on board of which Ensign Worth Bagley, the only officer in the navy killed during the Spanish-American war, lost his life, and the Siren, both of which are too antiquated for modern war purposes, will be sold to the highest bidder as a result of proposals received by the navy department up to Jan. 2, 1911, when they will be publicly opened. The Winslow, which is a torpedo boat, has been appraised at $1,768, while the value placed on the converted yacht Siren is $6,000.

The memorable experience of the Winslow during the Spanish-American war occurerd at Cardenas, Cuba, when she attracted the fire of the Spanish batteries.

Good Cough Medicine for Children and Grown Folks, Too.

"We could hardly do without Chamberlain's Cough Remedy," says Mrs. Flora Despain of Bloyd, Ky. "I found it to be so good for the croup and have used it for years. I can heartily recommend it for coughs, colds and croup in children and grown folks, too." The above shows the implicit confidence that many mothers place in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, a confidence based on many years' experience in the use of it. No one need hisitate to use this remedy for it contains no chloroform, opium or other narcotics and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. For sale by All Druggists.

BANK CLOSED BECAUSE OF UNRELIABILITY.

Bath, Maine, Nov. 29.—Inability to compete reliably with other financial institutions is the principal reason advanced by State Bank Examiner Skelton for the closing yesterday of the People's Safe Deposit and Savings bank after a career of forty-two years. The bank, on petition of Mr. Skelton, was enjoined by the supreme court from paying money and from receiving deposits.

The bank had liabilities of $870,418, including deposits of $842,786, when the last official statement was made in April last. The estimated market value of the resources was $871,910.

MR. ASQUITH IN RHYME.

William Watson Doles Out Verse on the English Premier.

London, Nov. 29.—William Watson who obtained notoriety by his attack on Mrs. Asquith in "The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue," has come out with some verses directed against that lady's husband. The poem, which is entitled "The Chief," appears in the Morning Post. It follows:

Strange and yet true in days not long
Fleeted we thought him coldly strong,
Prudent, deliberate, cautious, grave;
Moulded without a passion save
For hard chill light on level ways.
And for a lucid, well-turned phrase
His lack of genius seemed to be Itself a blest security.
Behold him now caught up and swirled
Into a wild and alien world
Where demagogues with doctrine crude
Debauch the phrase-led multitude
And truth is pawned for power
And they
Who govern must themselves obey
Him of the falcon beak and eye
That mawk like o'er them poises night
Laugh, if ye will, Olympian gods
Who watch from your unvexed abodes.
But ask not men to share your mirth,
Much-wearied men on English hearth.

Health and Beauty Hints.

BY MRS. MAE MARTYN.

L. E. H.: I don't quite understand what you mean when you say you "do not want to resort to artificial means to preserve your hair." Surely you can have no reasonable objection to using a good quinine hair tonic to stop your hair from coming out. I will give you a recipe for a remedy that works in a perfectly natural way, for it clears the scalp pores, strengthens and gives new life to the hair roots because the way is cleared for healthy growth. Get from your druggist one ounce of quinforn, dissolve it in one-half pint of alcohol, then add one-half pint of water. Rub this tonic into the scalp two or three times a week, and it will prevent forming of scale and dandruff and stop your hair from falling out. It is just fine for excessively oily hair. It refreshes and invigorates the scalp, livens up dull and brittle hair, restores natural color, and encourages long, thick, abundant and glossy growth.

P. C.: In your quest for beauty you could use all the complexion powders, creams and lotions on the market, but you will never have a smooth and beautiful complexion as long as you are troubled with indigestion, poor appetite and a sluggish liver. What you really need is a good, cleansing, systematic tonic to purify your blood, give you an appetite and clear up your skin of those pimples, sores and liver blotches. Take before each meal a tablespoonful of a tonic made by dissolving one-half cup of sugar and one ounce kardene in one-half pint alcohol, then adding enough hot water to make a quart. This is an inexpensive tonic that has done wonders for many of my friends in restoring them to good health and good looks.

A. E.: Yes, eye-glasses give any girl the appearance of being older than she really is. Do not wear them until you must. Get an ounce of crystos from your druggist, take it home and dissolve it in a pint of water and you will have an eye tonic that will relieve redness, soreness and inflammation. Drop one or two drops in each eye whenever your eyes feel tired, weak or sore. This tonic strengthens weak sight and makes the eyes clear and bright.

Patience: Your complexion will become clear, pure and refined—the admiration of all who see you, or know you—only when you give it the attention it deserves. Massaging with almozoin cream-jelly is the best blackhead remover and open pore cure I know, so get from your druggist one ounce of almozoin, dissolve it in a half-pint of cold water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine, stir well and let stand over night. Use this daily for massaging and as a face cream. The simplicity of this safe treatment and the speed with which it clears the complexion of blackheads, roughness, redness, etc., are almost beyond belief. Almozoin makes the flesh firm and fair and the skin soft and satiny.

A. S.: You have my sympathy. I can imagine how embarrassed you feel when you think people are looking at your "mustache." Why don't you try delatone to remove those wild hairs? I have never known it to fail. Just mix a little of the powder with a little water, so as to make a paste. Apply to the surface from which you wish to remove the hairs, let remain two or three minutes, then wipe off the paste and wash the skin thoroughly with warm water. Delatone is rather expensive, and your druggist will charge a dollar for one ounce, but it is much cheaper than electrolysis. Repeat the application of delatone if the hairs should return. They will be thinner and lighter each time until they finally go for good. Mix the paste fresh for each application.

Mrs. J.: Very few of the so-called "egg-shampoos" contain eggs in any appreciable quantity. A shampoo with eggs is a rather difficult and "mussy" undertaking. Why don't you use plain canthrox? Then your shampoo will be a pleasure instead of a torment, your head will be absolutely clean, and your hair will be beautifully soft and pliant. Just dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water, pour a little on the head at a time, rub as you would with any other shampoo; then rinse your scalp and hair in the clean warm water. Canthrox makes plenty of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, removes dandruff and relieves itching. It will not fade the hair, make it dry or brittle, or cause it to streak, like some soaps do. After a canthrox shampoo, your hair dries quickly, and it is fluffy and bright so that you can dress it quickly and neatly.

Q.: Yes, I know what the sun and wind have been doing to your complexion. Use this beauty lotion and you won't be so discouraged: Dissolve four ounces of spurmax in a half-pint of hot water, add two teaspoonfuls of glycerine and let cool. Apply to the face, neck and forearms with the palm of the hand, rubbing gently until dry. Spurmax refreshes, cools and whitens the skin. It removes freckles, tan, dryness, sallowness, chapping and cracking of the skin due to heat, wind or weather. Use it daily instead of face powder. Us it freely; it won't rub off or show like powder.

Mrs. K. C.: You should begin taking a good, safe, flesh-reducing remedy at once, as the tendency is for one to take on extra flesh during the winter months. By dissolving four ounces of parnotis in 1½ pints hot water and taking a tablespoonful before each meal, you will remove your excess flesh rapidly without any ill effects and have a more shapely figure. This remedy is harmless and has proven a wonderful source of relief to many, many ladies who were troubled with over-fatness.

TO TALK FAIR AT BRAINERD

Three Delegates From Superior Will Attend Development Association Meet.

Will Present Merits of Tri-State Fair to the Convention.

The Tri-State Fair proposition, which had its inception in Superior and has gained many friends in both Duluth and Superior since it was first heard, will be placed before the Northern Minnesota Development association at its meeting this week at Brainerd.

A committee consisting of Mayor Frank Crumpton of Superior, Emmuel Rossiter, chairman of the Douglas county board, and T. H. Fairfax of Superior will go to Brainerd to explain the project to the Minnesota body. They hope to impress the gathering so well that the association will give the proposition its aproval.

Mr. Fairfax, who has been one of the most active advocates of the Tri-State Fair, says that the proposed site for the fair is ideal. The Stimson tract of land, which has been chosen as the site, lies with its northern end at the junction of the Wisconsin Central with the Northern Pacific line running from South Superior to Old Town. The southern part lies on the Nemadji river.

Mr. Fairfax says that the objection that the Stimson tract is too far from Duluth to be practicable for the fair is not well taken. He says that if one point of a compass were placed on the Soo depot at Duluth and the other point on the Stimson tract and when a circle were drawn with the Soo depot as a center, the circumstances would pass near Ironton and Lester river. He said that if a similar tract were to be obtained on this side of the bay, it would have to be far outside of the city limits and would be much more expensive than the tract in view.

The advocates of the fair project expect to work up great interest in it in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan and they say that if the encouragement they have already received continues, there is little doubt but that the project will materialize.

SENATOR NELSON'S AGED MOTHER DIES

Deerfield, Wis., Nov. 29.—Mrs. Ingeborg Nelson, mother of Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, died at the home of a younger son here early Sunday morning of old age. She was 96 years old on Nov. 18.

At her bedside when death came were her three sons, Senator Nelson, William of this village and Henry of Whitewater, also two grandsons and two great-grandsons.

Mrs. Nelson was born in Voss, Norway, Nov. 18, 1814. Her father was a peasant who owned a small farm at

MRS. INGEBORG NELSON.

Evanger, about fifty English miles from Bergen. She emigrated to America with her 6-year-old son, Knute, in 1849, and lived for a time in Chicago. Later she removed to La Grange, Walworth county, Wis., and in 1853 settled on a farm in Deerfield township, near this village. That was her home till 1883, when, upon the death of her husband, she came to make her home in the house on the hill.

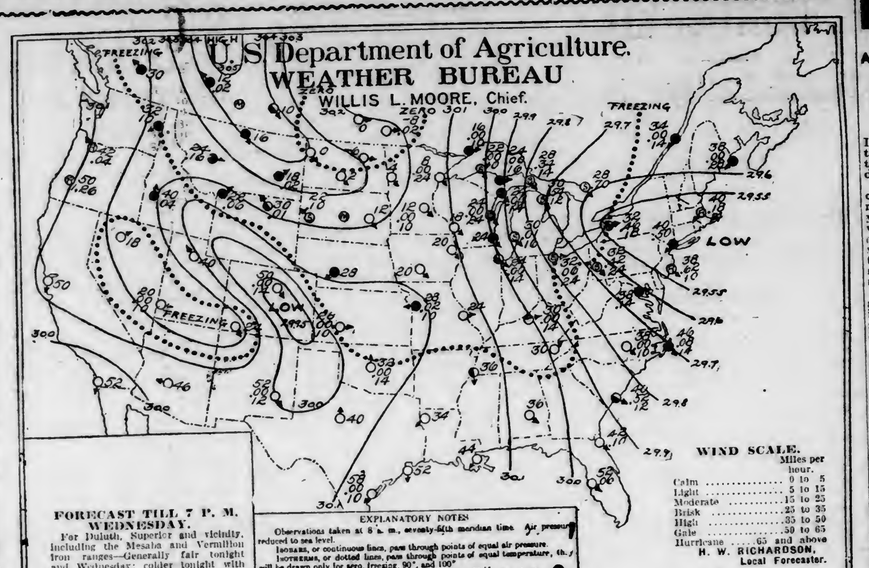

Mrs. Nelson's health had always been good and her life was a happy one. From the time he was a boy she took pride in her eldest son, Knute, saying while he attended school that he was destined to achieve greatness. She had three children altogether—the senator, William, a well-known attorney of Deerfield, and Henry, a prosperous farmer.

Mrs. Nelson was highly esteemed and popular. Kindness of heart and hospitality were her most conspicuous traits of character. It is related that while she lived on the farm in Deerfield township no friend was allowed to pass her door without being stopped and invited into the house to drink a cup of her excellent coffee and partake of her "kringler," "bakkles" or "fladtbrod," and other favorite examples of Norwegian baking.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

Beautiful weather prevailed a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:31 and it will set at 4:22 this evening, giving eight hours and fifty-one minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The barometer has risen throughout the Northwest and over the Southeastern states, attended by a general fall in temperature over those districts. Zero weather prevails in North Dakota, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. A strong area of high pressure is central over Alberta. Low pressure areas centered over Colorado and New York states have respectively caused rain or snow in the extreme Northwest, the Lake region and along the Atlantic coast. The Colorado disturbance has also caused warmer weather throughout the Southwest. Indications favor zero temperatures in St. Louis and Douglas counties tonight."

NEARLY 2,000 LICENSES HAVE BEEN ISSUED.

Although there is but one more day of the deer season left, licenses are still in demand at the county auditor's office at the courthouse.

Nearly 2,000 licenses have been issued to residents of St. Louis county during the present season. It has been the busiest season at the hunting license counter yet experienced and the county is ahead nearly $2,000, there having been issued but one license to a man from outside the state.

Green Room Gossip.

"The Chocolate Soldier," which will open its engagement in Duluth Sunday, is probably the musical hit of the season.

ANTOINETTE KOPETZKY
Of the "Chocolate Soldier" Company.

The name born by Antoinette Kopetzky, prima donna of the company, is a famous one in Bohemia, from whence she comes, and may be said to be literally in every one's mouth, for her paternal grandfather, Andrea Kopetzky, was the first to make confections in the sugar cone formation and they are known as "kopetzkyinf" to this day. When she was brought to this country at the age of 8 by her father, who stepped away from the manufacture of sugar to the Austrian legation, the little Kopetzky was familiarly called "Dutch Sugar" by her little Washington playmates. Even then she was learning to sing and one of Miss Kopetzky's most treasured possessions is an old program of a Washington concert in which is announced "Two solos by Antoinette Kopetzky." She was then 10 years old.

Joseph Maitland, manager of the Empress theater, has gone to Chicago to attend a meeting of the Western Managers' association, for Sullivan & Considine.

• • •

Annette Kellermann is breaking all attendance records at the Orpheum theater. The theater has been sold out for three of the four performances this week, and there is a very heavy advance sale for the balance of the week, the matinee being especially popular.

• • •

Charles A. Moon, who brought E. S. Willard to America, and was later with W. H. Crane, but now associated with F. C. Whitney, with "The Chocolate Soldier" company, on its Western tour. The company numbers 125 people and will be in Duluth next week on its way to San Francisco for a two months' season.

Most sensational acts today performed for the amusement of the public are performed at the circus. Occasionally there are sensational joyrides for the pleasure of individuals, too, but for hair-raising spine-chilling deeds the act of the Three Rohrs, who are appearing at the Empress, is in the front rank. When asked if he was afraid when he was doing the sensational stunt of looping the loop in a revolving globe, Hans Rohr, replied: "Afraid, no; only nervous. You could not do the trick if you were afraid. That is not it; it is excitement. I have never experienced the sensation of flying, but I should imagine that it would feel the same as I do when I loop the loop. In my childhood, I used to watch the hawk soaring in the sky and wonder what kind of a feeling it gave him and now I think that I know." Mr. Rohr is the only man living who does this trick. At a circus a few short years ago, it was considered a sensational thing for a man to loop the loop but once. This daring young man loops the loop for a minute at a time, making the complete loop nineteen or twenty times.

There will be three more performances of "The Rosary" at the Lyceum, tonight and tomorrow afternoon and night. The theme of "The Rosary" is a novel one. It deals with the power of an evil thought, and shows how such a thought may cause untold disaster.

• • •

The popularity of "The Three Twins" was shown at the Lyceum the other evening, when Flaaten's orchestra played a collection of airs from this popular opera. The music was applauded, a rather rare incident in the Lyceum, where the audience seldom shows its appreciation for the excellent offerings of the orchestra. "The Three Twins" will be in Duluth in January with Victor Morley and Bessie Clifford still in the cast.

NOVEL METHOD OF TRANSPORTING LIQUOR.

Transportation of liquor was recently stopped on the Western Mesaba iron range. Supplies of liquor were running low on account of the activity of agents of the government, who were clamping the lid on Indian territory, and some folk with dry throats climbed in a sled and went to Hibbing. When they returned to Coleraine it is said that they took with them a load of manure and a pitchfork. In the manure is said to have been various assortments of rye, bourbon, and other varieties of fire water. The supply at Coleraine is said to have been replenished although folks of an inquisitive nature cannot find anybody who knows anything about the ride from Hibbing.

SERIES OF BURGLARIES

Police Believe Amateurs Are Responsible—No Arrests Made.

Burglars have been particularly active in the city the last week, but up to date they have secured no loot, as far as can be learned. Whether the entrances and attempted entrances have been the work of professionals or amateurs is hard to determine from the character of the work. The police are inclined to the opinion that the men at work are not old, experienced criminals.

Some of the operations have been particularly bold. Back windows have been smashed; front doors have been tried and no extreme precautions have been taken to prevent discovery. Thus far no clue has been obtained which might lead to arrests.

Last night two burglar alarms were turned in at police headquarters. The first came shortly before 8 o'clock in the evening. A citizen reported that thieves were at work in the plumbing shop on East Superior street between Second and Third avenues. A hurry-up detail rushed to the scene and found that the rear glass had been broken. The indications were that the men had gone inside and had just started to work when they were scared away. From appearances it would seem that they had gone out of a side window which they had opened as a precaution in case they were discovered. Nothing was reported missing from the place.

About midnight the police were called to a residence at Tenth avenue east and Second street. The big touring car was brought into action the minute the report was received, but when the officers had reached the scene nothing was found. If any thieves had been at work trying to get inside they had evidently been frightened away by hearing persons moving inside when they telephoned for the police.

Worked Under Strong Light.

About 1:30 o'clock early one morning last week pedestrians saw a man working at the safe of the Manhattan Wine company on West Superior street in the full glare of an electric light. Shortly afterwards they heard a muffled explosion. The police hurried to the place two or three minutes later, but their quarry had flown, apparently warned of danger by an accomplice on the outside, stationed as a lookout. The facing of the safe was blown off, but the $1,200 inside had not been reached.

The same night someone tried to get into the California Wine House, a few doors away, by prying open the front door. Large slivers were knocked off the edges in front of the lock, but without result.

Two or three nights ago thieves broke through the rear door of the Duluth Fur company at 325 West First street. They set off an automatic burglar alarm and immediately took to their heels. No goods were missed when an investigation was made the next day.

Last night a man giving his name as Frank Smith was arrested in a second hand store at 325 West Superior street. The police were called by Z. Dorf, a relative of the proprietor, who happened to be in the place at the time. He was trying to sell some pipe which had evidently come from a plumbing shop. He has not been connected with any of the reported burglaries in the city. He will be arraigned in police court this afternoon. He said he was a plumber by occupation and that he was 21 years of age.

BELANGER WAIVES EXAMINATION

Man Accused of Stealing Friend's Money Is Bound Over.

Archie Belanger, arrested last week on a charge of relieving Jerry Briscoe of about $40 after he had gone to sleep with him in order to save himself from being robbed, waived examination in police court yesterday afternoon and was bound over to the next grand jury.

Belanger protested at the police station that he was honest, but when searched cash and bills such as described by Briscoe were found in his shoes and socks. Upon the money being taken from him he accused Briscoe of putting it there.

Briscoe had charge of Eli Cholette's place at 913 West Michigan street in the absence of the proprietor and took the money from the till upon closing up. He was afraid of being "touched" and so went to bed with Belanger, who he thought would do all in his power to protect him. Incidentally the police say that the change found in Belanger's pockets was frozen in lumps, the moisture on them being beer which had wet the coins when they were laid on the bar upon being taken from the register to be counted.

LIQUID CURES ECZEMA
WHERE SALVES FAIL

In regard to skin diseases, medical authorities are now agreed on this:

Don't imprison the disease germs in your skin by the use of greasy salves, and thus encourage them to multiply. A true cure of all eczematous diseases can be brought about only by using the healing agents in the form of a liquid.

WASH THE GERMS OUT.

A simple wash: A compound of Oil of Wintergreen, Thymol, and other ingredients as combined in the D. D. D. Prescription. This penetrates to the disease germs and destroys them, then soothes and heals the skin as nothing else has ever done.

LOEB GOES TO SEE MACVEAGH

Washington, Nov. 29.—Collector Loeb of New York held an important conference today with Secretary MacVeagh in regard to the customs frauds at New York.

J. H. Kracke, naval officer of the port of New York, M. P. Andrew, law officer there, and J. W. Wheatley, a special agent who has been working on the under-valuations, accompanied Mr. Loeb to Washington. The whole question of customs under-valuation is being considered and the course the government shall take in the alleged woolen frauds, recently unearthed, is being discussed.

A new face has been put upon the government's action by a recent decision of the federal courts in New York, which decreed that the government had no authority to attach foreign owned goods which were seized in the raids. The decision, temporarily at least, seems to stop further operations along that line.

NO PROBE OF THE McCARTHY CHARGES

San Francisco Grand Jury Says It Needs Specific Data.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—Mayor McCarthy's request that the grand jury investigate rumors concerning his alleged acceptance of bribes of $60,000 and $10,000 respectively in unspecified municipal transactions, was refused last night. After a brief session, the grand jurors directed that a letter be sent the mayor informing him that, in the absence of specific charges, no investigation could be undertaken.

GOVERNORS AT FRANKFORT, KY.

Third Such Conference Opens in the Southern City.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 29.—The third conference of governors began at 2 o'clock this afternoon when Governor Willson welcomed the chief executives to the Blue Grass state. Governor Aram J. Pothier of Rhode Island responded and Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey later will speak on the possibilities of the conference.

As the governors are to be at Frankfort only today, citizens crowded all the hospitality and entertainment into as short time as possible.

ERBSTEIN DENIED FURTHER DELAY

Chicago Lawyer Must Go on Trial on First of Month.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Judge Scanlan today refused to allow further delay in the trial of Attorney Charles Erbstein, indicted on charges of bribery of a juror in the second trial of Lee O'Neil Browne, an Illinois legislator, who was accused of bribery in connection with the election of United States Senator William Lorimer. The trial is set for Dec. 1.

So Says Jacob G. Schurman at Theological School.

New York, Nov. 29.—The new buildings of the Union Theological seminary in this city were described last night by President Jacob G. Schurman of Cornell university, who spoke at the dedicatory exercises, as a "striking expression of the spirit of religious progress."

"Whether we like it or not," he said, "a change is taking place in the attitude of religious men. It may certainly be claimed that in their solicitude for the poor they may cite the example of the founder of the Christian church. And apart altogether from history, we cannot imagine that the condition of the poor is always to remain what we see it today in any civilization calling itself Christian.

Some Problems Outgrown.

"The theological student who wants to improve society must master the sciences of economics and government. As time goes on I expect to see some of the studies which are the mere survival of problems that our age has outgrown eliminated, and in place of them there will be supplemented subjects dealing with the problems of our own age and from our modern scientific point of view.

"The only way that some clergymen can see to improve the condition of society is by the adoption of Socialism. I believe, however, that with a thorough training in the social, economic and political sciences, the evils complained of may be abated under our present individualistic system of government.

Scientists the Sages.

"Scientific workers in all fields are the sages of our twentieth century. They have made it impossible for the men of this generation to regard dogmas as their fathers regarded them. To make belief, for example, in the history of the Jews, a salvation of a human soul, is in this scientific age of the world not only a physical impossibility, but an intellectual absurdity and an outrage on free moral personality."

CURIOSITY FATAL.

North Shore Man Loses Life Investigating Unshot Blast.

Grand Marais, Minn., Nov. 29.—Going towards a dynamite blast he had placed in a rock to ascertain why it had not exploded, cost George Polika, employed by the Alger Smith company, his life, several days ago. Two shots had been loaded and lighted at the same time, one discharging and the other failing. Polika went forward to investigate the failure of the second charge, and when close to the place it exploded, throwing him fifteen feet together with stone and gravel, and rendering him unconscious. He died in less than two hours after the accident. Coroner Aug. J. Johnson decided that an inquest was not necessary as the man had been killed through his own carelessness.

Louis Hoffman died at the Grand Marais hospital Nov. 18 of typhoid-pneumonia. The deceased was employed by the Alger, Smith company. The remains were buried in the Maple Hill cemetery.

MEMBER OF DALTON GANG GIVEN PAROLE.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 29.—Governor C. N. Haskell has granted a parole to Tom Jones, a member of the Dalton-Doolin gang of outlaws, who has served sixteen years of a fifty-year sentence for the murder of Deputy United States Marshal Houston at Ingalls, Okla., in 1893.

Jones, whose real name is Daugherty, comes of a good Texas family and had joined the gang shortly before the battle with Deputy Marshal Houston. Jones was asleep in the hotel when the fight began, but is alleged to have fired through a hole in the roof.

Bill Dalton always claimed that the three officers slain had been killed by the fire of the rest of the gang from a livery stable, and that Daugherty was not guilty.

BRITON ACCUSED OF FRAUDS GIVES BAIL.

New York, Nov. 29.—Clarence A. Walters, member of the woolen manufacturing and importing firm of John F. Briggs & Sons of Bradford, England, and this city, who was arrested on the charge of having been concerned in a series of alleged customs under-valuation frauds in consequence of which the government was defrauded of duties amounting to over $100,000, was today released on $10,000 bail.

Walters, who is the only member of the firm in this country, is a British subject. The examination in the case will be held on Dec. 5.

A Japanese Drug for Aches and Pains

"The drug toko was first brought to my attention when the fleet was at Yokohama. The Japanese depend upon it for freedom from all aches and pains, and it is taken at the first indication of headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, or pain anywhere in the body.

"It gives relief from pain quickly, and toko is also used for nervousness and sleeplessness. Perhaps much of the alleged ability to bear pain without flinching that is accredited to the yellow race should be given to this simple drug, rather than to any natural or acquired stoicism. Anybody can refrain from giving signs of pain when there is no pain and toko certainly banishes pain.

"All white men in the Orient speak highly of toko, and it has found its way to Europe and America, where it is sold in five-grain tablets, the regular dose, by most chemists and druggists."

DOCTORS INDORSE

Newbro's Herpicide

When a doctor indorses a preparation it means more than an ordinary testimonial. His opinion is always that of the professional man devoted to the welfare of the people.

Dr. J. J. Boyd, Covington, Tenn., says: "I feel it my duty to write this for the benefit of those suffering from dandruff. In the average case a few applications of Newbro's Herpicide will remove all dandruff. It is advisable to continue its use for several weeks."

The words of J. B. Thompson, M. D., No. 2 Burrough Place, Cor. Hollis St., Boston, Mass., are not less enthusiastic: "I can only speak in praise of Newbro's Herpicide. It is all that is claimed and perhaps more. Herpicide not only cleanses the scalp but brightens the hair, gives it life and makes it soft."

Dr. T. A. Moore, Duncan, Ariz., writes of his experience: "My scalp was in places covered by patches of dry, scaly material and the itching was incessant. Since using Herpicide all these evils have disappeared and my hair is soft, smooth and growing. Hair has grown on spots before but thinly covered."

Newbro's Herpicide is the original remedy to kill the dandruff germ and stop falling hair. The terrible itching which goes with dandruff is allayed almost at once.

Herpicide is for sale at Drug Stores and one-dollar size bottles are guaranteed. Applications may be obtained at the leading barber shops. Be sure you get genuine Herpicide. Send 10c in postage for sample and book to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

NO HOPE FOR MICHIGAN

Little Chance That Wolverines Will Come Into Western Conference.

Ann Arbor College Will Not Even Send Delegate to Chicago.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 29.—Announcement was made yesterday that Michigan will not send a representative to the meeting of the conference in Chicago next Saturday. This announcement is taken to mean that Michigan will make no attempt to secure reinstatement to the Western conference, this year at least.

Pro-conference sentiment, which has been gaining force among Michigan undergraduates and faculty, received a serious setback as a result of stories outlining the policy of Coach Stagg and the Midway authorities and what is termed their attempted dictation to Minnesota relative to her relations with Michigan. This revulsion of feeling may keep Michigan out of the conference for all time, as, while there are many students as well as faculty men who would welcome an opportunity for Michigan again to ally with the Western schools, there is no desire to submit to arbitrary dictation, either at the hands of Coach Stagg or any other athletic authority.

Hope for Gopher Game.

At the same time that the stories emanating today from Chicago seem to have killed the chances for a reconciliation with the conference, they have given rise to the new hope that possibly Michigan and Minnesota may yet meet at football next year without Michigan returning to the conference. Athletic authorities here are unable to conceive Minnesota submitting to the open reprimand, which they say Coach Stagg has handed the Gophers, and it is hoped that Minnesota will kick over the traces when the final test comes.

For the first time talk of a "big four" or other new athletic organization is being received seriously here. Men who claim to know something of the inner workings of the conference contend that the "big eight" is wobbling, and that if Minnesota or some other institution with considerable strength joins Michigan as an insurgent the Western conference will be doomed.

The Michigan Daily gave Coach Stagg of Chicago a grilling today in an editorial, criticising his interference in Michigan-Minnesota relations. The student publication said:

Daily Raps Stagg.

"Alonzo Stagg, head of athletics at the University of Chicago has announced that Minnesota should not be allowed to schedule athletic contests with Michigan. The Maroon mentor seems to be voicing the sentiment of the majority of the Western conference, which he appears to control.

"It is difficult to determine upon what grounds the conference can consistently dictate to the Gophers that they shall not schedule football games with the Wolverines and remain in the "big eight." When Michigan meets Minnesota the contest is governed by the conference rules, strictly interpreted and enforced. Yet the athletic authorities of the University of Chicago, who are working themselves into a state of righteous indignation over the matter, pit their eleven against Cornell without asking the Ithacans to conform to the conference rulings: so, too, Illinois meets Syracuse without rules or regulations.

"Almost every conference eleven plays one or more games with a non-conference school in the West. If any conference school is to be allowed to schedule a game with any non-conference school, and Michigan stands ready to fulfill the conference rules when she meets the Gophers, there seems no way in which the "big eight" can dictate to Minnesota with any show of logic, that she shall not play Michigan, any such action would be plainly unfair discrimination."

THREE MINNESOTA PLAYERS ON ALL-WESTERN ELEVEN

Walter H. Eckersall, the former quarter of the University of Chicago, and now a special writer on the Chicago Tribune, has selected his annual All-Western team. Three Minnesota players are selected for the first team, while five places are given to Michigan.

As Eckersall has had the opportunity of seeing all the teams of the West in action the past season, his team should be considered the best selection, as some of the critics who presume to attempt this little work, have only seen four or five of the teams play.

Following are the two teams selected as the best possible combinations that could be assembled from the various Western players.

Wells—Michigan	Right End	Berndt—Indiana	Right End
Edmunds—Michigan	Right Tackle	Dutter—Indiana	Right Tackle

Record of "Big Four" Football Teams Upset By Smaller Rivals.

Boston, Nov. 29.—The ranks of the so-called "big four" in college football were invaded with unusual success this year by the smaller college elevens, under the new rules.

Harvard was the only one of the "big four" to come through the season without a defeat. Cornell being the only team to score against the Crimson, which was later held to a nothing to nothing tie by Yale. Pennsylvania lost one game to Ursinus, and had nineteen points scored against her. Princeton lost one game to Yale, while the New Haven College lost two and tied two.

Pennsylvania is the leading scorer of the "big four" with 163 points, eight more than Harvard. Brown, which made a great record after the midseason games, overtops Pennsylvania in scoring and leads all New England colleges with 198. It was Brown that gave Yale the worst beating the Blue has suffered in recent years, 21 to 0.

Following is a summary of the games won, lost and tied and the scores for and against the teams known as the "big four" and New England college teams:

OPPOSITION IS REVIVED

Church Federation Tries to Stir Up Anti-Fight People in California.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 29.—With a view to reviving opposition to prize fighting in California, which was started at the time of the Jeffries-Johnson contest, J. E. White, attorney for the San Francisco Church Federation, addressed a letter to District Attorney Fickert yesterday asserting that the law was violated in the Nelson-Moran fight here last Saturday.

White says that citizens are anxiously awaiting to learn what action is to be taken in the matter.

District Attorney White says that if the law was violated by promoters and principals of the Nelson-Moran fight, the attorney for the Church Federation could swear out complaints. He intimated that he would take no action in the matter.

NELSON WILL NOT QUIT GAME

Dane Refuses to Be Classed With the Dead Ones.

San Francisco, Nov. 29.—Surprises were the aftermath of the Nelson-Moran fight of Saturday. The defeat of the Durable Dane was about the least looked-for thing in these parts and that the little Briton caught some of the critics napping seemed to be the general impression.

Wherever the followers of the sport were likely to congregate the fight and its results were the one topic for discussion, and it helped to enliven the communities which since the edict hurled forth by Governor Gillet have been more or less deserted.

Nelson's defeat has in no way killed the spirit of the former title-holder. Beaten in everything at which he was once without an equal, the Dane is loth to admit that he has finally been decisively beaten. He claims a short count on the part of the referee, but his notion has not been taken seriously.

The battler was out, and there was no doubt about it, but in the excitement attandant upon the writing of the final chapter in his ring history there was room to spring up the doubt which apparently he has now woven into a legitimate claim.

The question now seems to be whether the Dane will quit the ring. The immediate answer is that he will not. Nelson is the loser to toss aside the spangles when he sees a faint hope of still reaching the crest from which Ad Wolgast so ruthlessly tumbled him last February, when their fight just across the bay at Point Richmond. The former king of 133-pounders still looks to his first conqueror for a return match, and if the Dane sets his heart on a thing it is reasonably certain that it will carry.

Promoters in San Francisco and Los Angeles are now anxious to clinch a match between Moran and Wolgast for the championship of the world. It is by no means certain, however, that the contest can be arranged, as Wolgast insists upon the demand that if he meets Moran next May he be insured $12,500 and permitted to name the referee.

Harvey, Moran's manager, laughs at these demands and intimates Wolgast will have to come down from his lofty perch or wait some time for a match. Harvey will leave with Moran for New York on Tuesday.

HACKENSCHMIDT DEFEATS ROLLER

Russian Throws Seattle Medic Twice in Match at Montreal.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 29.—Before a big crowd at Sohmer park last night, George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, won from Dr. Roller of Seattle, Wash., in two straight falls, the first in forty-seven minutes and the second in nineteen minutes.

CHICAGO MEN TAKE HONORS AT OMAHA.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 29.—Chicago bowlers took the honors at the Midwest bowling tournament yesterday. Ehlman securing the highest individual mark made thus far with 642 pins for three games. Klemner and Collier, also of Chicago, secured high scores in the two-man event, making 1,220.

Of the five-men teams, the Duffys of St. Louis are still high with 2,909, with the Chalmers-Detroits of Chicago second with 2,837.

Local teams were not within the money in any of the contests yesterday or last night, the visitors' scores topping them in all classes.

Certainly Some Walker.

To the Sporting Editor of The Herald:

A few days ago Mr. Larson, a trusted employe of the Western Transit company of this city, performed a very difficult feat in walking. Mr. Larson claims to have walked fifteen miles through the woods with a load of 100 pounds on his back in four hours. Mr. Larson's friends believe that he is without a doubt the greatest walker in Duluth and would be glad to make a match with any one in the city.

Yours Truly,
A. WALKER.

GRIFFIN HURTS SHOULDER AND LOSES TO O'KELLY.

(BY BRUCE.)

Curling will begin today on the rinks of the Duluth Curling club.

The lineup of some of the rinks will be found on another part of this page. Some are shy a lead, because this player has not been chosen as yet. However, there are enough rinks complete to enable the curling committee to get some of the rinks out for practice this afternoon and evening.

As stated previously in this paper, the officers of the club intend to make the present season the best in the history of the Duluth Curling club. Next season, if plans are carried out, the curlers will have a new home, one of the very finest in the country. But just to show that the members of the club are ready for the bigger and broader scheme of the club, it is proposed to make the present season one which will show the members of the club the need of a new home.

With the majority of the rinks ready at the present time, the season will soon be in full swing. More than anything else, the members of the local club hope to make a great showing at the present season in the bonspiel. There are some very strong rinks at the club, and should some of the best of the younger players show the expected form that Duluth should be able to carry off some of the jewelry at the bonspiel to be held here.

Never before at the very outset of the season, has there been so much game. One enthusiasm shown in the game. One enthusiasm shown in the organizations of this very live city of the Duluth Curling club of the city, the Duluth curling club is an association that really accomplishes things. If the members start out to make the present season the most thoroughly successful in the history of the great Scotch game, you may be sure that they will carry out their intention.

In addition to the curling, the D. C. C. will make an effort to make hockey a permanent and paying proposition in this city. It may be truthfully said that the people of this city do not know what real hockey is like. The members of the local club have instructed Ed Furnl to get together the very best team possible from the crack local players, and before the season is over the members of the committee in charge of the team believe that the club will be represented by a team that will prov a credit to the city, and will also show the people of this city some real puck chasing.

Curling is one of the most popular sports in this city, if not the most popular winter sport. Therefore, it is to be hoped that the season, just starting will be the most successful ever held here, will thoroughly establish the need of a new curling rink, and will also result in some of the Duluth rinks carrying off honors at the big spiel planned for this city.

In these days of the steep and cragged price that is attached to oriental rugs, the gift of one wee one from a friend might be considered as a token of that undying friendship that poets have made so much of in the past. Any time a friend decorates your hall with an oriental; Bill, watch the deal carefully, for he may have an ace in the hole, or is looking for a political job.

The Most Popular Man in the Game.

There is one man in baseball who is so popular that things have been moving his way ever since he broke into the fertile field of Chicago. This man is the noblest Roman of them all, Charles A. Comiskey.

When he was in this city on two recent occasions, he renewed acquaintance with old friends and made new ones. It may be truthfully said that every man this grand old fellow meets, he makes a friend of. All of which, Alice, is in line with the oriental rug remark.

Saturday afternoon in Chicago Comiskey was given the greatest testimonial that has ever been given to a baseball man in the city that at the present time is recognized as the home of baseball. Manufacturers, fans, professional men, furniture men and men from practically every walk of life, to the number of over 200, descended on the old Comanche and gave him all told over $5,000 worth of furniture for his new baseball offices. Accounts of this new baseball offices. Accounts of the love and admiration festival, state that oriental rugs, handsome couches and davenports, and furniture in general that would make a very sweet showing in the pleasure palaces of some of the little kinks of Europe, were presented to the old Roman with the tributes that came straight from the hearts of the men behind the gifts.

One of the reasons why Comiskey is so popular, is because he has always been on the square. He hates a crook like a Colorado cowboy hates a snake. Let a man get a raw one over, and he will forever have the disrespect of the White Sox owner.

Comiskey was practically playing his last string when he was in St. Paul. He was playing on his nerve, and St. Paul in those days was not any too good. Then Comiskey and Ban Johnson conceived and carried into execution the idea of the American league. Comiskey's St. Paul team, including such players as Phyle, the former St. Cloud boy, Roger Denzer, Shugart, Heinie Spies, the only Frank Isbel, the big boy from Pine City, and others made up the first team that represented Chicago in the American league.

Comiskey's team won and then began the war on the players of the National. It was here that Commy got Davis and some of the other players that have made the White Sox famous. That victory in the first year of the American league meant much to Comiskey, but Chicago has since learned that Comiskey has meant more to it, than even a pennant winning team. Columns have been written about Comiskey. He has a smile that estimated roughly in cash, which is no nice way, has probably brought the old Roman in several cool hundred thousands. He has a personality that has a certain dignity, yet is as genial as the first warm sunshine of a spring day. He treats all men alike, if they are on the square, and he believes that the baseball public has rights.

There are many reasons why Charles A. Comiskey is today the most popular man in baseball; but the real reason is, that Commy has always been on the level, cull, and has given his players and the public the best he has.

While Dear Hope Liveth

Once upon a time, as Hans Anderson, an author and not an outfielder, used to say, there lived a cat with a most perverse and persistent nature. Upon many a cold night, when the evening breezes raging around the house would make the bad breezes in the Macbeth storm scene sound as gentle and as harmless as an electric fan with two broken blades, this cat was canned from her favorite place in front of the fire. The cat was in bad.

This cat came back with such unfailing regularity, that it became famous in song and provided an excuse for Eddie Foy to draw something in the neighborhood of three hundred from bout last night at Central park before one of the largest crowds that ever attended a boxing exhibition in Peoria, Kid Farmer of Peoria knocked out Tommy Bresnahan of Omaha in the tenth round.

Wonderful Medical Library In Possession of Duluth Men

Progressive Medical Specialists Have Most Complete Library of Medical Works to Be Found In the City.

After doctors have spent eight years studying men's diseases in Europe, have spent $1,500 for a complete library on diseases of men, and have invested more than $5,000 in modern up-to-date office equipment, they must be better equipped then to combat diseases of men. One finds most rare books in the library of the Duluth specialists on men's diseases—a single volume among them on skin diseases, cost as much as $80. There are as many as twenty-five volumes on the treatment of Specific Blood Poison, ten volumes on Rheumatism, Heart Diseases and Stomach Troubles. There are hundreds of volumes on all other diseases of men and not a single volume on diseases of women is found in the whole library. No women are treated in this office. The Progressive Medical association of No. 1 West Superior street, has the most successful Specialists to be found in the country. No man need fear unsuccessful treatment at their hands. They have cured thousands of men, many of whom have been pronounced "incurable" by other doctors.

When any man lays his case before them it is kept strictly confidential, whether the nature of the disease be Asthma or Stricture, Bladder Trouble or Kidney Diseases. Chronic diseases are as easily cured by the treatments of these modern doctors, as are newly contracted ones. Men who have abused nature have wrecked their nerves and destroyed their health, have found the Specialists of the Progressive Medical association to be doctors of the greatest skill and knowledge. They back their word by a written legal guarantee. Any one may consult them free of charge, and no names will ever be published. NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

Frank L. Young Files for Alderman From the First and W. J. McCabe May Follow Suit—Senator Laybourn Carries Fame of Duluth to Texas—Chisholm Editor Praises Commissioner McEwen—Lindbergh for United States Senate—Election Contest in Cook County.

Young Files From the First.

One candidate for the Republican nomination has filed and it is expected that before the next twenty-four hours are past, another will be in the field. It is not probable that a Democrat will make the race. Frank L. Young filed for the Republican nomination yesterday. He is an architect and lives at Riverside Park. Mr. Young is willing to devote his time and efforts to the work of a councilman, and is particularly interested in keeping the streets and private grounds of the city in spotless condition.

It was said today that his friends hope to persuade W. J. McCabe, of McCabe Brothers to become a candidate. They feel that Mr. McCabe is as near the ideal of what an alderman should be as any city could show and are determined that he get into the race if their persuasive powers can accomplish that result.

Z. D. Scott, manager of the Scott-Graff Lumber company, said this morning that he would refuse to consider the suggestion that he make the run. He is deeply interested in the search for a candidate upon whom all could unite, however, and is an earnest advocate of the nomination and election of Mr. McCabe.

Much has been said of late concerning the excellence of Duluth and St. Louis county products. At the state fair this county made the most striking and most effective showing of any county exhibiting there. A great variety of things grown in the county was shown and the unanimous opinion was that there is no place like St. Louis county for the cultivation of admirable specimens of every sort.

St. Louis County Alfalfa Famous.

The fame of St. Louis county is not confined to the state, however. It has been spread far beyond the borders of Minnesota.

For instance, the San Antonio Light, published in far-away Texas, says:

Speaking of whiskers, Senator George R. Laybourn of Duluth, Minn., has about the niftiest hirsute adornment in the congress. They are the curtain kind, long and black and the senator is proud of them.

Senator Laybourn is attending the annual Trans-Mississippi congress at San Antonio. He is the only representative of Minnesota there.

Incidentally praising H. W. Goetzinger of St. Paul and boosting that St. Paul man for appointment as state labor commissioner, James Arneson in the Chisholm Tribune-Herald says some nice things about William E. McEwen of Duluth, who will quit that office the first of the year to make way for the man whom Governor Eberhart will select. Mr. Arneson's praise of Mr. Goetzinger is hearty and sincere, but of Mr. McEwen he says:

McEwen's Work Appreciated on Range.

While this paper does not presume to act in an advisory capacity to Governor Eberhart, yet it is possessed of the feeling that a mistake may be made in the selection of a successor to Hon. W. E. McEwen, state labor commissioner. In years gone by the office of labor commissioner was considered of no greater importance than that of custodian of the capitol. During the Johnson administration and under the direction of "Billy" McEwen, the office has become of first importance, and is now the storm center in every labor disturbance. The office now compiles labor statistics and material facts bearing on the condition of the working class, and in a general way directs its efforts to giving the worker a square deal. Mr. McEwen has also become an authority on the employers' liability question and his counsel will be demanded in the preparation of a proper bill by the legislature this winter.

Such an appreciation of Mr. McEwen's work in the office he has held for the last few years, coming as it does from a Republican source, cannot but be gratifying to his friends in Duluth.

While Senator Knute Nelson is in Washington mixing the Pallinger whitewash, or otherwise, progressive Republicans of the Sixth district, protesting their allegiance to the senior senator, are speculating on the time when he will no longer desire to succeed himself. That kind of talk at this stage of the game means they think about two years from now will serve as a jumping off place for Knute.

Lindbergh and Senator Nelson's Worn Toga

Charles A. Lindbergh, the leanest insurgent of them all, is the man picked by these progressives to succeed Senator Nelson. Lindbergh, representative from the Sixth, is a Swede and Nelson is a Norwegian. It is argued that because he is a Scandinavian, lives in the country and has the confidence of his people, Lindbergh is the proper man to succeed Senator Nelson—when that veteran gives the signal that he wants a successor.

Nobody has seen the signal yet.

T. I. Carter declines to admit that he was beaten in his fight for re-election to the office of auditor of Cook county, although the official canvassing board has ruled that Chris Murphy was elected by a plurality of four votes. Mr. Carter is a Republican and Mr. Murphy is a Democrat. The former has been auditor of Cook county for several terms and is probably the best known resident of the north shore. He has always been popular and his defeat at the hands of Murphy came as a great surprise to his many friends in Duluth.

Cook County Has a Contest.

Mr. Carter alleges in his petition to the district court at Grand Marais that there were gross election irregularities in the towns of Schroeder, Rosebush and Grand Marais, particularly as to the manner in which illiterates were assisted to cast their ballots.

Election contests seems to be quite the thing along the north shore, Lake county having one in the case of John Dwan against John Kinsella, involving the county attorneyship, to which Kinsella was elected. Gen. Dwan alleges deliberate infractions of the election laws.

Chihuahua, Nov. 28, via El Paso, Tex., Nov. 29.—A sharp skirmish lasting three hours was fought yesterday between government troops under Gen. The government loss was one dead and six wounded.

Madero Is Safe.

San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 29.—That Francisco I. Madero is safe and uninjured, is the news brought to his family by a courier who comes direct from him. The man is a native of City of Mexico and has lived a number of years in San Antonio. He says that Madero is at present gathering his forces in the Laguna district near Lerdo and Parral. This district lies in a fertile valley surrounded entirely by mountains.

Madero was not wounded at any time says the envoy, and is constantly gathering allies to his standard.

As far as the confiscation of the Madero estates is concerned, the courier states Madero is not much concerned since the bulk of his interests are in the hands of friendly Americans.

cials will be in Brainerd on the opening day.

Many Legislators Going.

Some idea of the real power and significance of the gathering is gained by the fact that eighty-six members of the legislature have taken the trouble to write Mr. Mackenzie of their interest in the meeting and inform him that they will be present.

"It looks to me as if we should have more than two-thirds the membership of both houses with us at Brainerd," said Mr. Mackenzie.

Among the latest messages from organizations informing the secretary that they would send delegations are the following:

St. Paul Jobbers and Manufacturers' association, Minneapolis Commercial club, Douglas County, Wisconsin, Development association, Superior, Wis., Commercial club, Minnesota State Fair Exhibitors' association, and the Wisconsin Advancement association.

Will Fight Liquor Measure.

If the liquor dealers or their friends attempt to introduce a resolution at the convention in an effort to place the association on record against the Indian bureau's present activity in stopping the sale of intoxicants there will be a merry war. Rev. Charles Fletcher of the First Methodist church of Bemidji said:

"I hope to attend the Brainerd convention, and if I do and the liquor men attempt to start something, I am not going to sit idly by, and don't you forget it. In the first place, I don't believe this association has any business considering a proposition of this kind."

On the other hand, the liquor dealers believe that whatever has to do with the prosperity of Northern Minnesota would be proper to bring before the meeting, and they intend to do this.

If the problem ever gets before the delegates for consideration, indications are that the correspondents may as well be prepared to write "pandemonium reigned."

The special car which is to go from Bemidji tomorrow night will be crowded and many will be compelled to use the regular coaches.

TRANSPLANT THE SALMON

Plant in Lake Champlain.

"Encouraged by the outcome of this experiment, the bureau made a plant of 40,000 Fingerling Chinook in Lake Champlain in the spring of 1910."

During the year the bureau distributed 3,233,392,572 fish and fish eggs, making a record which exceeded its record year of 1909, by 4 per cent. Of this total 443,177,000 eggs and 7,425 fish were delivered to the various state fish commissions and 600,000 eggs of salmon and trout were shipped to Argentina, Japan and France.

Represent Big Investment.

The commissioner reports that the commercial fisheries of the United States represent an investment of about $95,000,000 and the value of the products derived from fisheries proper is about $62,000,000. With the exception of the mackerel and some other fisheries that for a number of years have not been so extensive as formerly, all of the more important branches of the industry are in a prosperous condition.

HOW THIN FOLKS CAN GET FLESHY

Simple Prescription Given.

For women—and men too, for that matter—who can never appear stylish with anything they wear, because of abnormal thinness and angularity, this remarkable prescription is destined to solve the problem. As a beauty maker for the figure it is simply wonderful while it adds brightness to the eyes, and color to the cheeks and lips. It requires no particular dieting, but acts as an aid to nature by its peculiar action on the nerves and blood supply. The blood and nerves distribute over the body, all the nourishment or flesh building elements obtained from the food. The trouble with thin people has always been that they do not absorb or retain enough of the fleshy matter to make them gain in weight even to a normal extent, but this new discovery of blending certain harmless drugs is a revelation to science, and hundreds have gained from ten to forty pounds in a few weeks. There is no danger of becoming too fat. When you get the right weight then stop using.

The general health and strength is greatly improved in anyone from the age of 16 to 60. Women soon get plump, with well rounded arms and full bust, and men become straight, strong-looking and healthy.

In a half pint bottle get three ounces of essence of pepsin and three ounces syrup of rhubarb. Then add one ounce compound esence cardiol, shake and let stand two hours. Then add one ounce tincture cadonene compound (not cardomom). Take a teaspoonful before and after meals, and weigh before beginning.

KIDNAP MAN TO ROB HIM OF $7

Two Chicago Thieves Use Furniture Van to Get Victim Out of Town.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—Two bandits who held up Charles Moe, a contractor carpenter, took no chances of having a policeman descend upon them while they went through their victim's pockets. Instead, they seized him, quickly bundled him up in ropes and a quantity of burlap, threw him into a furniture delivery wagon and hauled him out of the city onto the prairie to rob him.

When he recovered consciousness today he was unable to unfasten his hands or gain his feet, and lay in the gutter beside a country road six hours before found by farmers. He then learned he had been carried to the town of Cicero, outside the city limits.

He had been robbed of a gold watch and $7 and today he identified two young men arrested by the police as his assailants. They are Arthur Fringle, 20 years old, and Albert Littlefield, 22 years old. Both deny the accusations.

ESTIMATES MUST BE CUT YET MORE

Taft Tells His Cabinet That the Departments Ask Too Much.

Washington, Nov. 29.—President Taft today informed his cabinet officers, after scrutinizing the final draft of the estimates of the various government departments for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1911, that there must be a further and deeper cut in them, that they would not do in their present form.

DEMOCRATS CELEBRATE.

Felicitating at Fargo Over North Dakota and Other Victories.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fargo is the mecca today for the state Democrats. A meeting is being held in Union hall to celebrate the recent election and to make plans for the future. Tonight there will be a banquet at a local hotel at which many of the leading Democrats of the state are expected to be present.

The North Dakota Democrats naturally are elated over the election of Governor Burke to a third term and deem the occasion an appropriate one for a demonstration of their enthusiasm.

At the banquet this evening Governor Burke will be the chief speaker but others will be heard. In addition to the celebration of the North Dakota victory the banquetters will not overlook the recent successes in the East and the majority in the lower branch of congress.

MINER FALLS 100 FEET AND MAY PULL THROUGH.

Hancock, Mich., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Phillips, employed in No. 8 shaft of the Mesnard, is in St. Joseph's hospital as a result of a fall. The physicians operated and while the man's condition is very serious, it looks as though he will recover.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded if it Fails.

This receipe makes a pint of cough syrup and saves you about $2 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs — even whooping cough — in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents' worth) in a pint bottle and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the apetite and is slightly laxative—both exelent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guiaicol and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

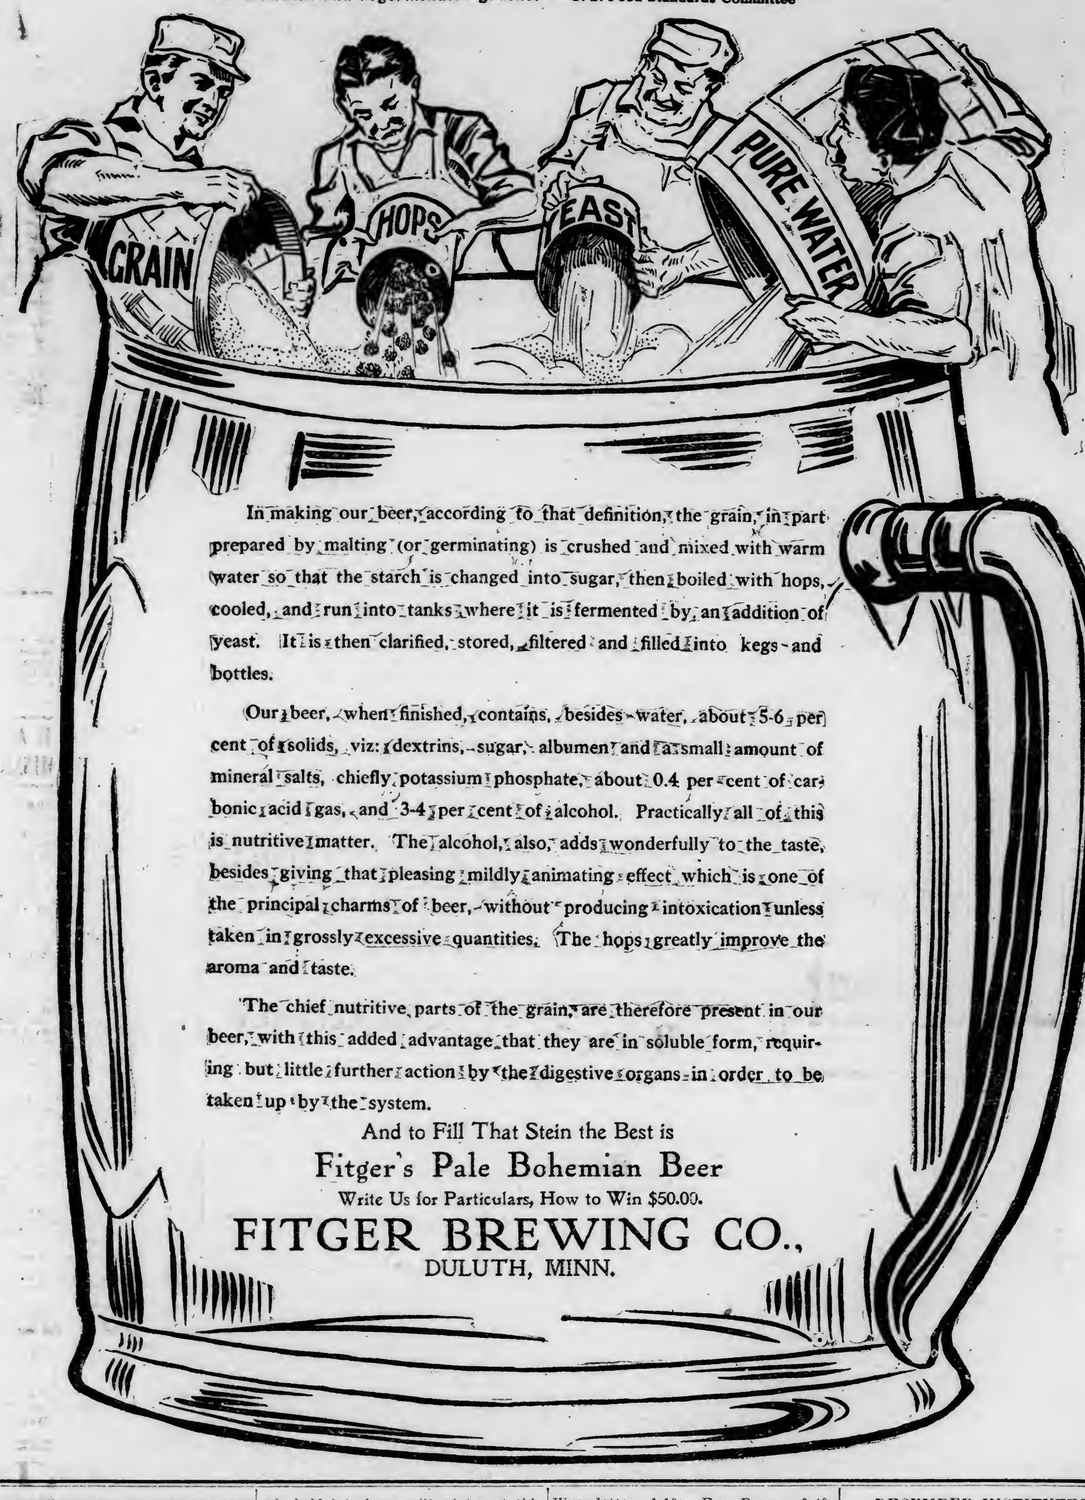

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. The plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equalled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

$50.00 In Gold for the Best Essay on Beer—See HERALD of October 11th or 13th or 15th, 1910

What Our Beer Is

"Malt Liquor is a beverage made by the alcoholic fermentation of an infusion, in potable water, of barley, malt and hops, with or without unmalted grains, decorticated and degerminated grains."—U. S. Food Standards Committee

In making our beer, according to that definition, the grain, in part prepared by malting (or germinating) is crushed and mixed with warm water so that the starch is changed into sugar, then boiled with hops, cooled, and run into tanks where it is fermented by an addition of yeast. It is then clarified, stored, filtered and filled into kegs and bottles.

Our beer, when finished, contains, besides water, about 5-6 per cent of solids, viz: dextrins, sugar, albumen and a small amount of mineral salts, chiefly potassium phosphate, about 0.4 per cent of carbonic acid gas, and 3-4 per cent of alcohol. Practically all of this is nutritive matter. The alcohol, also, adds wonderfully to the taste, besides giving that pleasing mildly animating effect which is one of the principal charms of beer, without producing intoxication unless taken in grossly excessive quantities. The hops greatly improve the aroma and taste.

The chief nutritive parts of the grain are therefore present in our beer, with this added advantage that they are in soluble form, requiring but little further action by the digestive organs in order to be taken up by the system.

LAST CARGO OF ORE TAKEN

Steamer Grammer Leaves the Allouez Dock With Final Shipment.

Winter Fleet at Head of the Lakes Will Be Large.

At 10:15 this morning the last load of ore that will go down the Great Lakes the present season, left the dock at Allouez for the lower lakes.

The Grammer has the distinction of taking the last load of the season. The boat was loaded yesterday and this morning at Allouez, the cold weather interfering somewhat with the handling of the ore. The Grammer was not seriously delayed, however, and got away shortly after the time set for leaving.

Though at midnight tomorrow the official season of navigation for the present year will be declared at an end, boats will continue to arrive here for the next three or four days. A big coal fleet is due to leave the lower lakes at midnight, Nov. 30. These vessels will arrive at the Head of the Lakes within the next few days.

Some of these boats will not make the return trip down the lakes, wintering here. Some of the boats will come with storage coal, and it is natural to suppose that some of the vessels held late here, will winter at this end of the lakes.

Here it is believed, though accurate forecasts are not available at the present time, that there will be more than the usual number of vessels wintering at the Head of the Lakes. It is expected that there will be between sixty and seventy boats tied up here. The increase over the number of vessels tied up last season, is expected from that fact that there is a quantity of late coal coming up the present season, and also that boats have been laid up here for the past two weeks. These boats have come up the lakes and, finding no cargoes here, have tied up at this end.

There will be a great deal of towing to do in the local harbor for some time after the close of the navigation season, and for that reason none of the tugs of the Union Wrecking & Towing company will be tied up for the season for some time.

Whether Fat or Thin, Let Thy Face Be Fair

(From The London Gazette.)

"A woman is not responsible for the contour of her face. She must be stout or slender, tall or short, light or dark—as Nature intended her to be.

"But she is responsible for her complexion. She decides whether it is clear or 'muddy,' smooth or early wrinkled, free from superfluous hair or covered with a downy growth that a college youth would envy.

"If she would have a face fair and free from blemish, let her forever put aside paint, powder and cosmetic. A simple solution made by dissolving a small original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel is all she is required to use.

"Massage the face, arms and neck with this solution once a day and you soon have beautifully soft and clear skin, free from discoloration, spot and blotch; wrinkles will be prevented and there will be no annoying hairs."

HAS MORELAND BEEN FLOATED?

No Reliable Information Has Been Received in Duluth.

Various reports that the steamer W. B. Moreland has been floated and will be brought to the Superior shipyards for repairs, are not believed in this city. Vessel men today stated that in their belief the big steamer has as yet not been floated.

A message from the Superior shipyards discloses the fact that nothing has been heard there, and that no orders have come from the underwriters or the owners of the boat, asking that an estimate be made for repairs.

Capt. Kidd, who was at the scene of the wreck as the representative of the underwriters, does not believe that the Moreland has been floated. He has received no word from the underwriters, nor has he received any intimation in any reliable form that the big steamer has been floated.

Absolutely no authentic information, stating that the Moreland has been floated, has reached this city.

Famous Expert Tells

How Fat May Be Removed Rapidly By a Simple Home Remedy Without Causing Wrinkles, Disturbing the Diet or Necessity For Exercise.

"Fat is nothing but unused energy," says a prominent physician, and the man or woman who is burdened with it can easily get rid of it if they wish. All they need is ½ ounce of Marmola, ½ ounce of Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces of Peppermint Water; all of which they can get at any good drug store for a few cents. Then let them take one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime until they are down to the weight they want to be.

This simple home receipt is far and away better than any or all the patent or secret medicines, for it reduces the fat safely and harmlessly. The ingredients are in fact beneficial to the system, having both tonic and purifying qualities, and so help rather than distress the stomach. The remedy does not cause wrinkles, for it reduces one gradually and naturally, preserving a good outline, and, best of all, needs neither physical exercise to help it do the work, nor does it require any change in diet—one can get results and still take things easy — eating meanwhile just what, when and how he or she pleases. Be sure and get the Marmola in a sealed package, so that you get Marmola and not a substitute.

BULL MOOSE AND FOUR DEER ARE BAGGED NEAR WOODLAND

PARTY OF WEST DULUTH HUNTERS.

A big bull moose and four deer were brought down this week by a West Duluth hunting party from near the Cloquet river and about fourteen miles from Woodland.

In the party were: C. Winters, Paul Winters, T. J. Becker, J. Rivett and F. McNeill. Hunting has been exceptionally good in this locality, say the West Duluth nimrods.

WEST DULUTH AND COMMISSION PLAN

Business men along Central avenue are taking an active interest in the agitation for a commission form of municipal government, which is said to be gaining considerable headway in Duluth. Many are giving expression to their views and the general trend of opinion seems to favor the change. Just what part the West Duluth Commercial club will take in the matter is still in doubt. According to L. A. Barnes, president, the club will probably not take any action one way or the other until after the matter has been submitted to the people for a vote.

* * *

L. R. Clark, cashier of the Western State Bank of West Duluth says that he is anxious to see the commission form adopted, "I have always believed that the affairs of a city could be more safely handled under the commission form," he said. "Personally, I am in favor of it for Duluth."

* * *

Edward Dormedy, a Central avenue grocer, declares that Duluth people are not getting all that they are entitled to and says that if the commission plan were inaugurated, he believes that it would bring about a change for the better. "The commission plan looks good to me," said Mr. Dormedy, "and I would like to see it come."

* * *

M. E. Keefe, proprietor of a West Duluth clothing store, says: "I have no doubt but what it would be better than the old style way of doing things. Of course, it is new up here and Duluth people have had little chance to become educated to its advantages. I am strongly in favor of certain forms of commission government and think it would be a good thing for this city."

RINK WILL BE OPENED FRIDAY

Curlers and Skaters Rejoice at Arrival of Cold Weather.

Friday, Dec. 2, will be grand opening night at the West Duluth curling and skating rink, Fifty-seventh avenue west and Bristol street. This was the decision last evening of the executive committee of the Western Curling club at a short meeting.

Today incandescent lights were installed about the rink and other preparations made for the opening. Baldwin's band will furnish the musical program Friday evening, and a special program will be rendered for the skaters.

It is expected that the trophy schedule will be announced within the next two weeks.

Uses Gasoline Beside Fire.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 29.—James Falsgiver, aged 47, sat before an open grate fire last night, rubbing a rheumatic ankle with what he supposed was turpentine. It proved to be gasoline—and when it exploded it hurled him from his rocker and set fire to the house. The firemen extinguished the blaze and Falsgiver was taken to the hospital.

TELLS THE JEWS TO TAKE TO THE FARMS.

New York, Nov. 29.—"Leave the cities and settle on farms," was the burden of the addresses delivered at the annual convention of the Federation of Jewish Farmers of America. Forty-three delegates from the thirty-two organizations were present, representing the states of New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and North Dakota.

Isadore Straus, president of the Educational alliance, who welcomed the delegates, said they were helping to destroy the bugaboo of surplus immigration by diffusing the Jewish immigrants to farms.

WOULD GIVE PUPILS MARKS ON HEALTH.

Washington, Nov. 29.—Pupils in all schools should be graded in health and in their progress therein, as well as in any other subject, is the opinion of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry.

"The time will soon be here," he said, "when progress in health will be rated on every school examination along with progress in other lines. Every school will have its doctor, who will devote himself entirely to helping the pupils to advance toward the goal of perfect manhood and womanhood."

Prohibition Badly Beaten.

Jefferson City, Mo., Nov. 29.—Prohibition was defeated in Missouri at the recent election, according to official announcement, by 218,126. It received 207,281 votes with 425,406 against it, and carried only 37 of 115 counties.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

STATISTICS AID BULLS

World's Visible Supply and European Stocks Shrink.

Wheat Advances—Flaxseed Stronger—Shorts Seek Shelter.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 29.—Wheat advanced today, shorts covering moderately. The longs endeavored to put up prices and they met with little opposition. News was bearish with the exception of statistics which were considered bullish. Cash wheat was ½c over December, which gained ½c. May gained ⅝c. Durum was unchanged, oats lost ⅝c and rye and barley were the same as yesterday.

Flaxseed was stronger. November gained 4½c, December 4½c and May advanced 3c. Cash was on a parity with December and November.

Wheat declined from the opening in sympathy with lower cables and then rallied on scattered short covering and buying from people who were influenced by the decrease in the European and the world's visible supply. On the bulge some selling appeared from the bearish camp but it was not of a large volume nor sustained and values continued to mark time around a firm level as the market drew to a close.

Wheat east of the Rockies decreased 624,000 bu in Canada, 333,000 bu in the United States and Canada, 647,000 bu afloat and in Europe 2,100,000 bu. Bradstreet's total decrease amounted to 2,747,000 bu.

The weather in the United Kingdom is more favorable and cables from Argentina said the weather is perfect for the harvesting of wheat in the northern Plata shippers are offering wheat more freely and Argentine spot markets are easy and lower. Australian cables are satisfactory.

Europe has 121,624,000 bu of wheat in its store windows compared with 121,736,000 bu last week. The total a year ago amounted to $6,660,000 bu.

There was some export business today in Manitoba and Baltimore reported a cargo of No. 2 red winter wheat sold to France.

The European figures show that the world is going into the winter season with plenty of wheat in sight. Buyers are not disposed to go after wheat but are forcing sellers to ring the door bell. The bull is carrying a big load of cash wheat and the bears are not disposed to fight an advance, as any upturn will give them an opportunity of smashing the market again. Russia and the Danube are shipping enough wheat to supply the world for the rest of the crop season in addition to supplies on hand. Of course this outgo will not be maintained, but the Argentine and Australian crops are soon due and will make up for any slackness that may take place in the Danubian and Russian exports. The winter season will soon cause a cessation of the Russian exports. Canada has sold only a small percentage of her surplus, while the United States is at the tail end of the procession trying to put over a few experts when the opportunity arises.

Navigation will close tomorrow night but the fact is insignificant, as all centers have large supplies of wheat and flour. The flour business is still dull and the outlook is discouraging.

Price was stronger today, there being some strength in the cash article as might be expected on the day before the close of navigation. The advance caused some covering in May, but the stuff was difficult to find and the market was buoyant when buyers were forced to bid up values to even up their contracts. Shipments of flaxseed in the two closing days will be heavy and stores at the end of navigation will amount only to a few thousand bushels.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Snow in Kansas Makes Wheat Prices Turn Easier.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—Snow in Kansas today came as a benefit to the winter wheat crop and eased off prices in the market here. News was bearish. Weather in the United Kingdom was favorable, harvest conditions in Northern Argentine perfect, and Australian reports satisfactory. Cash demand continued to lag. The opening was ¼c to ½c lower. May started at 95¼c to 95¾c, a loss of ¼@⅝c to ⅝c@½c and declined to 95c.

Corn strength, large export business today in Manitoba and Baltimore reported a cargo of No. 2 red winter wheat sold to France.

Corn strength, large export sales at Baltimore and smallness of primary receipts caused a rally. There was also a liberal decrease in the world's available supply. The market closed firm with May ⅛c net higher at 95⅝@95¾c.

In the corn pit, cash concerns and pit traders were selling. The volume of business, however, was not large. May opened unchanged to ⅛c off at 46½c to 46⅝c, steadied at the lower level.

Covering on a huge scale later by a leading short led to an advance. There were further export sales here today. The market closed strong with May ⅝c net higher at 47¾c.

Slack demand let oats drag downward a little. May started a shade lower at 33⅝c to ¾c, but reacted to 33⅝c.

With the hog run lighter than a year ago, offerings of provisions were quickly absorbed, and the market kept fairly steady. First sales were 2½c lower to a shade higher with January at $16.85 for pork, $9.70 for lard and $9 to 9.02½ for ribs.

Wheat Strengthens Late on News of Export Business.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 29.—Late today there was moderate strength in wheat on account of the report of export business at Baltimore. The firmer tone in corn also aided in the advance. Cotton Market.

New York, Nov. 29.—Cotton opened easy at a decline of 4@17 points, under a renewal of yesterday's selling movement, but when it was found no stop orders were being executed below 14.90 for March, recent sellers turned for cover and prices rallied on the demand from this source and a renewal of bull support. Liverpool was a little lower than due and a private cable reported a quieter market in Manchester, but a better China demand was reported in the local dry goods trade.

Spot closed quiet; 10 points higher; middling uplands, 15.10; middling gulf, 15.35. No sales. Futures closed steady; bids: November, 14.86; December 14.86; January 14.84; February 14.94; March, 15.12; April, 15.18; May, 15.29; June, 15.24; July, 15.24; August, 14.87.

STOCKS ARE FEVERISH

Dealings Fall Into Dullness and Close Firm and Quiet.

New York, Nov. 29.—Opening prices of stocks today were not much changed from last night in contrast with the rapid fluctuations in yesterday's market. There was a minimum of gains but declines were more numerous with United States Steel under special pressure at a decline of ⅝. Southern Railway preferred fell 1 and Lehigh Valley, Kansas City Southern and Westinghouse Electric ¾. Lehigh Valley rebounded 1¼ over last night and the general list stiffened.

The market behaved in a fitful fashion with fluctuations confined to moderate fractions. Efforts to lift prices were met by fresh selling of American Smelting. Later prices stiffened again but the general action of the market was uncertain. American Smelting declined 1 and Southern Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and Utah Copper advanced 1. Colorado Fuel preferred sold 3½ higher and Wells-Fargo Express 13 points lower than preceding sale.

The subsidence of yesterday's active liquidation left the tone feverish. The expressions of dissent from the more extreme of the unfavorable views of Chairman Hill of the Great Northern, prompted covering of shorts. The demand was not widespread or persistent. The electrical equipment stocks were weakened by reports of a government prosecution. Lehigh Valley rose 2½, American Sugar 1⅝ and Atchison 1. Texas & Pacific and Minneapolis & St. Louis declined 3, General Electric 2½, American Linseed preferred 2⅝ and Westinghouse Electric 1¼. Bonds were heavy.

The market closed firm and quiet. Prices were let down a little at one time, but when it was seen that no important selling developed, they stiffened again to the highest of the day. Reading touched 150¼, Union Pacific rose 1¾. Great Northern preferred 1½ and Amalgamated Copper 1. Dealings fell into dullness again after these advances had been achieved.

COPPERS ARE MIXED; SOME CLIMB HIGH

The copper market was considerably mixed today. Some of the leaders, notably Amalgamated, recovered a part of yesterday's decline but the majority of stocks moved in a narrow trend and if they scored any advances such upturns were fractional.

Most of the buying came from scalpers who sold on yesterday's downturn. The copper metal situation is in a better condition than for some time as producers are working together to keep down the output. They are carrying out a program of reduction and refuse to sell at lower prices. The report of the producers' association in December will have considerable bearing on the output of the leading mines in the near future.

It is said that meeting of steel representatives wil be held in New York City tomorrow when the reduction of prices will be considered. Rails today were weaker than coppers and industrials were not conspicuous for their strength. The disturbing elements are pessimism among Eastern professionals over discouraging business and the absence of speculative activity on the part of the public, unsettled legal problems and the government's prosecution of the Standard Oil, American Tobacco and American Sugar Refining company. The money situation promises to become easier.

James J. Hill is reported to have given an interview to the New York American in which he declares he sees no present cause for alarm. He is reported to have said that general conditions of business are fairly good.

The local market was weak and trading was only moderate. Denn sold at $4.12½ to $4.13¾, Red Warrior at $1.93¾, Calumet & Montana at 85c, Calumet & Sonora at $8.50, Carman at 86c, Cliff at $1.50, Keating at 76c, Summit at 65c, Tuolumne at $5.12½ and $5.25.

Amalgamated sold at $67 to $66.75 to $67.87½, Butte Ballaklava at $5.75 to $5.50, Butte Coalition at $19.50 to $19 to $18.75, Giroux at $7.37½ and $7.25, North Butte at $33 to $33.50, Superior & Pittsburg at $13.62½, $13.37½ and $13.62½, Cactus at 24c.

Butte wired Paine, Webber & Co.: By the filing of a stipulation and agreement the controversy between the North Butte Mining company and the Tuolumne Copper Mining company has been settled out of court. Under the agreement the Tuolumne company becomes the undisputed owner of all minerals below the point of junction of the vein known as the Kesse Tuolumne vein with the south vein, twenty-three feet below the sill floor of the 400-foot level. The North Butte owns the vein or split above that level. The Tuolumne company owns the vein for the full distance through the Tuolumne claim and Jessie strip, a distance of 950 feet. It is below the 400-foot level that the Tuolumne opened up its richest and extensive ore bodies. The agreement is beneficial especially to the Tuolumne company. Both sides are relieved from any claim for ores that may have been illegally extracted. The directors of the Tuolumne company have decided to install a first motion hoist with capacity of 3,500 feet, new steel gallows frame and steel ore bins to contain 1,500 tons of ore. The adjustment of the controversy and the installation of these new equipment places the Tuolumne company in a class with the most percompany in a class with the most prominent and the heaviest copper producers of the Butte camp.

Butte & Ballaklava is shipping no ore at present but is confining its work to the development of veins not in dispute.

* * *

Work has been resumed on the sinking of the main shaft of the Giroux Consolidated company from its present depth of 1,800 feet to the 1,400-foot level, from which point another crosscut will be run to the Alpha ore body, about 750 feet distant. There is already a cross-cut at the 1,000-foot level and another will be partially completed on the 1,200-foot level.

For a long period of years The Herald has issued a Christmas edition. On the news and editorial side, it everywhere breathes the spirit of Christmas. In the advertising department it contains the final big announcements of all the merchants. It is not too early for both merchants and the public to begin thinking of Christmas. And it is for that reason that we announce today the date of this annual Christmas edition.

The Herald makes an effort to have each of its Christmas papers an improvement on the year before. This year we hope that Duluth will be prouder than ever of this splendid newspaper, which always expresses the wonderful importance of Duluth as a retail shopping center.

NORTHERN MINNESOTA AGAIN ASSEMBLES IN CONVENTION

TAKE THE FIRST STEP TOWARD ADOPTING COMMISSION PLAN

Charter Commission Will Gather All Information Available on Subject.

Sub Committee Will Then Be Named to Consider It.

If Report Is Favorable Special Election Will Be Ordered.

The charter commission at a meeting at the city hall last night, took its first positive step towards the submission of the commission plan of government to the voters of Duluth, when it adopted the report of the subcommittee recommending that the commission form be thoroughly investigated.

Chairman T. T. Hudson and Secretary C. F. Macdonald were instructed to secure copies of all charters from cities which are now operating wholly or partly under the commission plan. They were also directed to secure statements from the mayor and city attorney of each such city, as well as from as many other officials or citizens as is possible.

When this has been done another meeting of the commission will be called at which time Chairman Hudson will appoint a sub-committee of five men, who will carefully investigate the data secured. When they have completed their work, they will report to

STEEL AND IRON MAKERS MEET

Gary Is Not in Favor of Cutting Prices to Strengthen Situation.

New York, Nov. 30.—Steel makers representing the leading manufacturing companies in the United States met here today to discuss the present depressed condition in the steel trade and decide whether to maintain the present schedule of prices. The directors of the American Iron and Steel Institute met this morning, and following a lunch at the Railroad club the steel manufacturers were scheduled to meet.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the Steel corporation, said today that conditions in the steel trade were no worse now than they were at the time the manufacturers met last September, and indicated that he was not in favor of cutting prices as a means of strengthening the situation.

The general understanding at the meeting of the manufacturers two months ago was that prices were to be maintained, but it was said today that some of the smaller independents had cut prices.

Kindergartens For China.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Chang Yuan Chi, Chinese commissioner of education, is in Washington inspecting its schools. Yesterday he visited one of the kindergartens, with which he expressed his delight. It is his purpose, he said, to introduce kindergartens into China.

REFERENDUM ON TARIFF

Unionists Believe the Action Insures Success of Party.

London, Nov. 30.—The acceptance by A. J. Balfour, leader of the opposition in the house of commons, of the policy of the referendum in the case of tariff reform, has given the campaign a new complexion. In a political address last night Mr. Balfour announced that in the event of victory in the approaching elections he would be willing to submit the question of tariff reform to a referendum.

The declaration of the Unionist is received with enthusiasm by the party. It is thought it will help win votes in the north, where protection has not made the same headway as elsewhere. It also places the extreme radicals in a quandary, as heretofore the principle of the referendum has been a plank in their platform.

Chamberlain Gives Advice.

A few ardent tariff reformers are opposed to the proposition, but they probably will accept the situation, as

IS SENSITIVE ABOUT HIS WIFE'S MILLIONS

DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, Who Married Consuelo Vanderbilt.

London, Nov. 30.—There is a lively controversy between Chancellor Lloyd-George and the duke of Marlborough over a speech in which Lloyd-George referred to the titled families which had been restored to prosperity by American dollars. Marlborough took this as personal, especially because he once entertained Lloyd-George at Blenheim, an ancestral estate which really was restored by Vanderbilt money.

COOK HAS HIS DOUBTS

Says He Prefers to Be Called Crazy Rather Than Faker.

New York, Nov. 30.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the Brooklyn explorer, in an article which soon will be published in Hampton's Magazine, confesses that he does not know whether he reached the North Pole or not.

Dr. Cook, who has been in hiding for over a year, has informed the editors of the magazine publishing his story that he will return to the United States with his wife and children Dec. 25, in order to spend Christmas here.

Dr. Cook in his story deals with the psychology of his adventure, and says:

"Did I get to the North Pole? Perhaps I made a mistake in thinking that I did. Perhaps I did not make a mistake. After mature thought I confess that I do not know absolutely whether I reached the Pole or not. This may come as an amazing statement, but I am willing to startle the world if, by so doing, I can get an opportunity to present my case."

"Crazy, But Honest."

"By my case, I mean not my case as a geographical discoverer, but my case as a man. Much as the attainments of the North Pole once meant to me, the sympathy and confidence of my fellowmen mean more.

"Fully, freely and frankly, I shall tell you everything. Tell you everything—and leave the decision with you. If, after reading my story, you can say, 'Cook is sincere and honest; half crazed by months of isolation and hunger, he believed he reached the Pole; he is not a faker,' then I shall be satisfied."

Dr. Cook tells the story of his life,

TWENTY MICHIGAN HUNTERS KILLED

Forty-Six Others Wounded During the Deer Season.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—During the deer hunting season which opened Nov. 10 and closed today, there were forty-six accidents in the upper peninsula of Michigan, twenty of them fatal. More deaths are expected.

Practically all the accidents were due to carelessness. In four cases persons were shot accidentally and were left to die without attention.

In twenty-eight cases hunters were shot by mistake for deer.

More game fell and more hunters were killed or maimed in this territory this season than in any previous year. The slaughter of deer is estimated at 5,000.

DULUTH IS SIXTY-NINTH

Moves Up in List of Cities as Result of the Census.

More Than Holds Its Own With Other Cities in Country.

In a list of 147 cities, Duluth ranks sixty-ninth in point of population, on the basis of the results of the 1910 census sent out by the census bureau at Washington from time to time.

In a list of cities in 1900, Duluth ranked seventy-second, but the increase of three places in rank does not reflect the growth of the city, for in 1900, Duluth had only 52,969 people, while in 1910, 78,466 people gives Duluth only sixty-ninth rank, showing the tremendous increases made by all cities in the United States.

Houston, Youngstown, Yonkers, Kansas City, Kan., Tacoma, Dallas, Spokane and Birmingham, which ranked under Duluth ten years ago, now rank over Duluth, while St. Joseph, Mo.,

REWARD AWAITS NAVY LIFE SAVER

Discharged Man Is Told to Go to New York and Receive It.

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 30.—William Spurrier, who recently was discharged from the United States navy, has received a letter from a wealthy New York man asking him to come to New York to receive a substantial reward for having saved the life of his son at Naples.

In 1906, Spurrier, who was a sailor on the battleship Pennsylvania, pulled Lieut. M. E. Smith from between two pieces of machinery that would have crushed him to death. Spurrier's arm was broken.

WHEN IS A BOARDER IN A HOTEL A GUEST?

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 30.—Because a Hot Springs jury yesterday disagreed as to what constitutes the difference between a hotel "guest" and a "boarder," seventeen persons must wait a few months longer before it is decided whether they can secure reparation for personal effects destroyed in a recent hotel fire. The court held that a "guest" might recover the value of the property burned. A "boarder" was not so privileged.

ORE DUST MADE INTO REAL ASSET

Carnegie Company Has Process of Briquetting the Material.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 30.—The Carnegie Steel company mills of the United States Steel corporation yesterday saw the first briquette made from ore dust in their special plant. The briquette will be converted into pig iron, and thus is solved the conservation of ore dust which has heretofore been scattered by the winds.

The discovery of the plan with its operation here means a saving of millions of dollars on what has heretofore been accounted as waste and was reckoned in the cost of production. For two years the steel company has been working on a plan to capture the ore dust from the furnaces, and machinery was invented for this purpose. A special plant was built and its first product was brought to hand yesterday.

ALL EYES ON BRAINERD

Governor Eberhart and Most of State Officers to Attend.

Meeting May Settle Speakership of the Coming Legislature.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Brainerd, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The first annual meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association will begin here tomorrow morning, to continue two days. This meeting will be one of the most important public gatherings ever held in Minnesota and will attract to Brainerd representatives of every section of the state, and men prominent in public and business affairs, including the governor of the state, most of the state officers and scores of members and members-elect of the senate and house of representatives.

Brainerd is prepared to make the meeting a memorable one, the citizens uniting in an effort to extend the most cordial welcome and to make every visitor comfortable. No fireworks style of entertainment is even dreamed of by the people of Brainerd, as it is realized that the development association is a business organization and nothing else. No time or effort will be wasted on "trimmings," in this case, but everything will be business from start to finish.

Third Meeting.

The Brainerd meeting is the third that has been held since the inception of the association. At Bemidji last February the first meeting was held. There the project of organizing an association was discussed and given form. Much interest centered in the Bmidji meeting, for the objects

MOORHEAD WILL ESCAPE THE LID

City Is on Land Not Included in the Drouth Treaties.

Moorhead, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—It is a foregone conclusion that there will be no general raid of saloons in Moorhead, though there may be trouble for wholesalers, who Indian agents assert are surreptitiously shipping liquor to Indian territory, but the city land itself is under a different treaty from that of most Indian territory, even including parts of Clay county, in which Moorhead is located.

Agents claim to have traced several illegal shipments to Moorhead houses and have served final notices on proprietors that the next time they will bring axes and sledge hammers. Agents Way and Quinn, whos presence here yesterday after the Georgetown raid caused such uneasiness in Moorhead, have gone to Bemidji, where the remaining saloons will be closed this week.

BURGLARS BUSY AGAIN

Three More Attempts to Enter Buildings Reported to Police.

Men Scared Away in Each Case Before Getting Anything.

Three more attempted burglaries were reported to the police over night. In each case it is claimed that the thieves got nothing.

The baggage room at the Soo depot, Sixth avenue west and Superior street, was broken open during the night. When the employes came to work this morning they found the lock smashed and the door ajar. They made as complete an examination as possible and reported that as far as they could determine, no trunks or grips had been opened and none carried away.

A clerk at Abbett's drug store reported to the police last night that he had frightened away two men who had evidently intended to loot the store of the Oak Hall Clothing company, Second avenue west and Superior street. Both are in the same building and use a common passageway to the basement, from which access can be gained to the clothing store. He heard a noise in the rear and when he went to investigate saw

MURDER CASE DISMISSED

Joseph Schmitz Discharged But Is Immediately Re-Arrested on Same Charge.

Case Started By Schmitz Against Riley Before Shooting Also Dismissed.

The case of the state against Joseph Schmitz, charged with the murder of George Riley, was dismissed this morning by Judge J. D. Ensign of the district court upon motion of the county attorney. Schmitz enjoyed freedom for only a short walk, however, for he was arrested at the door of the courtroom by Deputy Sheriff Mike Horgan.

Because of a technical error in the indictment, the county attorney found it impossible to go on with the case at this time. Schmitz was taken back to the county jail, where he will await the January term of the district court.

Case Against Riley Dismissed.

A peculiar feature of the case is that this morning in municipal court the case of Schmitz against Riley was dismissed. Shortly before the shooting, Schmitz swore out a warrant for Riley's arrest, charging Riley with assault in the third degree. Schmitz thought that Riley had taken a shot at him from ambush. The case was never tried, nor was the warrant ever served. This morning, nearly a month after Riley's death, the case was dismissed.

The developments in the Schmitz case this morning means that the case will go over until the January term of court. The January grand jury will reconsider the indictment and change the error that crept in.

The crime with which Schmitz is charged is supposed to have been the result of a quarrel between the two men who owned farms adjoining one another on the Jean duLuth stock farm road.

Story of Shooting.

The shooting is supposed to have taken place on Oct. 22. Riley called at the Schmitz home and as Schmitz thought that the day before Riley had taken a shot at him, he ordered him from the premises, it is said. Upon his refusal, Schmitz, it is alleged, fired the three shots, one of which caused Riley's death. Riley went as far as the road, where he fell from loss of blood. At first it was thought that he had been the victim of a stray bullet, but later Schmitz was charged with the crime and was placed under arrest.

The county attorney has received a petition from nearly fifty settlers who live in the neighborhood of the Schmitz and Riley families, asking that both sides be given a fair trial. The petition in no way states the feeling of the settlers. It simply states that the trouble is to be regretted and asks that both sides get a fair deal.

Schmitz was much disappointed at the delay of his trial, and Attorney A. E. McManus objected to the delay for him. One juror, John Jeffrey, had been drawn to sit in on the case.

Schmitz is confident that he will be acquitted and he is anxious to get the trial over as he has already made arrangements to buy a farm in Oregon.

BUSINESS FIRMS BUY RED CROSS SEALS

Last year there was much spirited rivalry among the wholesale houses of the city on the sale of the Red Cross seals and this year the effort to do the most to help the great campaign against tuberculosis is being taken up with enthusiasm among the firms of the city.

The Fitger Brewing company has ordered 2,500 seals, the Scott-Graff company has sent in an order for 1,000, and the Bridgeman & Russell company has ordered 500. The efforts are most friendly and the rivalry could not be well expended in a better cause.

The desire to help is widespread. The vaudeville and moving picture houses of the city are showing a slide bearing the Red Cross seal at every performance, and every retail establishment in the city will mail out with their monthly statements an enclosure calling attention to the Red Cross seal and its purposes. In Duluth tomorrow 25,000 of these little notices will be mailed.

For those who are fond of figures it might be added that during the holiday season Red Cross seal dodgers will be enclosed in bundles wrapped at the retail stores, several hundred banners will be placed on delivery wagons and automobiles, street car cards will be posted on every street car.

In addition the seals are for sale everywhere. And besides they will be sold Saturday at noon for one-half an hour at the corner of Superior street and Third avenue west by Miss Annette Kellermann, who will wear a white fur coat and will be in a decorated bright red automobile, and she will sell the seals in envelopes containing 25, 50 or 100.

Seipel of Seattle, and a daughter, Anna L. Seipel of Duluth. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

LAST DAY FOR FILING

List of Candidates for Primaries Will Be Complete Before Night.

Few Contests of Special Interest Are in Prospect Yet.

Although this is the last day for candidates for city office to file their declarations of candidacy, no one had come forward with such a declaration up to an early hour this afternoon.

The primaries will be held Dec. 20, and the election Feb. 7. At the primary election the party nominations will be made. There are no particularly hot contests in prospect, but some rivalries will come to an issue then, notably in the Fifth ward, where Alderman John A. MacDonell is running for a renomination and is opposed by W. L. Pierce. They are Democrats. D. M. Robertson, who ran for sheriff on the Public Ownership ticket, also is in the field in the Fifth ward aldermanic race, but the contest lies between Messrs. MacDonell and Pierce.

City Treasurer Voss and Comptroller McCormick are not opposed for renomination and re-election. John A. Keyes, a lawyer, is opposing F. H. Cutting for special judge of the municipal court, running on the Public Ownership ticket.

The filings made up to date are:

Treasurer—
Frederick J. Voss ..... Democrat
Comptroller—
W. S. McCormick ..... Republican
Special Judge, Municipal Court—
Frank H. Cutting..... Democrat
John A. Keyes ..... Public Ownership
Justice of the Peace, West Duluth—
J. B. Flack ..... Republican
George Clemetson ..... Democrat Aldermen—
First ward:
Frank L. Young ..... Republican
G. Fred Meyers .... Public Ownership
Second ward:
Robert Lueck ..... Republican
W. M. Miller ..... Democrat
George J. Bloedel .....Democrat
A. Alvin Johnson .... Public Ownership
Third ward:
Charles J. Hector ..... Democrat
E. J. Hibbard ..... Public Ownership
Victor A. Johnson ... Public Ownership
Fourth ward:
Joseph Shartel ..... Democrat
Fifth ward:
W. L. Pierce ..... Democrat
John A. MacDonell ..... Democrat
D. M. Robertson ..... Public Ownership
Sixth ward:
Charles R. Hoar ..... Democrat
Daniel E. Eklund .. Public Ownership
Seventh ward:
Joseph B. Gibson ..... Democrat
Arthur L. Sauve ..... Republican
Eighth ward:
Charles Stevens .... Public Ownership

It is probable that W. J. McCabe will file late this afternoon for the Republican nomination for alderman from the First ward. He has been the target today for a good deal of importunity and said early this afternoon that he was giving the question the most earnest consideration. Mr. McCabe was reluctant to enter a contest for the nomination, but the insistence of his friends that he make the run seemed to be having the desired effect on him.

David Sang did not file for alderman from the Eighth ward until late this afternoon. He was indorsed for the Democratic nomination at a meeting held last evening in Alderman W. B. Getchell's office. Mr. Sang formerly served in the council.

GAYNOR ASSAULT CASE WITHHELD

New York, Nov. 30.—J. J. Gallagher, who shot Mayor William J. Gaynor, was brought into court today in Jersey City and arraigned before Judge Blair on the charge of atrocious assault with intent to kill Street Cleaning Commissioner William H. Edwards of New York and with carrying concealed weapons.

Edwards was with Mayor Gaynor when the latter was shot, and in protecting the executive is alleged to have been attacked by Gallagher and slightly wounded.

Gallagher pleaded not guilty, with certain reservations, and was at once taken back to his cell in the Jersey City jail.

In court today there was no mention by the prosecution of the prisoner's attack upon the mayor. It developed that Prosecutor Garvan intended to keep in reserve the charge against Gallagher of atrocious assault with intent to kill Mayor Gaynor.

Under New Jersey Law.

Under the New Jersey laws, should the victim of an assault die within a year and a day from the commission of the crime, a charge of murder may be placed against his assailant.

To his plea, Gallagher, through his counsel, Alexander Simpson, attached the reservation that the plea might be withdrawn or the indictment demurred to. His counsel also reserved the right to make other application to determine whether the man is sane or insane.

The court granted the prosecution's application for a struck jury to try the case. The jury will be struck a week from today.

Woman Drowns Near Wheaton.

Wheaton, Minn., Nov. 30.—Mrs. W. L. Rittenour, wife of one of the leading farmers of this county, was drowned in the Mustinka river, seven miles north of this city. A small hole had been cut in the ice in order to water stock, and either Mrs. Rittenour fell into it and could not get out, or committed suicide. When Mr. Rittenour reached the place she was dead. Mrs. Rittenour was the mother of three small children.

F. Z. Barthe Recovers $100 in Cash Through Herald "Want" Advertisement.

Yesterday afternoon about 1:45 o'clock F. Z. Barthe, secretary of the Barthe-Martin company, left a purse on the counter at the City National bank containing over $100 in cash. He immediately inserted a want ad in The Herald, offering a liberal reward for its return. Before evening the wallet, with its contents intact, had again been placed in his hands. It had been picked up by a stranger in the bank and returned to him.

Mr. Barthe stated that he had several important business matters on his mind at the time he was at the bank and walked away without thinking of the pocket book, which he had taken from his pocket a short time before.

MARINE

NAVIGATION SEASON ENDS

Some Coal Cargoes Will Arrive After Close of Season.

At 12 o'clock tonight the lake navigation season will be officially closed for the year of 1910.

A few vessels will arrive here after the close, as a fleet will leave the lower lakes this evening for the Head of the Lakes. However, the season will be over when the vessel insurance goes off, which it does at midnight, and statisticians will soon be busy in figuring the volume of business for the past season.

Up to noon, the Hart is the only vessel to arrive at the local harbor today. The Hart struck somewhere in the lower lakes, damaging her hull somewhat. She was taken to the Superior shipyards and will be drydocked for repairs. The damage is not serious. The Hart will winter here.

Approximately 2,000,000 bushels of grain will leave before midnight. As far as the local vessel agents know at the present time, no grain will go down after the official close of navigation. The outlook is against the movement of any freight after lake insurance goes off.

No Insurance Extension.

The Great Lakes Protective association, composed of the vessel owners of the Great Lakes, has declared against the extension of marine insurance after today. It is stated that the vessel owners cannot see a sufficient volume of business to warrant the extension of insurance, even at higher rates.

Already the ice is beginning to interfere somewhat with the operation of vessels. After the fifth of next month the government will remove all lights, without which it would be next to impossible to operate vessels.

There will naturally be some movement after the official close, but to all intents and purposes the season will end today.

Just how many boats will leave today, it is impossible to say at the present time. Seven or eight boats are loading at the elevators, and five or six package freighters are in the list of vessels that have held over here until the last day of the season.

Not for a number of years has the business of the Great Lakes been so thoroughly cleaned up at the official close of navigation. That is the strongest reason for believeing that there will be no extension of lake vessel insurance. In other seasons, the official close of navigation has found a volume of business waiting to be moved. This season, aside from the fact that today is the time set for the closing of lake activities, the business has been cleaned up. The last ore boat went down yesterday, all the grain has been moved, the package freight movement is through and vessel owners say that all the coal that the docks can handle for the present season, is here at the present time. The boats reaching here after the close of navigation, will carry storage coal in some instances, and will provide the immense dockage facilities at the Head of the Lakes ample fuel with which to supply the widening Head of the Lakes market the present winter.

No Time Lost at Docks.

While the season may have not been wholly prosperous to all of the independent shippers, the vessels that have had the handling of contract ore and coal have been kept extremely busy. This has been especially true because so little time has been lost at the docks. With the modern machinery for handling cargoes and with the modern vessels with their larger holds, dispatch today is the best in the history of lake navigation. That is one reason why a large amount of ore has been moved in a comparatively short time.

In the past two weeks or more the coal handling at The Head of the Lakes has not been as rapid as it might have been, for the reason that there was, in many instances, no return cargo for the boats, and also because the docks here have been more or less congested. Aside from this delay in the coal hauling, at the fag end of the season, there has been less time lost at the docks than ever before in the history of lake commerce.

ORE SHIPMENTS FROM ASHLAND

Over 4,000,000 Tons Sent Down the Lakes This Year.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The ore shipping season closed at Ashland yesterday, although coal vessels are expected to arrive until about the middle of December.

The shipments for the year are: C. & N. W. ore docks, 3,387,916; Soo ore dock, 705,906; total, 4,093,825.

About sixty cargoes went to the Canadian ports of Deseronto, Michipicoten, Midland, Point Edward and the Canadian Soo. Coal receipts this year amount to nearly 700,000 tons.

LAST MARQUETTE BOATS

Are Expected to Leave That Port Some Time Today.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last boats to clear from Marquette this season are taking on their cargoes. The Robbins which is expected to clear from the L. S. & I. dock today, is the last boat of the season to load there. The Thompson, which was emptied of her coal cargo at Pickand's dock Monday, ends the season at the coal dock. The Thompson will load with ore today, and she will be the last boat to clear from the South Shore docks. At Spear's dock, the last coal boat of the year is unloading. The prediction made some time ago that the navigation season in Marquette would end before Dec. 1 is now certain to be verified.

ORE AND COAL RECORDS BROKEN.

Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 29.—Although the end of the Great Lakes navigation season, which comes tomorrow, is two weeks earlier than usual, the 1910 ore transportation record has been broken by more than 1,500,000 tons. The total tonnage will be close to 43,000,000. Coal shipment records were broken also.

WANT DEEPER CHANNEL.

Menominee, Mich., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—A protest is made by local shippers because the channel of the Menominee river has not been kept at the required depth. The channel at the draw bridge is said to be only seventeen feet deep instead of twenty feet as required by naval regulations.

WILL ASK FUND TO FIGHT PARALYSIS

New York State Board of Health Wants an Appropriation.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 30.—For the investigation of infantile paralysis, the state board of health will ask the legislature at the session beginning in January to make an appropriation. During the current year, according to the estimate of Surgeon General Wyman, there have been approximately 3,000 cases of this disease in the United States.

As a rule epidemic paralysis is a disease of the summer months, but previous history, the board says, leads one to suspect that enough cases will appear from time to time during the winter to carry the disease through the cold season, and that it will break out again with increasing virulence under more favorable climatic conditions next year.

BITTER WEATHER FELT IN CHICAGO

One Death From Exposure Is Reported in the Windy City.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—A drop of 20 deg in temperature, accompanied by a steady snowstorm, swept in upon the city today from the Northwest, bringing much discomfort to the shelterless and destitute. It brought a rush of needy to the county aid stations, chiefly in appeals for fuel and shoes.

The first death from exposure was reported by the police today. William Cronin, 38 years old, was found dead in a basement room, the windows without glass and the fire out.

DEMURRER IS OVERRULED

Judge Cant Upholds Indictment in Case Against John K. Teetzel.

Judge William A. Cant of the district court this morning overruled the demurrer by the attorneys in the case of the state against John K. Teetzel, who is charged with having swindled the Kelley Hardware company upon addiphones, devices used on telephones which are supposed to increase the sound.

Teetzel, in the demurrer, claimed that the indictment brought against him by the November grand jury did not state a cause for action and that details were lacking.

The county attorney contended that all the facts there were necessary were stated in the indictment and the court upheld the county attorney.

In the indictment Teetzel is charged with an attempt to swindle. He, it is claimed, took his device to the company stating that he was agent. He, it is stated, secured a check as an advance payment on the addiphones to be shipped by his company at Pittsburg. The hardware company, becoming suspicious, wired to the headquarters of the firm and claims to have found that Teetzel was not their agent.

SERIOUS PROBLEM FOR HEALTH DEPARTMENT.

The health department and the hospital authorities are having difficulty in solving a diphtheria problem with which they are confronted. Several patients have recently been taken from the local hospitals suffering from the disease and it is feared that they contracted their illness after they had entered the institutions.

Dr. Webster stated this morning that it is practically impossible to close both hospitals in Duluth. The only solution which he could suggest was to keep out all new patients until the congestion had been so relieved that one floor at a time could be fumigated. Three nurses from one of the hospitals are now at the city contagious hospital. Cultures taken from their noses and throats show diphtheria although they themselves appear perfectly healthy.

He intends appointing an agency here for the Columbia line which it will be remembered is the pioneer automobile company of the country having been for sixteen consecutive years making pleasure cars. They the owners of the Selden patent, under which all high grade motor cars are built today.

Mr. Kelley is enthusiastic about Duluth, which he says is coming to be recognized as a factor in the market of the Middle West. He expects to be in the city several days.

WEST END NEWS

WEST END FALLS INTO LINE FOR COMMISSION PLAN

Business Men of Western Suburb All Indorse Proposed Change.

West End Commercial Club Will Discuss It at Next Meeting.

WHAT THEY SAY ABOUT THE COMMISSION PLAN.

S. W. Hill, president West End Commercial club: "Only thing for Duluth. West end business men all indorse it."

Former Alderman J. J. Moe: "Excellent idea. We should run the city as we would any first-class business concern."

George M. Jensen of the West End Advertiser: "The theory appeals to me. It will tend toward a more economical administration."

Former Alderman Peter Olson: "I have always favored it. It will simplify the city administration and save taxpayers money."

Dr. L. Q. Greeley: "It is a logical proposition. Municipal affairs should be conducted the same as a large corporation."

That it will be difficult to find a business man of the West end who is opposed to the commission form of government for Duluth, after he has given the matter a careful consideration, was the declaration of S. W. Hill, president of the West End Commercial club, in an interview this morning.

"A commission form of government for Duluth is the only plan," said Mr. Hill. "For a number of years I have taken an active interest in this way of conducting municipal affairs, and have watched its growth in Los Angeles, where I have a brother who is engaged in the newspaper business. In the Los Angeles papers I have read with interest the workings and advantages of the commission plan, and nothing could convince me that the old ward system is as good.

"The sentiment at the West end seems to be unanimous for the new plan, and I have yet to meet the man who is opposed to it from this section of the city." Mr. Hill stated that the Commercial club would take the matter up at its meeting Dec. 9. Mayor M. B. Cullum will address the members and will tell of some of the advantages to be gained by adopting the commission form.

• • •

Peter Olson, a former alderman of the Sixth ward, in speaking of the proposed plan, says: "From what I have heard, I am strongly inclined to the commission plan. It will mean that city government will be simplified and it will save taxpayers money."

• • •

George M. Jensen of the West End Advertiser and secretary of the West End Commercial club, says: "As far as I have studied it, the theory has always appealed to me. The sooner that we get away from the old ward system the better it will be for Duluth. A board of city commissioners elected at large will tend toward a more economical administration."

• • •

Former Alderman J. J. Moe of the Seventh ward says: "I believe that the commission form of government is the proper way to run a city. The city should be conducted as any first-class business concern. I have always favored it."

• • •

Dr. L. Q. Greeley says: "The commission plan, as far as I have investigated it, looks to be a very logical thing, capable of solving municipal problems. The idea of getting competent men to run the city should be applied to municipal affairs as well as in the case of large corporations. I believe that city affairs should be conducted in a more business-like way."

ODD FELLOWS ELECT OFFICERS.

Carl Phillips was elected noble grand of the Zenith City lodge, No. 160, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, last evening at its meeting at Columbia hall Twentieth avenue west and Superior street. The other officers elected for the coming year were: Fred Hoffler, vice noble grand; J. W. Allen, secretary; L. A. Simonson, financial secretary; J. W. Gilleland, treasurer; and Fred Anderson, trustee.

The meeting was largely attended and following the business meeting, the evening was given over to social activities. An oyster dinner was served and a program of speeches was rendered. R. D. Haven, former mayor, was chairman of the entertainment committee.

WEST END BOY DIES OF TYPHOID FEVER.

William Vine, 17 years old, died of typhoid fever last evening at the home of his father, Abraham Vine, 832 Garfield avenue. Death followed a long illness.

The boy had been attending school in St. Cloud, Minn., and came home a few weeks ago on account of illness. He is survived by his father only.

No funeral arrangements have been made.

Mrs. Emma Alexander, 46 years old, wife of J. J. Alexander of 2230 West Michigan street, died yesterday afternoon at St. Mary's hospital after a short illness. Besides her husband, she is survived by three sons and two daughters. No funeral arrangements have been announced.

West End Shortrails.

The Epworth League of the First Norwegian-Danish M. E. church entertained last evening at a reception for church members. Among the speakers were Rev. Edward Erickson, pastor, and A. P. Lund. A musical program was given.

Mrs. Samuel Stevens of 2231 West Third street is visiting relatives at Midway for a few days.

A meeting of the official board of Grace M. E. church will be held this evening at the church, Twenty-second avenue west and Third street.

The Busy Bee Society of Bethany Swedish Lutheran church will meet Saturday afternoon at the church, Twenty-third avenue west and Third street.

Charles A. Moore, who will be pleasantly remembered by many friends he made last year when here with W. H. Crane, will be in Duluth next week with "The Chocolate Soldier." Mr. Moore is one of the best known men in the theatrical world, and is a great booster for Duluth.

• • •

• • •

Miss Gertrude Van Dyck of Van Dyck and Fern, who are appearing at the Empress this week, is truly a phenomenal singer. She sings the prison scene from "Faust" in two entirely different voices, singing Marguerite in a pure soprano and Mephistopheles in a deep, resonant bass. Miss Van Dyck has but lately returned from Europe, where she appeared before several of the greatest singers on the continent and they all were mystified that any one could possess two voices of such caliber. While Miss Van Dyck was appearing at the Royal theater, Leicester square, London, she was commanded to appear before the late King Edward and he was so favorably impressed with her singing that he had her sing him on three different occasions, while she was at the Royal theater.

the legs of two men disappearing. A member of the firm was notified. He investigated and as far as he was able to see, the contents of the place were intact.

The third burglar alarm came from the residence of Sands Van Wagner, 1819 Piedmont avenue, about 2 o'clock this morning. They telephoned that a burglar was in the house. The police made a quick run to the scene in the big Franklin but a thorough search of the premises failed to reveal the alleged prowler. The residents insisted that they heard some one enter the front door, which was unlocked, and switch on the light in the hallway. They thought that he must have been scared away when Mrs. Van Wagner called out.

Five other attempted burglaries have been reported in the last week. One was at the Manhattan Wine house, another at the California Wine house, a third at the store of the Duluth Fur company, a fourth at a plumbing shop near Third avenue east and Superior street and another from a residence at Tenth avenue east and Second street. As was the case last night the thieves did not succeed in getting any plunder.

PLAN UNION OF ALL METHODISTS

Joint Commission Begins Its Sessions in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 30.—Measures that are regarded by persons well informed on the subject as leading ultimately to organic union of the three great branches of American Methodists, will be considered at a meeting here of the joint commission on federation, composed of delegates from the Methdist Episcopal church, Methodist Episcopal church South, and the Methodist Protestant church. The sessions began today and will continue until tomorrow evening.

The immediate object of the commission is to bring about a federation so as the three bodies so as to eliminate destructive competition, both at home and in the missionary fields abroad.

The commissioners, twenty-seven in number, are among the leading churchmen of the denomination, the body being composed of bishops, ministers and laymen. Today's meeting was largely preliminary, being taken up with devotional exercises and welcoming ceremonies.

NORTH DAKOTA SHERIFF FRUSTRATES FIGHT PLANS.

Williston, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the authorities learned that Cinnamon and Munyer had been matched for a twenty-round ring battle in this city, Sheriff O. B. Olson issued a statement that the mill would not be countenanced. The decision of the sheriff put an end to all kinds of prize fighting in Williams county. The mill had been extensively advertised and a goodly crowd was anticipated when the sheriff took a hand in the affair.

MACAO SEIZED BY REBELS

Portuguese Dependency Is in Hands of Army and Navy.

Nuns Are Expelled and Governor Is Forced to Resign.

Macao, Island of Macao, China, Nov. 30.—The Portuguese troops of the local garrison and the crew of the Portuguese gunboat Patria revolted last night, and taking possession of the city, proceeded to enforce certain changes in the administration of the affairs of this dependency of Portugal. The rebels continued in control today, the government and military officers being powerless.

The revolt began with the landing of the sailors of the Patria, who marched to the public square, where they fired three volleys as a signal to the troops, who at once forced an entrance to the armory and, arming themselves, joined the seamen.

Drove Nuns From Convent.

Several hundred strong, the rebels proceeded to Santa Clara convent, from which they drove out the nuns, ordering them to leave the island. The nuns fled to Hongkong.

From the convent the rebels marched to Government house, before which they mounted a cannon. An interview with the governor was requested, and when the officers at Government house intervened they were silenced at the point of the bayonet.

The governor was compelled to hear the demands, which were the expulsion of the religious orders, increased pay for the army and navy, the suppression of the newspaper Vida Nova and the righting of alleged wrongs suffered by the soldiers and sailors.

Under threat, the government granted every demand.

Anxiety in Hongkong.

Hongkong, Nov. 30.—There is intense anxiety here, and foreign consuls are making urgent inquiries regarding the security of the citizens of their countries and their propety in Macao.

The Chinese viceroy has been warned to have troops in readiness for action. The British authorities had not sent a gunboat to the scene today. British citizens of Macao are arriving here.

Macao was settled by Portuguese merchants in the latter part of the sixteenth century and long was a flourishing port. After the cession of Hongkong to the British the trade of Macao declined rapidly. The city was subsequently ceded to Portugal by China.

Gradually the Portuguese extended their rule over the whole island of Macao. China objected to this extension of territory, and insisting that the only concession ever made to Portugal was limited to the city of Macao, has frequently clashed with the Lisbon government over their respective territorial rights. Continued diplomatic negotiations have failed to definitely adjust the matter.

The city is now divided into two wards, one inhabited by Chinese and the other mostly by Portuguese, each having its own administration. When the Portuguese monarchy was overthrown the Portuguese of Macao petitioned the provisional government of Lisbon to permit the religious orders to remain undisturbed on the island.

MOOSE HIDE FOR ROOF ON SHANTY

Northern Minnesota Trapper Furnished Evidence for Game Warden.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Game Warden William Munch has returned from one of his most successful trips after illegal hunters and trappers. He journeyed overland fifty-five miles east of Middle river to the forks of the Moose river where he arrested Adolph Hokapp, a Canadian for killing a cow moose. He found the moose hide over Hokapp's trapper shanty for a roof, where Hokapp would stop over night in making the rounds of his 115 traps, which he had used the cow moose meat to bait. Hokapp was taken to Middle River and fined $102.50 by Judge Greer which he paid. He had already caught three bears and many rats, weasels, etc.

Carl Ek was arrested in the same vicinity for killing a cow moose. He had the hide buried under the ice in the Moose river but Warden Munch chopped it out. Ek paid $52 before the same judge.

In the town of Hunter, Marshall county, Munch arrested Edward Rankin for killing a cow moose, finding the hide stretched in the woods nearby. He also paid a $52 fine before Judge Greer. All three were single men and Rankin's father is wealthy.

RIVALRY TO SECURE CATHOLIC BOYS' COLLEGE.

Winona, Minn., Nov. 30.—Keen rivalry has developed in the Catholic diocese of Winona among several cities in an effort to secure the proposed $300,000 boys' college, which Bishop P. R. Heffron has announced he will establish "somewhere in this diocese." Among the cities which will offer inducements will be Winona, Rochester and Albert Lea.

CRIMINAL OPERATION CAUSED GIRL'S DEATH.

Stillwater, Minn., Nov. 30.—Coroner Landeen conducted an inquest Monday to determine the cause of the death of Anna Louise Anderson, alleged to have died as the result of an illegal operation.

The jury returned a verdict that the girl came to her death from the effects of a criminal operation by a doctor living outside of this city.

Thomas Quinehan, who was in custody here and was taken to St. Paul last week, was released by the sheriff of Ramsey county without bail. He was held as a witness. He came home Saturday.

This Suit Sale Predates the Half Price Events, and Outstrips Their Values, Too

EVEN half price suit sales (and within a month there will likely be many about town) will not yield such splendid bargains as this timely purchase of ours offers. The garments in this lot are not the shop-worn stocks usually offered at the half-price sales, but new, stylish and desirable suits direct from a prominent maker.

With suit manufacturers its always a rule to figure on a quick "turn-over" of their money. When unavoidable conditions leave them a stock on hand, such as the recent Expressmen's strike in New York did, they quickly pocket their loss and dispose of their surplus to enterprising stores.

The consumer gets the big benefit (we get a reasonable profit on our sales, of course), and the saving in this instance is more than half if she chooses from these—

CONCERNING WOMAN.

"Fresh air and exercise! Fresh air and exercise! Fresh air and exercise!" insisted Miss Annette Kellerman this morning at her free lecture at the Orpheum. "Don't drink, don't smoke, don't overeat," she admonished her feminine hearers while she pranced around a vision of delight in her bathing suit of black. "I tell you the truth, I have never tasted a cocktail in my life, cross my heart. Drink nine glasses of water every day, half way between meals, none or as little as possible at meals. Cut out the 'steen meals a day that most married women have, and take fresh air and exercise, fresh air and exercise."

During the hour that Miss Kellerman talked at the Orpheum a quieter audience has not been assembled. The theater was well filled and many more could have heard her lecture on normal living with much profit. Miss Kellerman wore a princess dress for the first few minutes of her talk and then slipped it off right in view of the audience in order that they "wouldn't miss a trick."

"Oh I know how it will be," said Miss Kellerman. "You'll look at the exercises I show you and try them for three days and then you'll say I'm no fatter or thinner, and quit. It takes persistence. You've got to keep at it. You need fresh air.

"A woman can be modest and womanly and still go in for outdoor sports. If the girls of today were allowed to have some real interest in a real sport they wouldn't get married so early, simply because they had nothing else to do, and there would be fewer early marriages, fewer divorces and fewer weak children brought into the world.

"Remember to have plenty of fresh air."

Then for the exercises. Miss Kellerman showed how to develop the chest, how to reduce the hips, how to make the ankles slim, how to strengthen the back. She stood with one hand on the back of a chair and put one toe out at a level with her hip, swung it straight around to the side and then to the back, and crumpled it up to bring it forward to do all over again. "I can just see you doing this," giggled Miss Kellerman to herself. "You'll be getting breakfast off the mantlepiece for a day or two," she said in aside, while she switched to the other leg.

Miss Kellerman announced that she would answer questions on health. "Remember, I'm no beauty culturist," admonished Miss Kellerman. "Don't ask me how to make a short nose long. I don't know how."

"Do you think you are perfect?" was one of the bland questions written and sent to her.

"You must think I'm a silly ass," said Miss Kellerman with brevity. "As if anyone but an idiot would think themselves perfect."

"What is good for a red nose," asked another. "Fresh air and proper exercise," said Miss Kellerman. "Your red nose is caused from over eating—I hope."

"No woman ought to be fat," said Miss Kellerman. "There is no excuse for being horribly, atrociously disgustingly fat. Fresh air and exercise will make it vanish."

"Have you corsets on?" "Do you wear anything under your bathing suit?" were questions that appeared many times. "I'll show you," said Miss Kellerman," and she reached for a convenient pair of scissors and snip, snip, snip—!

And that was the end of the lecture. Miss Kellerman's only other local appearance aside from her regular act at the theater will be Saturday at noon when she will sell Red Cross Christmas seals at Third avenue west and Superior street to help in the work of the local Anti-tuberculosis society.

NATIONAL DRESS REQUIRED BY LAW IN BULGARIA

A land where everyone is his own dressmaker and tailor— a land where customs and costumes may be used not at all and femininity may not pore over the entrancing pages of fashion guides or study store windows for hints of Parisian modes, but each must depend entirely on her own ingenuity in developing new patterns of fabric and embroidery along exactly the same ideas her parents used far back into the misty past—is Bulgaria.

Would the American man and woman submit to such edict without a struggle that would make new political parties? Man might, for his tailor has said: "Thus shalt thou do" these many years and he has become accustomed to meekly submit to browns and grays and peg-top trousers in ordered succession—but woman who knows more about mousseline de soie, and chenille and batiste—and things—than man even knows about the batting average of the Cubs—what would she do?

But national dress must be worn in Bulgaria, for the ruler as well as those of the other little Balkan states, looks far ahead and must keep up the bars between his subjects and the hungry tiger nations that wait around him always waiting for the chance to devour; Russia, Austria and suave old Turkey stand at his gates with glistening eyes and wait, and so for that reason the fervent nationalism of the people must be kept flaming and what seems extravagant theatricalism of dress in these days when what is called European dress is encroaching on most of the world, keeps the Bulgarians alive to the individuality of the state by the expression in the very jackets of the men and the skirts and marvelous embroidery of the women. It is in tone with the minstrelsy of the single stringed fiddles and the ever present readiness for war.

Antoinette Kopetzky, prima donna of "The Chocolate Soldier," wears a dress she herself brought from the Balkan state which was made by one of the peasant women for her own wedding dress, which had needed every possible hour for more than four years to make. Fashioned in a basket weave pattern in which the spaces vary from the size of a pin-head to more than two inches, it is of the dark crimsoning threads interwoven with small golden and black flowers arranged in star-shaped forms, and most wonderful of all, not a needle has ever been used in its making. Bulgaria believes in fringes and arranges them in every possible form and place and it is noticeable that since the wonderful popularity of "The Chocolate Soldier" in New York with these gorgeous costumes America has found the graceful fringes good and placed them high in its book of styles.

ANTOINETTE KOPETZKY.

With the Bulgarians the fringes are symbolic, for the gathering of the many threads suggests to the wearers the numbers and union of their people, as their peculiar red dye is a reminder of their rich blood, and the flowers and grains and fruits embroidered on their gowns represents their industry.

THE EVENING STORY

THE PEACE OFFERING

By Hilda Shaw.

He stood spellbound before a bunch of lilies of the valley.

He was a poor specimen of humanity, but half sober, with a bleary eye and unsteady gait, eloquent of too free a use of the cup that inebriates. Yet as he stood at the local flower show before the bouquet of innocent white flowers, the great tears welled into his eyes, and, with a half sob, he muttered tenderly:

"My poor lass, my poor lass. It's a sorry attempt I've made to love and cherish you as I swore to do thirty years ago now—when I led you to the marriage altar."

"Come on, Bill," said one of his companions, roughly. "We want to get along and see the fun, and then for another drink at the Blue Dragon."

"I'm not coming, Jim," he said firmly. "You and the other chaps had best go on without me. I've got a fancy to go back to my old woman."

"Come on, Bill," said one of the men who had not spoken before; "that's a pretty tale. You can't make us believe that you know."

"It's the gospel truth, I'm just going back to my Betsy straight away," Bill answered firmly.

There was a note of conviction in Bill's voice, and this added to the unusual firmness of his speech, caused his companions to say to one another:

"Come on! let's go. So long, Bill."

After they had gone, Bill stood for some time before the bunch of white flowers, thinking deeply. Then he fumbled in a pocket of his trousers for a minute or two. After some search he pulled out five shillings.

"Wonder if it'll be enough?" he said wistfully to himself.

Going up to an attendant near-by, he said somewhat timidly.

"What'll you sell that bunch for?" pointing as he spoke to the bouquet of lilies that had taken his fancy.

"I'll take it," Bill said promptly, with a smile of pleasure which lit up his worn face wonderfully.

Rapidly he made his way out of the field which had for the time being been converted into a show ground for the yearly flower fete; and made his way through the streets towards his home.

This was his home. A feeling of shame stole over him, as if for the first time he noticed how poor and shabby the place was in spite of its scrupulous cleanliness; for the conscience which had been awakened by the sight of the bunch of lilies of the valley was giving him a somewhat uncomfortable time.

He opened the door softly and entered the neat house. All was in its usual order, but he saw there was no one there. Gently he called his wife's name.

"Betsy," he said. "Betsy, where are you?"

There was no response, and, still holding the flowers in his hand, he pushed open another door and entered the only room of which the cottage could boast.

With his new-found gentleness, he stole softly across the room and stood there silently gazing down at the woman who had been a true, wife for thirty long years.

She looked very worn and old, he thought. There were traces of tears on the careworn face, which contrasted strangely with the vision he had conjured up in his mind at the sight of the bunch of white flowers.

It was this vision that had arrested his steps as he walked aimlessly along the tent at the flower show. She had been such a pretty lass on their wedding day. In her hand she carried just such a bunch as he now held in his hand. He had been under gardener at the hall in those happy days and he had grown the pure white flowers especially for her wedding day bouquet.

What a coward he had been to bring so much trouble on her by his unsteady ways.

"With God's help, I'll be different from today," he said reverently, and stooping down, he kissed the sleeping woman gently on the lips.

At his touch, gentle as it was, she stirred.

"Is that you, Bill?" she asked drowsily.

"Yes, it's me, lass," in so gentle a voice that she thought she must still be dreaming.

"I've had a lovely dream, lad," she said, still drowsily.

"Have you, Betsy? Tell us what it was about?"

"I thought that it was our wedding day and that I held in my hand the bunch of lilies of the valley you gave me."

"Were the flowers as beautiful as these, my lass?"

She was wide awake now and raised herself on one thin arm.

At the sight of the changed face that smiled down at her tremulously, a look of peace stole into her eyes, and taking the flower from him, she buried her face in the sweet white bells.

"What has happened?" she gasped, unable to comprehend the joy. "How did you get them?"

"At the flower show," he answered her simply. "The sight of them brought back our wedding day, my lass, so I bought them for you as a peace offering. Will you forgive all my neglect?" he said brokenly.

"That won't be hard, my lad," she said, and there was a wonderful sweetness in the tired voice, "for I have loved you true all the time."

They were roused by a loud knocking at the door. The woman sprang up to answer the summons, but putting his new resolutions into practice, Bill Stubbins rose.

"You lie down and rest a bit, my lass," he said, and went into the outer room to answer the summons.

Lifting the old-fashioned latch, he opened the outer door of the cottage. On the whitened doorstep stood the young squire, his face beaming with happiness.

"I've just got home from my wanderings," he said. "It's ten years since I went away, and on my return I asked for you, Stubbins, only to be told that you had left the lodge six years ago. 'No one should grow the flowers to grace to their home to the hall,' I said, 'but Stubbins.' They said that you were not as steady as you might be, my man, but I said that at least you should have another chance for old time's sake. The lodge is empty. The head gardener left last week. Will you take the place Stubbins?"

At the sound of the young squire's voice Betsy had risen hurriedly and reached the door in time to hear the last words. With smiles and tears mingled on her face, she said happily:

"Bill's turned over a new leaf, sir. We'll come to the lodge gladly and you'll never have cause to blame my man for unsteadiness again. He's given me his promise, sir, and my Bill always keeps his promises."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Banishing Ants.

There are many methods employed for banishing ants, but success is only attained by any of them if the treatment be persistently kept up. Ants being averse to strong smells, nearly all these remedies have strong perfumes. The most successful of them, perhaps, consists of shredded camphor dissolved in spirits of wine, and solution being used for painting the wall of the infected cupboard. It is claimed for this mixture that the ant has yet to be found who is bold enough to cross this camphor line. Another good remedy, but a less agreeable one for the operator, is composed of flour of brimstone. Put half a pound of flour of brimstone into an iron saucepan, add a quarter of a pound of potash, and heat over a hot fire until the two ingredients are dissolved and well mixed. Let the mixture cool, beat it to a powder, infuse a little of it in water, and sprinkle it over their haunts.

Moth Preventives.

The finest preventive against moths is alum. Use freely in the last rinsing water, and there will be no fear of moths touching your blankets. After brushing all woolen goods well wrap each in newspaper, after sprinkling alum between each fold. Then in all boxes and drawers sprinkle oil of cedar, especially in the corners, but take care it does not come in direct contact with the articles, as it leaves a stain. Leave old pipes in men's suits, well-smoked clays, if possible, and you will find that your goods will never be troubled by moths.

A Simple Portiere Curtain.

Get the portiere rod and the curtain which may be of serge, tapestry, plush, or any material suitable for the purpose. Fix these and then shut the door. Screw a brass ring on the center of the door frame above the door, and tie a piece of cord firmly to it, passing the cord over the rod, and letting it hang down between the curtain and the door. Now draw the cord rather tight, and stitch it firmly to the curtain about a foot and a half from the floor, and a foot from the outer edge. Cut off the end of the cord not required, and you will see that the curtain hangs quite straight over the door. When you open the door the curtain will draw back, and will fall into its place again each time the door is shut.

Lecture on Domestic Science for the Women of Duluth

One of the biggest features of the pure food show, which is presented by the Retail Grocers' association, and which will open this evening at 7:30 o'clock at 222 and 224 West First street, will be the lectures on domestic science by Lida Ames Willis, one of the foremost culinary experts of the United States.

Miss Willis is an eminently practical as well as up-to-date teacher and a graduate of the famous Philadelphia Cooking school. She was formerly assistant and dietetian of the same school; also first principal of the Baltimore Cooking school and of the Chicago Extension Cooking school. A teacher, writer and lecturer of national reputation, she has traveled very extensively, her services being constantly in demand along some line of her work.

Coming of old Philadelphia Quaker stock, and from a long line of notable housekeepers, she thoroughly believes in the gospel of good living, which does not mean, necessarily, expensive or extravagant living, but ability to get the best results from whatever means are available. "Good cooks are never wasteful, but very resourceful," she says. Good cooks do not require a multiplicity of recipes but a knowledge of proportions and proper combinations.

"Few cooks are born nowadays, but it is possible to make them; as it is never too late to learn the culinary art." Miss Willis has discovered very interested and apt pupils past the allotted three score and ten.

Not Too Scientific.

While this teacher has a thorough scientific knowledge of her subject, she has the ability to impart her knowledge in a simple, direct manner, plain to the understanding of all. "She does not talk over our heads," as one auditor remarked.

Wide experience in her work, and an earnest desire to be really helpful to her sex has taught her the need and the art of putting herself in the other woman's place, be the other woman well-to-do, or the wife of a poorly paid day laborer, working with the other woman's means, materials obtainable, and lack of conveniences, but at the same time clearly demonstrating how easy it is to apply the few simple rules and fundamental principles that govern good cooking.

Miss Willis shows you how interesting the art of cookery really is, how to lessen labor, cares and expense, while increasing health and happiness. "Lift housekeeping from the rut of drudgery to its rightful place among the fine arts," is her advice. "Civilization itself is but the outcome of advanced knowledge in manner of preparing and serving of food. Dainty and wholesome eating has more powerful influence than any thing else in refining people."

Boys Not Excepted.

There is no part in the wide field of the work that Miss Willis is not familiar with. She takes special interest in the training of the young girls, and does not except the boys, for, she declares, there are many good men cooks lost for want of proper training when they are young, who grow up to be failures in all other lines of work.

Miss Willis requests that her hearers bring little sauce plates and teaspoons, in order to sample the various dishes prepared and passed for their criticism each day, the printed recipes of which will be given them to take home.

RED LAKES NEED HELP

Petition Senator Clapp and Congressman Steenerson to Help Them.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chief Nay-ay-tah-wub, the most influential chief of the Red Lake band of Indians and Chief Pay-she-ke-shig of the same tribe are here conferring with Congressman Steenerson regarding relief measures which they insist are necessary in order to avoid great suffering for many of the tribe if not actual starvation for many of them the coming winter. Joseph C. Royand, an educated Indian, is acting as interpreter.

The government pays an annuity of $26.50 to each adult and minor Indian, this sum coming from the sale of land from the Eleven Towns near Thief River Falls a few years ago.

The government has withheld the payments due the minors since the fall of 1905, six payments having thus been withheld from them. Last spring the secretary of the interior agreed to pay all this back money in one payment, which would amount to about $1,500 for the average Indian family. This was to be paid to the head of the family where he was competent, and where he was not it was to be handled for him by the Indian agent.

In July another order came whereby, out of this sum $100 was to be retained and banked to the credit of each minor and the balance paid to the head of the family.

The first of the present month still another order came which reduced the sum a parent Indian could receive to $25 for each minor at one time. Anything further would have to come as the result of another application to the department, duly approved.

Now the Indians are preparing a petition to be presented to United States Senator Clapp asking that the original agreement be carried out.

Chief Tells of Indians Wants.

Chief Nay-ay-tah-wub, through an interpreter, was asked by The Herald correspondent why the money was needed.

"At this season of the year we Indians are generally well provided for. We generally have plenty of corn, potatoes, fish, venison and all vegetables to carry us through the winter. This year we are destitute with winter staring us in the face, the chief said. "We all raise small crops, but this year the dry weather ruined them and we had just enough for use during the summer and fall. We have nothing in our winter pits to eat during the cold weather.

"Learning of the scarcity of hay, the Indians hired help and bought supplies on credit and put up thousands of tons of hay which we could have sold at big prices and secured sufficient money to carry us through the winter. Then the great forest and swamp fires came and burned nearly all our hay. Very few saved any at all, and the entire band has no more than will be required to feed our ponies and cows through the winter. Now we have neither hay or the credit left at the stores or trading posts.

"We have no fish supply. Every fall between Oct. 20, and Nov. 10 we use nets to catch trellupes and white fish which we freeze for the winter. This year great winds prevailed during that time and we could catch little or nothing.

"The great forest fires have driven the deer, bear and moose from the reservation making game very scarce and we have no moose or venison for the winter, and hunting prospects poor on the reservation during the winter and we cannot hunt off the reservation any more than the white man.

Says Tribe Is Destitute.

"The trapping is getting poorer every year and we can make little now where we could make a great deal in the olden days.

"We are destitute, and unless the money due us is paid early in the winter our tribe will suffer terrible hardships and many of them will die.

"The white man does not seem to know that we are not living as we used to do. We are living in houses. We need stoves and furniture. We did not need them when we were living in tepees.

"They say we squander our money when we get considerable at once. This is not true. Some few may squander, like the white man, but when we received money before we did not squander it. We built houses and bought furniture. Our squaws like to have our homes homelike. They want decent beds and bureaus. They want decent dishes and looking glasses. They want their children clothed comfortably and they like little nick nacks to make their homes attractive like the white lady. This is not squandering money.

"You want to civilize the Indian. Then remember that civilization brings with it civilized desires. We spend our money for horses and cows. We cannot live like we used to. It takes dollars now where cents would be enough years ago. The white man should see this. You people here on the prairie could not get along now with the few dollars you had thirty years ago when you lived in one and two-room tar paper covered shanties. I visited you then. You did not live then as cheaply as you do now. It is the same with the Indian.

"If the government does not pay us there will be terrible suffering from the cold, and many of my people will starve. We will petition the fathers at Washington to help us."

When the chief finished tears were streaming down his stolid cheeks. The other chief and interpreter boy said the chief's statements were true and that the situation would be extremely grave unless prompt action was taken at Washington by advancing the Indians the money due them. The petition to Senator Clapp was drawn up here today and will be signed at the Red Lake agency and forwarded to him as soon as possible together with a copy to Congressman Steenerson. Returning hunters verify the statements made by the chief about the scarcity of game.

NORTH DAKOTA TO CHANGE ITS SYSTEM

After Nov. 30 Vegetable Products Will Be Retailed By Weight.

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—This is the last day of grace for the time-honored peck measure in North Dakota, as tomorrow morning the order of Prof. E. F. Ladd, state pure food commissioner, compelling the weighing of all such products as potatoes, apples and various kinds of vegetables, usually sold by measure, becomes effective. The order is designed to give the vegetable buyers of the state full value for money received. Prof. Ladd showing that the ordinary measure shows the quantity of the article sold to be almost always below the legal weight.

Handlers of produce affected by the order declare that there may be a rise in prices as a result of the action.

TRI-COUNTY MEET OF THE FARMERS

Thursday at Grafton, N. D., to Encourage Diversified Farming.

Grafton, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow morning the first dairy and farmers' institute held here will be opened under the direction of Dairy Commissioner R. F. Flint and Supt. T. A. Hoverstad. The butter contest is causing the greatest amount of interest, being for prizes put up by the Grafton Business Men's club, with Joel Winkjer of Crookston, Minn., acting in the capacity of scorer. The program for the meeting calls for addresses by a number of men quite prominent in the dairy world.

The purposes of the institute are to interest the farmers of Walsh, Grand Forks and Cass county in diversified farming in an effort to bring about more general support of the creamery industry.

To Entertain Farmers.

Surrey, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Surrey is making plans to give excellent entertainment to the large number of farmers who are expected in the city Dec. 6, when the first farmers' institute ever held here will be conducted under the direction of T. A. Hoverstad. The local merchants are making plans to take care of a large crowd in the best possible manner, and all kinds of entertainment will be afforded them during their stay.

STRAYED STOCK CAUSES TROUBLE

Four Arrests in Emmons County Resulting From Animals at Large.

Linton, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Straying stock has been the cause of four arrests in Emmons county. Three men were arrested on the complaint of Hassan Ell, and he accuses them of having drawn a revolver on him while they were engaged in an altercation concerning certain stock that Ell had taken up. In the other case, brought by K. M. Sundheim, charges of maiming cattle are laid.

In the Ell complaint, William Dolliver and Arthur and James Jones are defendants. Stock belonging to the Jones brothers had strayed and found its way to the Ell farm, where the land owner claims damage was done. He took up the stock and shortly afterwards Dolliver came on the scene, claiming to be an officer of a humane society, and demanding that the cattle be turned over to him. Ell refused to take such action and he claims that in the quarrel following, Dolliver drew a revolver on him. The defendants were bound over to the district court.

In the other action C. G. Chase, the defendant, admitted having maimed an animal owned by Sundheim but he contends that he had no intention of doing so. The Sundheim cattle had done damage on his place, he says, and one day he became so incensed that he threw a fork at one of the cows, the same going between the animal's legs and breaking one, the cow having been on the run at the time. Chase, also, must answer to the charge in the district court.

HOME MISSIONARY METHODIST MEETING.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 30.—The first of a series of meetings of national importance in the Methodist Episcopal church began here yesterday when the home missionary convention of the church for Wisconsin and Minnesota was opened by Dr. J. W. Crocker of Philadelphia, secretary of the home missionary society. The purpose of the convention is to arouse laymen to the importance of home missionary work. THE CHARTER COMMISSION ACTS.

The Herald's question "Why Not Now?", referring to the commission form of city government, was answered last evening by the charter commission, which planned a thorough study of the many commission charters now in effect, with a view to devising a new charter that shall be applicable to Duluth if it appears that the people desire it.

Action is thus taken in the proper manner by the proper authorities, and public sentiment, as developed by the The Herald's interviews, is so thoroughly and widely in favor of a change to the commission plan that there can be little doubt that as soon as a proper study has been made of the commission plan in operation in other cities, and a system devised that will fit Duluth's needs, a commission form charter will be presented to the voters of Duluth for their approval.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

No. 14.—Good for Chicago, It is Good for Duluth.

It is to be hoped that every citizen of Duluth read in The Herald of Monday evening Senator Lafayette Young's speech in Chicago in which he described the commission plan of city government, and said that it would be a good thing for Chicago. He proved that it has been a good thing for Des Moines, a city just a trifle larger than Duluth, and he made a good case for it as a probable help for Chicago. A system that has worked out so well in Des Moines and a hundred other cities, and that would help so large a city as Chicago, should certainly be helpful to Duluth.

Senator Young is, by the way, a conservative in every sense of the word, and no loud-mouthed champion of new things merely because they are new. He made it clear in his Chicago speech that the commission plan is an application to city business of the broad-guaged business methods of today that are so successful in private affairs.

"The old form of city government," he said, "is fashioned after a republic. In the early history of our country, people thought everything must imitate a republic. Therefore we have city legislative bodies and a mayor. The whole arrangement is in the supposition that city government consists of legislation. The fact is that any city council in a city of 200,000 could make all the ordinances needed for a year in half an hour.

"The greatest mistake of the old style of city government is the distribution of power and authority to such an extent that responsibility never can be located. Under the commission form of government the entire responsibility is placed on five men. Their subordinates are ignored. The attack is made on the head of the department. If a good thing is done we all know whom to praise. Praise is just as necessary as criticism.

"Men are elected to the old-fashioned council, or to be mayors, because they are talkers. The fact is talkers are not needed in city councils. There is no demand for Clays and Websters. Men are wanted who know how to construct bridges, sidewalks and viaducts and who know how to manage gas and water plants. Men are wanted who know how to buy coal for a city. The government of a city is a business proposition. Half a city's work is badly done; men are wanted who can prevent bad work.

"One good feature of the commission plan is the doing away with party politics in city affairs. What does it matter whether a man is a Republican or a Democrat when it comes to the government of a city? Political grafting is unknown under the commission plan. Another advantage is that the city government is always on hand at the city hall.

"Under the old plan progress has been difficult because of divided responsibility. There is no reason why a city like Chicago should not be governed by five men, just as the affairs of a great railroad corporation are governed by an executive committee of three or five. There is not a railroad that could be operated successfully under the slipshod methods which characterize the average city government. Under the commission plan it is possible to transact business. Delays are unknown."

If you owned a railroad, would you put its operation under any such system as that which prevails in any city operated under the old form of government? If you did it would go bankrupt in a year.

Being part owner in a city, do you want the old methods retained, or do you want modern, business-like, systematic methods, such as those provided by the commission plan, adopted?

DEMOCRATS AND THE TARIFF COMMISSION.

It seems to be assumed in some quarters that the Democrats in congress, acting for their party, will oppose the tariff commission idea.

Largely, that idea is based on Democratic opposition to the present tariff commission law, which comes so far from being a real tariff commissoin law that it is pretty nearly as bad as none at all. It does not necessarily follow, because the Democrats opposed the Taft-Aldrich tariff commission, that they will oppose an honest tariff commission plan.

The tariff comusision is inseparable from the idea of protection. There can be no honest policy of protection without it. The protective tariff, in theory but never yet in practice, is based on the difference between the labor cost of production here and abroad. The new theory that requires in addition a "reasonable profit" to the manufacturer is infamous, and would shock the originators of the protective theory speechless if their dead ears could hear it. The difference in labor cost cannot be ascertained by congress. That work can only be done by a non-partisan board of experts.

If the Democrats in congress cling to protection—as they most assuredly will for some time at least—they would better cling to the tariff commission plan along with it, and get up a new and honest tariff commission law that is devised in good faith to do the vitally necessary work before it.

What the Democrats ought to do, and that with as little delay as is consistent with the best interests of the country, is to restore the tariff to a revenue basis. The tariff is a tax for public purposes, and when its chief purpose becomes to tax the people for the benefit of private interests it ceases to be a tax for public purposes and becomes unconstitutional, immoral and unjust.

Ceasing to regard the tariff chiefly as a measure of subsidizing industries, and coming to regard it chiefly as a measure of revenue, does not mean the abandonment of protection by any means. A tariff for revenue only could be so adjusted as to provide all the protection any industry needs, and all that any industry is entitled to in all fairness.

But the change from a protection basis to a revenue basis couldn't be made at a session, or in two sessions, without grave harm to the country; and there is no danger that any such precipitancy will be witnessed. The country should have ample warning of the change, and the change should be made gradually; either schedule by schedule or by reasonable horizontal reductions in the tariff from time to time, which is very much more merciful than cutting off your dog's tail inch by inch so it won't hurt him so much.

If the Democrats are to retain the protective system, even only long enough to make the change safely to the revenue basis, the tariff commission's help will be needed to point out the schedules most in need of change and the rate of change that can be made without injury.

THE BRAINERD MEETING.

Tomorrow the Northern Minnesota Development association meets for the third time. The first meeting, at Bemidji, organized the public sentiment of Northern Minnesota. The second, at Crookston, perfected the organization and put it in running order. The third, at Brainerd, should hitch this new machine operated by the power of public opinion to the legislative wheels at St. Paul, and make them turn out legislation for a greater and more glorious Minnesota.

Interest in this movement has been cumulative, and the Brainerd meeting should be the largest, most enthusiastic and most effective yet held. The association has grown bigger than the territory it naturally embraces, and note has been taken of its acts, and of the earnest public sentiment it represents, throughout the state. If it makes no mistakes, it can be made an effective force in cementing the two sections of the state that have been divided by misunderstanding and prejudice, into a compact and powerful unit with but one purpose—state development for the common good of all parts of the state.

One danger besets this movement, and has beset it from the start—politics. Thus far it has been skillfully avoided, but as the association grows in importance and power, the importunities of politics will increase. They will be more in evidence at Brainerd tomorrow than they were at Bemidji or Crookston, even though the Crookston meeting was held on the eve of a campaign. The same single-minded devotion to the upbuilding of the state that steered clear of this peril before can be trusted to avoid it this time.

For a city that was a mere hamlet in the wilderness a generation ago, a population of 78,466, with a gain of nearly 50 per cent in ten years, is pretty good.

For a city in whose surrounding territory agriculture is just making a start, a population of 78,466 and a gain of 50 per cent in ten years is pretty good.

A gain like that in a decade isn't standing still, by a long shot.

So on the whole Duluth may congratulate itself upon the showing it makes in the census; especially as hardly any of this gain is due to any effort put forth to get it, and especially as not only is this count not padded, but it is beyond any question whatever a smaller number of people than actually were residents of this city in April, 1910. And the city has grown since then, and will grow more rapidly still in the next year. In that time the new railroad connections will be making themselves felt, and the new industries, headed by the steel plant, will have brought their thousands of new people to Duluth.

Yet the showing is not what was expected.

It is not what it should be; Duluth has more people than that, and it should have many more people than it has.

It is not what it could have been made, and it is not what it will be made long before the next state census is taken in 1915.

Are you disappointed? You needn't be; a gain of nearly half is more than most cities of this country have been able to show. A few cities have passed Duluth in the last ten years, but Duluth has passed more cities than have passed it. It is safe to say that every young and struggling city is disappointed in its census. Des Moines, which is as good a hustler as the next one, confidently expected to reach 100,000, and it got 86,000.

The point is that every live city is making a noise like more people than it really has, and the census returns are always like a dash of cold water in such cases.

But, like the dash of cold water, shock is followed by reaction. Then comes the realization that if the city isn't as big as we think it should be, it is our job to make it what it ought to be. So the dash of cold water is wholesome and helpful in the end.

Duluth is prosperous, everybody is busy, and business is good all along the line. Its merchants, wholesale and retail, all are doing a profitable business which is expanding every day. Its manufacturing enterprises are growing rapidly, and all are profitable. Its workmen are fully employed at good wages. Its tributary territory is growing as few other sections in the country are growing, and Duluth and its business and population will keep pace with that growth.

Cities which are disappointed with the census returns have one consolation: being big isn't everything. Rather a small city full of prosperity and content than a great city full of hunger and bitter poverty.

And, on the whole, Duluth has no need of being disappointed. The census returns show a growth far beyond the average; and in so far as they fail to reach the expectations of the more sanguine, they are a challenge to renewed efforts toward the building of a bigger, better and busier Duluth.

THE OPEN COURT.

(Readers of The Herald are invited to make free use of this column to express their ideas about the topics of general interest. Letters should not exceed 300 words—the shorter the better. They must be written on one side of the paper only, and they must be accompanied in every case by the name and address of the writer, though these need not be published. A signed letter is always more effective, however.)

DULUTH AND THE TRI-STATE FAIR.

To the Editor of The Herald:

The subject of the tri-state fair has grown on the public mind to that extent that it is no longer remarked that "it is a good thing if it can be financed." But the question now is, "What am I as an individual going to do about giving it my active sympathy and support?" To the new owner of acres and the new business man in our midst there may be a slight excuse; but to him who held acres all through the period of depression of the '90s, and to the business man who survived that period and is still with us, there is absolutely no excuse if he does not swing in and give this movement his active support.

Does the old holder of acres yearn to pay taxes again through another depresion? Does the old business man want to again go through such a period as was that from 1893 to 1900, without striving his utmost to back up both Duluth and Superior with farmers, dairymen, agriculturists, creameries and stock raisers? In hard times mines close down and the iron industry is quiet.

Not only are we criminally negligent as to our own cities, but we are also misusing those heroic figures, the pioneer farmer and the pioneer stock raiser. We must put others alongside of them. The farmer's wife must have other neighbors to keep her content with farm life. Don't wait until another hard time is on us. This fair is one of the means of curing the trouble. If the combination of the three Northern state sections can be improved upon, if the free site on the Nemadji river, with all its advantages, and the prospective experimental farm can be bettered, we will gladly give up and surrender to him or them who will come forward with the betterment, but cannot we rest assured that a better scheme will not be forthcoming? Duluth must feel thoroughly certain that the scheme is as good as could be put up. Let us contribute to this certainty by asking any doubter to take a wall map of the combined cities of Duluth and Superior, place one point of a pair of dividers at the Wisconsin Central or Soo depot on Superior street and place the other point at the north end of the Stinson tract (the proposed fair site) in Superior. Now swing the point at the Stinson tract to the westerly part of Duluth. Where will it strike? It will strike at the old Ironton plant. Swing it back around the other way until it strikes Duluth easterly, and it will strike about two blocks east of the Lester river bridge.

Westerly it is within the residential district and easterly it is at the edge of the residential district of the city of Duluth.

What does this prove? Namely this, that if Duluth had a free fair site within her borders as near to her center (the Soo depot) as is the Ironton plant or the Lester river bridge, which could be had for the putting on of the buildings, her citizens would say, "That is the finest thing out for the city of Duluth." And yet a site within those very limits is to be had for the using of it merely by all joining together. It is across the bay. The Soo Chicago trains and the Northwestern trains take the Duluth public straight to the grounds, except that they switch in and out of the Ogden avenue depot going either way. In fair times there is no doubt that the Soo would run short line trains straight to the grounds. With all these advantages, are not the advocates of this proposition entitled to Duluth's undivided support? Yours sincerely,

THOMAS H. FAIRFAX.

ANOTHER FRIEND OF THE HORSES SPEAKS.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In a recent edition of The Herald attention was called to the inhuman treatment of horses in this city by the overloading of wagons used on Duluth's steep hills. This has been talked of and humane officers notified but the practice does not seem to be lessened. This is especially true of the loads handled in the coal business, and one large concern was this morning putting on loads that the horses could scarcely pull on the hill by the union depot, even when the streets are not slippery.

There may be no law to prevent overloading, but this certainly comes under the head of cruelty to animals, and it is high time that Duluth people awoke to what can be done.

These loyal beasts of burden often possess more sense than their drivers who do not seem to realize that lighter loads easily handled, would allow time to handle more loads, with more comfort to the teams, less teams laid up or used up and these poor beasts would not have to start out each morning on another day of suffering and torture.

Surely public sentiment ought to be aroused enough to put a stop to practices only fit for savages and brutes.

SOME SUGGESTIONS FOR THE BRAINERD MEETING.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Prior to the opening of the legislature it is well to reflect upon one of the most important issues that will be discussed by that body is the development of Northern Minnesota.

At the meeting to be held at Brainerd Thursday and Friday an effort will be made to prepare a definite program which will be intended by the Northern Minnesota Development association to be the straight and narrow path for the legislators, whose sympathies are with the movement, to follow in their efforts to better the conditions in the northern part of this state. And the data secured at the Brainerd meeting will form the foundations of many good, eloquent arguments to promote the welfare of our state and better the conditions in northern counties. And in consideration of these facts I believe it is opportune, if not late, to sum up a few things that may be of interest, at least, if not vital in their nature, that have come to my notice, partly from experience and partly from reading the reports of the last disastrous timber fire which occurred this fall.

It will be remembered that during the last forest fire a number of people, who took shelter in a root cellar were safe in their retreat. In consideration of that fact it may be well to consider the practicability of having settlers, in dangerous localities, construct suitable root houses that are fireproof and well ventilated, which can be used in case of fire and obliterate the danger which every settler is in, in the absence of such accommodations.

It may be argued that any thrifty settler will provide such accomodations himself. But as a matter of fact, every settler, or nearly so, who chooses life in the frontier does so without ample means or provisions and the first few years are often taken up in building houses for winter and making clearings for summer use, between the times that he is engaged in labor for compensation, which is absolutely necessary to maintain a meager existence, for himself and family in their new abode. And in view of that condition and the fact that funds are necessary it would be a good plan for this state to pay for each and every cellar so constructed within the first year of settlement, a sufficient sum to induce the settler to build such cellar at once. That feature would satisfy to some extent some of the cautious people who would become good settlers and tend to encourage a more rapid settlement of the now waste lands that will make good homes. And in addition any action by the state in paying her just share of taxes, on lands held and to be sold at auction and now exempt from taxes, for local improvements, would also be a good act.

Another item of importance in connection with, and partly along the same lines is, the prompt payment of funds earned by settlers who are called out to fight fire. As it has been, you speak of warning settlers out to subdue a fire, although small, nearly the first thing asked is "When will we get the pay?" and this question is often followed by the statement that there are a number of accounts now waiting of several years' standing, and also stating that they haven't the time as the larder is nearly empty.

The provision of paying for specially constructed cellars would obliterate fear and necessity and encourage settlement. The payment of taxes by the state on lands now exempt, for local improvements would furnish more ample funds with which to build roads, while the building of roads would be the means of replenishing the larder for the settlers; roads would also enhance the value of the property and make it more saleable, and the state would be directly benefited. The prompt payments of accounts of people warned out to fight fires would give a state a more efficient, force to fight fires and where the force is needed.

The foregoing are a few of the many things which would tend to develop the northern part of this state and such development would be a blessing to the state and nation.

QUERY ANSWERED.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Will you inform us through the Open Court how long the present deer season, Nov. 10 to 30, has been in effect? We have an argument on the point and would like you to settle it.

TWO CITIZENS.

Duluth, Nov. 28.

(The law fixing Nov. 10 to 30 as the open season for deer in Minnesota was passed by the legislature at the session of 1903 and became effective in that year. For some years prior to that time, the open season extended from Nov. 1 to 20.—Ed.)

A CONFESSION— NOT AN ARGUMENT.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I have read the communication of Ponti Facx in The Herald of tonight. I do not know how far you will permit this discussion to be carried, but I believe that in this state an answer calls for a reply, and I submit one. Mr. Facx, as he says, has been a user of all kinds of intoxicants, "in four different countries for twenty-five years," and "sad to contemplate, he still lives." I would not attempt to dispute him.

His argument is not difficult to follow.

Is such a confession an argument?

Let us see.

I once watched a tornado that destroyed nearly everything in its path. A few things escaped destruction, but that does not prove that the tornado was not terrible and destructive. We have a warden at our state penitentiary who has been there for years, and I believe that he stated, in an address at St. Paul, that a large majority of the men and women who had been under his care there were sent there by reason of doing just the things Mr. Facx says he did. Mr. Facx is fortunate to have escaped, surely, but the fact that he escaped is not so much of a lesson as the statement of our warden.

Mulhall's Dictionery of Statistics states that in England 14 per cent of the insane and 43 per cent of the criminals are such because of drink, and that in the United States 26 per cent of the insane are so because of drink, and that the percentage of criminals because of drink is much greater here than in England. Again I say Mr. Facx is fortunate to have escaped; but what is his argument worth in the face of such statistics?

DULUTH AND THE HERALD.

In a Notable Suggestion.

Stillwater Gazette: A writer in The Duluth Herald suggests that unless the owners of horses in that hilly city keep their animals well shod, they should at least supply them with thick knee pads, so that when they slip onto their knees on the stone pavements they will not injure themselves.

One Deer Makes No Wilderness.

Middle River Pioneer: The Duluth papers contain an account of the killing of a deer right in the front yard of one of the residents of a populous part of that city last Saturday. This fact will probably be cited by the misguided and prejudiced people of the East as evidence that all Northern Minnesota is an unsettled wilderness.

In the Next Congress.

Cannon Falls Beacon: The Duluth Herald takes the stand that as there were enough insurgents in the last congress with its Republican large majority to force through progressive measures, so there will be enough insurgents in the congress with its large Democratic house majority, to carry through progressive measures. We hope this is true but we cannot see that it necessarily follows.

Have Their Hands Full.

Carlton Vidette: A Duluth spiritualist says that Mr. Roosevelt is "controlled" by Abraham Lincoln and an Indian chief, with assistance from Caesar and Napoleon. Here's betting that they all have their hands full.

But They Stay in Duluth.

Biwabik Times: It seems that as soon as a man leaves the range for Duluth he loses all interest in the range. The rule should be reversed.

Schools as Civic Center.

Sandstone Courier: Duluth is about to try Rochester's plan of a "civic center" in the school buildings. There is little question but what some good uses can be found for the school buildings for more than thirty hours per week.

Duluth Alive to Benefits.

Red Wing Republican: Duluth is alive to the benefits that will accrue from adopting the commission form of government and both of its wide-awake, progressive papers are strong advocates of doing away with the present system and inaugurating the new plan.

Trace of Human Nature?

Sandstone Courier: Duluth and the Twin Cities are in a wrangle over freight rates and each side claims that the other side has an advantage. It is very evident that the small places are discriminated against in favor of the cities and they are the first who should receive just rate. These large cities certainly do not try to get a fair rate for the state as a whole.

Do Your Christmas Shopping Early.

Life: You did it last year earlier than before. Do it early again.

It is better for you. You will be less crowded in the doing of it. You will have a better choice of the commodities that are offered, and more time to make your choices.

It is a great deal better for the forces in the shops; the girls and men who wait on you, and deliver your purchases. The strain of the Christmas shopping on the shop girls, in particular, is still very severe. Mitigate it, you who can, by every means in your power. Get your matters out of the way early. There will be many who won't, and a good many who can't, and the rush will be hard enough in any case.

Do your Christmas shopping early! It is wise; it is thrifty, and it is kind.

One as Good as Another.

Boston Transcript: Professor (returning home from visit)—Aha! Your absent-minded husband didn't forget to bring home his umbrella this time. See!

HANDLING WAYWARD "KIDS."

Rheta Child Dorr, in December Hampton's: Children who commit offenses against the law, runaway children, vagrants, all children, in fact, who come within the list of dependents or delinquents, are taken to a large, old-fashioned residence, far removed from the center of the city—the "detention home" of the juvenile court of Buffalo. This home is in charge of a matron, a woman who for twenty years was a philanthropic worker. In this home the delinquent child or the neglected child is fed, lodged, and cared for until his case comes before the juvenile court.

His trial takes place before Judge Nash, in the pleasant dining room of the detention home. Not in a court-room in a courthouse. It is the most informal kind of a trial, with no one present except the child, his parents, the probation officer, and the witnesses, if there are witnesses. If at any point in the trial the judge wishes to talk confidentially with the child or his parents, he gets up from his chair and leads the way into the matron's private parlor. The judge can stop the trial at any minute that seems wise to him. All he wishes to establish is the child's necessities; his misdemeanors are of less consequence.

Every child is given a chance under probation, at least once. Two paid probation officers attend to the work of investigation, and there are over fifty volunteers, clergymen, teachers, business men, club women, who deal with individual children under the direction of the court. Of course when probation fails, as it sometimes does, or when the child's home conditions are too bad to correct, institutional care of some kind has to be provided.

The detention home is the only symbol of the law which is shown to a delinquent child in Buffalo. From start to finish children's cases are disposed of there. The probation officers have their desks in the front office and the children on probation report there.

The effect of the detention home on the community is good. The number of children who used to suffer arrest every year was once very large. Many of these arrests were made on the most trivial charges. That sort of thing is not done now, because the detention home refuses to accept trivial complaints. A child brought in for a simple act of mischief is sent to its home and the case investigated by the probation officer.

The quickest way to turn a mischievous, undisciplined boy into a deliberate lawbreaker is to lock him in a cell.

One type of boy will have his respect for justice injured, and his confidence in his elders permanently weakened. Another type acquires a contempt for punishment. His first terror subsides after a few hours of confinement, he begins to assure himself that jail is not such a bad place after all, and his play instinct begins to work. He imagines himself to be a desperate character, a terror to the community. Certainly he has become a person of consequence. He wonders whether people are talking about him, whether his case will get into the papers. He resolves that he will do some boasting among the other boys when he gets out. And he does. He swaggers and struts among his playfellows, like a returned hero.

The delinquent child should never for a moment be permitted to think of himself as a hero. He should not be allowed to regard himself as a romantic figure out of a 5-cent novel. The only way to deal with him is to make him realize that he has done an unpermissible thing. He should be taken in hand in this spirit and, from the moment of his arrest until his case is finally disposed of, this attitude of mind toward him should never change. From first to last the delinquent should be treated, not as a criminal, but as a child.

The juvenile court will fail to realize its highest usefulness until we have eliminated every vestige of its original status as a criminal court.

Let Us Be Businesslike.

It has been estimated that Mr. Rockefeller's income is about fifty million dollars per annum. That's what we pay him by our laws and customs.

It is undeniable that he is a valuable man, but have we gone about it in a businesslike way to find just how valuable he is? Is he worth that much? Can we get somebody in his place for less?

Let's see. He is valuable as an organizer of industry. How much is that worth? Although he has retired from that position shall we continue to pension him? Or, have we paid him enough?

He is valuable for his sage utterances and for his good advice to young men who need money. It ought to be comparatively easy to put a price on that service. Perhaps a dollar a word would be liberal enough.

He is valuable for keeping a paternal watch on our educational institutions. How much for that? Not much, perhaps, as salaries of educators have never ranged high.

He is valuable for playing golf? Not all of us have the time for playing golf and, as golf should be played, we should be willing to pay some one for doing it.

There may be a few other minor items for which he is valuable, but we are paying him most of the money for services as owner, and we have been letting him fix his own wages. Employers do not often do this. Should we make an exception in his case? If not, what is it worth to us to have him own a large portion of our country? That's where the rub comes. Is it cheaper to have him own the things and fix the price than to own them ourselves?

Those Americans!

Rev. Dr. Arthur Judson Brown at the Mohonk Conference: If you were to travel through Asia you would find that we are regarded as the peculiar persons. Have you heard of the Chinese gentleman who traveled throughout the United States and wrote a letter back to his friends describing us? He said:

"You cannot civilize these Americans. They are beyond redemption. They will go weeks and months without touching a mouthful of rice, but they eat flesh of bullocks and sheep in enormous quantities. That is why they smell so badly; they smell like sheep themselves. Every day they take a bath to rid themselves of their disagreeable odors, but they do not succeed. Nor do they eat their meat cooked in small pieces. It is carried into the room in large chunks, often half raw, and then they cut and slash and tear it apart. They eat with knives and prongs; it makes a civilized being perfectly nervous. One fancies himself in the presence of sword-swallowers.

"They have no sense of dignity, for they may be found walking with women. They even sit down at the same table with women, and the latter are served first. Yet the women are to be pitied too. On festive occasions, which Americans call balls, they are dragged around a room to the accompaniment of the most hellish music."

Another Customer.

Chicago Journal: Looking more needy and seedy than ever, Sir Percival Lackcash strode into his son's costly tailor's. The proprietor welcomed him with a beaming countenance.

"Ahem!" choked Sir Percival, Bart. "My son informs me that you have permitted him to run a bill here for three years. Is that correct?"

"It is, Sir Percival," fawned the proprietor.

"Well, I have come—"

"Oh, pray, Sir Percival," oozed the proprietor, bowing and kowtowing before the noble bart, "I assure you there is really not the slightest hurry!"

"Quite so!" returned the impecunious baronet, serenely. "And, as I was saying, I have come to order a suit of clothes myself!"

Judge: Pretty Visitor (on board a battleship)—They say that Jack is leading a double life.

Sweetheart (who has been with the fleet)—He must be leading more than that, for he promised to die for as many different girls as the countries we visited.

Washington Star: "Why did Mrs. Filmgilt insist on taking Mr. Slimnoddle for her second husband?"

"Because of her superstitious fancy. She noticed that she nearly always won when she met him at the bridge party and concluded he was a mascot."

New York Press: "What was the cause of the quarrel with your husband?"

"I want you to understand, judge, that when we want to fight we don't have to have a cause."

Judge: Old Maid—Why should I want a husband? I have a cat that stays out all night.

Matron—Yes; but you won't be a widow till he loses all nine lives.

Everybody's Magazine: A man went into a store to buy a fountain pen. The young saleswoman gave him one to try, and he covered several sheets of paper with the words "Tempus Fugit." The obliging vendeuse offered him another pen. "Perhaps," she said, "you'd like one of these stubs better, Mr. Fugit."

BELMONT IN MARTYR ROLE

Millionaire Turf Man Says He Is Persecuted By Legislators.

Tells Graft Probe Committee Racing Men Fought Fairly.

New York, Nov. 30.—August Belmont, millionaire horse owner and chairman of the Jockey club and the Westchester Racing association, took the witness stand and told the legislative investigating committee yesterday that he considered he had been persecuted.

"And I want to say," he added with emphasis, "that the racing associations and the Jockey club fought the anti-race track bills fairly."

Mr. Belmont is the only one of a trio of prominent men identified with racing whom the committee has been able to put on the witness stand to testify concerning the charge that a $500,000 corruption fund was raised by the racing interests to combat the Hart-Agnew law prohibiting betting on horse races, which passed the legislature in 1908. Subpoenas for Mr. Belmont, James R. Keane and Harry Payne Whitney have been out for weeks, all having been mentioned as present at the conference at which the alleged fund was subscribed.

Keene and Whitney Abroad.

Service has not yet been obtained on Messrs. Keene and Whitney, and their secretaries, both called as witnesses, testified that they were in Europe.

The Jockey club, Mr. Belmont explained in his opening testimony, is a close corporation of fifty members brought into being some ten years ago by men interested in the turf.

He was asked by what authority the Jockey club had assessed $5,700 on the Coney Island Jockey club, and replied that the money had not been paid as the result of an assessment, but contributed informally.

"There is no authority," he said, "that can be exercised by the Jockey club to influence payment of a fee by a racing association for legal purposes; but the associations, finding that they were to be persecuted, combined and retained attorneys to fight the legislation. This was purely a voluntary matter and there was absolutely no compulsion whatever in having the money raised to retain lawyers."

Says He Was Persecuted.

"To what do you refer when you say persecution of racing?" he was asked.

"Well, I may say that I was served with a subpoena by your committee in a way that I'd call persecution. I had no notification of the fact that you wanted me. An attempt was made to serve me the day before Thanksgiving in a roundabout way by calling at my office and saying that I was wanted on a very pressing business matter. That is a reflection, and it is persecution in that it made the community think I was trying to evade service.

"Now take Mr. Whitney. He is abroad, arranging the international polo match. His stable is abroad and his interests are there. You post him as a subpoena-dodger."

Chairman Bruce interrupted to say that it was on record that James R. Keene left this country after the committee issued a subpoena for him and after he knew the committee wanted him. As to Mr. Whitney, he said it was not established when he sailed.

"Tell me all you know about what funds were raised and how," said Judge Bruce.

Acts Are Public Property.

"I can't tell you how much," said Mr. Belmont, "but the acts of the association are public property and open to inspection, and the funds were raised pro-rata among the various racing associations."

The witness admitted that there were several conferences held by men interested in racing.

"At one of these," he said, "a purse was made up to protect the racing associations, but everything was open and well understood."

"Who was the custodian of these funds?"

"Sometimes I was," replied Mr. Belmont.

WISH TO OUST THE MANAGER

Ely Labor Mercantile Company Directors Make Charges Against Matt Spreitzer.

The stockholders of the Ely Labor Mercantile company have filed an action in district court in which they charge their manager, Matt Spreitzer, with irregularities in the management of the affairs of the store. They wish to have an accounting and have asked for an order restraining him from selling any of his stock and from interfering in any way with the affairs of the company until after they have been straightened out.

In 1909, claim the plaintiffs in the action, Spreitzer was engaged at a salary of $90 a month to manage the affairs of the store. He at that time, they say, purchased $80 worth of stock. He was then a stockholder and was made a director and manager.

Although it was his duty to call a monthly meeting of the stockholders, the claim is made that he failed to do this for several months. He has made no report on the affairs of the company and it is feared that large debts have been allowed to accumulate.

In October the directors employed a bookkeeper, but they claim that the manager would not allow him to work on the company's accounts. It is further alleged that the manager brought into the store a large amount of old merchandise which he had in a former store. For this, it is said, he allowed himself stock in the Ely concern to the amount of $1,200.

The directors wish an accounting and seek to oust the present manager.

Aeroplane Company Appeals.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 30.—Judge Holt of the United States district court in this city has granted an appeal from the decision recently rendered adjudicating bankrupt in voluntary proceedings the Herring-Curtiss company, aeroplane manufactures, of Hammondsport, N. SHOP TIME REDUCED.

Marquette, Mich., Nov. 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beginning yesterday the men employed in the shops of the South Shore railroad went on the winter schedule and work fifty-five hours per week, eight hours the first five days of the week and five hours on Saturday. Since early fall the shops have been running nine hours per day and five hours on Saturday. During the summer, the men put in sixty hours per week. There is always less work at the railroad shops in the winter than in the summer, and it is customary to work shorter hours in the winter, but it is several years since the men were put on an eight-hour day, with Saturday afternoon off. Employes of the L. S. & I. shops will continue to work nine hours a day, as usual.

RECORD OF DIVORCE

Bars Michigan Woman From Claiming a Large Estate.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 30.—The claim of Mrs. Mattie A. Weston of Au Sable, Mich., to the estate of Clinton H. Weston, a wealthy lumberman of this city, who died several years ago, was disposed of when a record was discovered in the office of the clerk of court of this county showing that Weston had obtained a divorce from his wife in 1879. Mrs. Weston claimed that this was the first knowledge she had that a divorce had ever been granted.

She and her husband have been living apart for a number of years, but she had no knowledge of a divorce action. In La Crosse Weston was known as a single man.

FRAZEE'S MAYOR DOES SALOON SMASHING STUNT.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Nov. 30.—The village of Frazee, on the northern border of this county, did not wait for Special Agent Johnson and his men to clean out the liquor business there. A man named Theodore Lenius had been running what was known as Washington's hall there, and the place got a bad reputation. Mayor McNairy and Councilman Durkin finally went after it; poured the beer and whisky into pails and threw it into the street, smashed the cases and took the proprietor into custody. He was given a ninety days' sentence in the county jail.

TWO YEARS FOR SCHWARTZ.

Former Copper Country Newspaper Man Goes to Iona Institution.

Houghton, Mich., Nov. 30.—John E. Schwartz, formerly a newspaper man of the Copper country, who was arrested in Salt Lake City and brought back on a forgery charge, pleaded guilty before Judge Streeter in circuit court Monday. In passing sentence, Judge Streeter called attention to the fact that the maximum penalty was imprisonment for fourteen years, but because of certain extenuating circumstances a sentence of two years at hard labor at Ionia was imposed. FORTUNE IN TEN YEARS

Started With Only $7 Cash and $1,000 in Debts.

Ten years ago William Halnke had a lot of receipted bills, owed nearly $1,000, and had $7 in cash.

Today he has a fine farm of 160 acres within ten minutes walk of Wolf, Minn., which is but a short distance from Eveleth, a $3,000 house, horses, cows, modern machinery and it is all paid for.

He was in town this morning on business and he told an interested group at the courthouse how a piece of land had pulled him out of a rut. He doesn't come to town often, he is too busy.

Halnke came originally from Milwaukee and is a butcher by trade. He tried a shop in Duluth and lost all his money. Then he went back to Wisconsin, where improved land is worth $100 an acre, and determined that the land in St. Louis county is better and that the prices for produce are higher.

He came back. He settled on a homestead, worked hard and today he wouldn't change places with the most prosperous farmer about Milwaukee.

At the present time he has 100 acres cleared, improved and under cultivation. He has 7 horses, 12 cows, 15 pigs, more than 100 chickens and 20 sheep. Besides his fine house, barns, warehouses and improvements on the land he owns his own thrashing machine, binder, mower and traction engine. He believes in up-to-date methods and farms with the best and most modern tools.

He says that all he has is paid for and he is clear. Some one asked how he did it; how he knew what to raise that would bring the best prices and he answered: "By studying the conditions both on the land and in the market."

He says that the big money is in roots and in hay. This year he put up about fifty tons of hay. He raised some rye, barley and wheat. He also thrashed 800 bushels of oats. He raised twenty bushels of fall wheat on one-half acre of land. Summer rye he was successful with. He raised twenty bushels of this to half an acre of ground. His potatoes averaged 300 bushels to the acre.

He says that it is possible to ripen corn in St. Louis county at the present time, and he believed that when the land is cleared up there will be no difficulty whatever.

At the present time, Halnke is building a fine new stock barn. He intends to go in for dairying and will add to his herd of cows. His twelve cows at the present time bring him in, on an average of $150 a month. As the cows are but a small part of his revenue, it is easily seen that farming in St. Louis county pays and pays well.

He states that any one who wants to work can get ahead on a piece of land in St. Louis county as he can in no other part of the country that he knows of. Halnke is still a young man.

E. K. Coe, who has been all over the county recently, states that in the township of Field, on the Canadian Northern road, the settlers this fall thrashed 15,000 bushels of oats. Field is near Cook, Minn., and is seventy-two miles north of Duluth.

CIRCUS AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Everything From Peanuts to Trained Mule on Program.

Glass Eater and Man Without a Body Are Features.

You bought a glass and as you drank your elbow was bumped by a small vendor of peanuts, who assured you that maybe there have been other peanuts in the world, but "these are some peanuts, believe me." You acquire a sack and as you munched, another diminutive merchant approached you with popcorn which he did not have to assure you was buttered. The smear around his mouth was evidence of the honesty of his wares. You bought and found that they conformed to the pure food laws in every particular. Then you entered the auditorium of the Y. M. C. A. and realized that you were attending the annual circus, which was held in the main building last night.

You had stood amazed, not to say hypnotized, in front of various pencilled and painted descriptions of the wonders of the circus as placarded in the lobby, but even the wildest flight of your imagination had not conceived anything like this.

Over here, ladies and gentlemen, is the side show from which sweet strains—considerably strained, too, believe us—ooze through the veil concealing the hidden mysteries. We enter. We gaze upon the man without a body. He beats the camel because he can go longer than seven days without a drink. We look briefly at the diving Venus and watch the Mellin's Food baby play with his toes. When he stretches his six-feet-four-inches the building rocks. Over here is the glass eater who is nibbling reflectively at a piece of art glass, or glass art, whichever you will have it. Asked why he was eating it, the person shrugged his shoulders. We thought we heard him murmur, "L'art pour l'art." In one corner was the sign, "ladies only." Not being a lady the mysteries of that spot to us remained unrevealed. Dame Rumor saw the sacred place, however, and whispered about that curling irons and various designs in hair from a Marcelle wave to those cute, darling little sausages were spread shamelessly about where everybody could see.

After a while, one found a seat in the big show and after you had finished your popcorn and had invested in peanuts again they pulled off the big stunts. There was the grand entry and such a plethora of clowns that one rubbed his eyes and blinked before such a glittering galaxy of Silvers, who might have slipped down the chimney or up through the air shaft with Little Nemo from the Land of Nod.

A little girl from the land o' heath and heather, smiled bewilderingly while a tall mon from Glengarry played a bagpipe and there were some graceful Hungarian dancers, horizontal and parallel bar work, comedy tumbling, mono cycle stunts, eccentric dance and educated mule.

That is a kaleidoscopic impression of the circus, which will be repeated tonight.

sought to be attained by the men behind the movement effected every part of the state, but particularly the great northern half, where thousands of acres lie untilled and vast riches in natural resources await the advance of enterprise that will transform the region into a beautiful treasure realm.

The Bemidji meeting was followed by that at Crokston, in June, which was attended by an even larger and more enthusiastic representation of the progressive communities of Northern Minnesota than was present at Bemidji. The Crookston meeting witnessed the organization of the association, an organization uniting all the elements of Northern Minnesota's strength for the battles to be fought and won before this part of the state can come into its magnificent own.

For weeks the press of Northern Minnesota has been everlastingly advertising the Brainerd meeting. "On to Crookston," was the cry last summer. This fall it has been "All eyes on Brainerd," and it was a catchphrase that took instantly. "All eyes on Brainerd" has been the most reiterated phrase used in Minnesota for years, with good results. The prospect is that the Brainerd meeting will have a record-breaking attendance.

Delegates Arriving.

Men interested in the work to be done tomorrow and Friday began to come to town today. W. R. Mackenzie, secretary of the association, has been here several days, putting on the finishing touches to his work preliminary to the opening of the sessions.

Governor Eberhart and a party of state officials will arrive in Brainerd tonight, accompanied by General Manager Gemmell of the Minnesota & International railway.

G. G. Hartley and Charles d'Autremont of Duluth have arrived.

The Brainerd Commercial club will give a smoker in honor of the delegates tonight. An extensive and interesting program has been arranged. The delegates are also invited to attend the graduation exercises this evening of the Northern Pacific Railway Hospital Nurses' training school.

While Brainerd does not purpose to intrude upon the business of the association, with an excess of celebration in honor of the visitors, the city has prepared to give the session a proper setting and special street illuminations will set off the streets to advantage. There will be a "smoker" for the visitors, arranged by the local committee, and nothing that can contribute to the enjoyment of the visitors' stay in this city will be overlooked.

When the opening session of the convention is called to order in the Brainerd opera house tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock by President H. J. Maxfield of the association, it is expected that the house will be comfortably filled. Rev. J. R. Alten of Brainerd will give the invocation, after which President C. A. Allbright of the Crow Wing County Development association, an organization affiliated with the N. M. D. A., will deliver the address of welcome.

The Governor's Speech.

Governor A. O. Eberhart will be the next speaker. His subject is "Reapportionment," and the liveliest interest is being manifested in what he will have to say on that engrossing subject. It is known, of course, that Governor Eberhart is an advocate of reapportionment. The platform on which he ran for governor as the Republican candidate declares explicitly and emphatically for reapportionment, and the governor in his campaign speeches frequently pledged himself to strive for the advancement of the interests of Northern Minnesota.

Frank M. Eddy, former member of congress, now a resident of Sauk Center, follows Governor Eberhart on the program. "Conservation, the Question of the Hour," is the topic assigned him. Mr. Eddy is an interesting talker and undoubtedly will have things to tell about conservation that will be pertinent and informative.

No other speeches are scheduled for the morning session. Bills will be introduced for the consideration of the delegates and committees will be appointed, after which will come adjournment for luncheon.

Bob Dunn's Talk.

Robert C. Dunn of Princeton, former candidate for governor on the Republican ticket and editor of the Princeton Union, will open the afternoon session with a talk on good roads and the 1 mill tax, which is a subject with which he is exceptionally familiar. Good roads is Bob Dunn's hobby and he may be relied upon to make his arguments in favor of real road reform strong enough to please the most ardent advocates of the good roads cause.

"The Commission Plan for the Handling and the Settlement of State Lands" is the subject of a speech to be made by Hugh J. Hughes of Minneapolis, editor of Farm, Stock and Home. Mr. Hughes has made a deep study of his subject and will be able to present a carefully prepared exposition of the different phases of the problem to which his subject relates.

At the evening session, Willet M. Hays, assistant secretary of the department of agriculture at Washington, will discuss the subject of consolidated rural schools, and he will be followed by A. M. Dunton, principal of the McIntosh agricultural high school, who will continue the discussion. Much interest is being taken in this part of the program, as it is realized that, hand in hand with the problem of settling the idle tracts of Northern Minnesota, goes the problem of educating the children of the settlers after they have been attracted to the waiting farm lands.

Forest Fire Protection.

Friday's morning session will be opened by G. E. Marshall, chief forestry supervisor of the Cass Lake reservation. Forest fire protection will be his subject, coming so soon after the disastrous fires that swept away Baudette and Spooner and left hundreds of settlers stripped of all they possessed, this address is certain to attract the most earnest attention.

A. R. Whitson of the University of Minnesota follows Mr. Marshall, his subject being "Soil Survey for Minnesota." W. H. Frazier of the University of Minnesota also will talk on this topic.

D. E. Willard, development agent for the Northern Pacific railroad, is another of the speakers on the Friday program. Mr. Willard's recent controversy with C. P. Craig, begun by the Duluthian's criticism of the Northern Pacific's failure to give Minnesota an adequate showing in the exhibition car sent into the Central Western states, gives added zest to whatever he may have to say about the development of the northern part of Minnesota. There will be no continuation of that discussion, however. It is a closed incident.

Mr. Willard's subject is "Land Development by Railroad Companies." This gives him considerable latitude and Mr. Willard has intimated that he will avail himself of that latitude.

Reports of committees, discussion of measures and election of officers for the ensuing year will occupy the remainder of the afternoon and evening.

Important Discussions.

It is at the Friday afternoon and evening sessions that much of the most important discussion to be heard during the meeting is expected. The delegates will have listened to the set speeches and will be ready to advance their own ideas, as formulated before coming to Brainerd and as modified by the arguments advanced by others.

It is at this stage of the proceedings that the proposition for the establishment of a state department to have charge of all the development and co-related administrative work will be thrashed out. The Duluth and St. Louis county delegation is expected to take a large part in the discussion of this feature of the legislative program, as the members of that delegation have paid special attention to its different phases.

Legislators have already begun to show up here today. They are the vanguard of an aggregation of politicians, attracted here by the undoubted importance of the meeting, which may decide who shall be speaker of the next legislature. H. H. Dunn and J. A. A. Burnquist, the leading candidates for that honor, will be on hand and they and their friends will probably exert every possible effort to line up the lawmakers on that proposition.

"I believe this is going to be the biggest convention the Northern Minnesota Development association ever held," said Secretary Mackenzie today. "I hope it will be successful, and the outlook is extremely promising."

To Represent Cass County.

Cass Lake, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—At a very enthusiastic meeting of the Cass County Development association held at Cass Lake, five delegates were elected to represent the county at the big meeting at Brainerd on Thursday and Friday of this week. Owing to the absence of President Charles W. La Du of Pine River, who was unavoidably detained, the meeting was called to order by Secretary Chris Burns, after which Dr. D. F. Dumas of Cass Lake was appointed president pro tem. In the selection of delegates the names of several prominent Cass county citizens were mentioned and those elected are as follows: Charles W. La Du and A. J. Linden of Pine River, Lester Bartlett, G. E. Marshall and P. M. Larson of Cass Lake. Mr. Marshall is chief forestry supervisor of the United States government for the Cass Lake reserve, and is on the program for an address at Brainerd on Friday morning, having as his subject "Forest Fire Protection."

Besides the above delegates Cass Lake will be represented by about a dozen prominent "boosters," headed by M. N. Koll, who is a member of the executive committee of the Northern Minnesota Development association. Mr. Koll is the father of the idea in the association to have the resolutions committee consist of one member from each county and chairman of the resolutions committee at both the Bemidji and Crookston conventions.

In addition to the foregoing the Commercial club will elect delegates.

Polk County Delegates.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Mattson of Roseau and Representative-elect D. P. O'Neale of Thief River Falls spent last evening here, leaving on the late train for St. Paul and Minneapolis, where they will confer with other county optionists before returning to Brainerd, where they will attend the meeting of the Northern Minnesota Development association.

The delegation from Crookston to the Development association meeting will include Supt. Selvig of the Crookston school of agriculture, J. W. Wheeler of the Merchants' National bank, Banker Charles Conger of McIntosh, Thomas R. Johnstone, N. S. Davies of the Times, Thomas R. Brown, secretary of the Crookston Commercial club; Judge T. A. Sullivan of East Grand Forks, and several others, making a delegation, including Representatives Holton and Akers, of about twenty-five from Polk county.

and pictures what he calls the overpowering ambition of exploration that beset him until it finally culminated in his effort to reach the Pole. Dr. Cook declares that at the time he convinced himself that he had discovered the Pole he was half mad. He spent two years in his quest, and during that time endured hunger and privations that, he says, would unbalance any mind.

Could Not Be Proved.

The explorer states that it would be impossible for any man to demonstrate beyond question that he had been to the North Pole. He characterized the region as a region of insanity, where one cannot believe the evidences gathered by one's own eyes. He says that he had always looked upon the discovery of the Pole as an achievement for his own personal satisfaction, for the satisfaction of a craving and desire that was greater than any other factor in his life. When he found how tremendous a sensation his statement that he had attained the Pole created, he was overcome with bewilderment.

Dr. Cook then tells the story of the days in Copenhagen, and later in New York, and of the crisis in his life that led to his flight from New York and his voluntary exile from the United States.

Never Went Disguised.

The explorer says that notwithstanding the fact that he was followed by the shrewdest newspaper men in the world day after day, and that sums ranging up to several thousands of dollars were offered for a clew to his whereabouts, he has never worn any disguise and has never taken any unusual precautions to conceal his identity. Part of the time, he says, his wife has been with him, and part of the time his children.

Dr. Cook and his wife are now in Europe and the children are in a convent in France. Most of the time during his exile Dr. Cook has been in London. He says that he has gone about among Americans there with the utmost freedom and at times has registered under his own name, and that only a few have guessed his identity. Those who did guess it, Dr. Cook said, were turned away with ease by the remark: "Why, yes, I have been told that before."

Wants to Be Understood.

With the opportunity for thought that his exile has given him—Dr. Cook says he has never even had time to sleep more than three or four hours between his arrival at Copenhagen and his disappearance in New York—he has found growing stronger and stronger the desire to return to his own country, to be understood by his own people.

"I have been called the greatest liar in the world, the most monumental imposter in history," says Dr. Cook. "I believe that in every undesirable way I stand unique, the object of such suspicion and vituperation as have assailed few men."

With this realization Dr. Cook wrote his story, and says that to him the honor of discovery of the North Pole no longer means anything. The explorer has been working on his story since last August and says, according to the editor of the magazine, "that his sole desire is to make the people of the United States realize just what he went through during his two and a half years in the Arctic fastness and to make them see what processes of thinking—or lack of thinking—it was that led him to do the thing which confirmed to the average mind the worst suspicions against him."

Peary Has Nothing to Say.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Robert E. Peary, commander of the expedition which the National Geographic society recognized as having reached the North Pole, declined today to make any comment on the confession of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, after hearing of it.

"I have absolutely no statement to make," declared Capt. Peary with emphasis. "I wish the Associated Press would make it as emphatic as possible that I have absolutely nothing to say in connection with the matter. I cannot make this too strong."

When asked whether he would have anything to say after Dr. Cook's article appears he replied that he did not think he would.

SLIP ONE OVER ON BUSINESS MEN

Bellingham, Wash., Nov. 30.—Socialists who have been active in Bellingham unexpectedly captured a businessmen's mass meeting, called last night to consider ways and means to meet a deficit of $60,000, which it is expected the city will have to face in 1911, as a result of the voters having wiped out the saloons at the recent election. The business men who appeared in answer to the call of Acting Mayor John F. Miller, found themselves outnumbered by the Socialists, who promptly declared in favor of licensing banks, lawyers, real estate men, contractors and men engaged in similar occupations in sums varying from $25 to $2,000 a year.

MANY EXPOSED TO SMALLPOX

Mayor and Chief of Police of Flint Blame Health Officer.

Flint, Mich., Nov. 30.—Charging that City Health Officer Dr. M. A. Patterson exposed many people to smallpox by escorting a man afflicted with the disease through the business part of the city, Sheriff Parkhurst and Mayor Selby have demanded the health officer's resignation before Saturday.

The sheriff threatens to cause Dr. Patterson's arrest if his resignation is not tendered, and Mayor Selby says that if the health officer does not resign he will be removed from office.

CLUB STRIKE SYMPATHIZERS

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Two hundred sympathizers with the garment workers' strike who were riotously attempting to prevent non-union employes from entering the shops of the International Tailoring company at Jackson boulevard and Canal street were charged upon by police today. A number of the more stubborn men in the gathering were clubbed before the crowd was dispersed. Three leaders of the mob, two of them girls, were arrested.

BRAZIL FACES MORE TROUBLE

New Orleans, La., Nov. 30.—A special to the Picayune from Rio Janeiro, Brazil, says: The discontent among the officers, those in the army as well as the navy is increasing. Their unrest affected several regiments. A lieutenant who blamed the president while discoursing at the burial of the murdered naval officers, will be arrested and court-martialed.

The sailors of the Sao Paulo and the Minos Geraes called on Dr. Ruy Barbosa and thanked him for his intervention. Dr. Barbosa firmly, but in a kindly manner, blamed them for their conduct.

In some cases poisoning has occurred on board the destroyers. The officers of two of them found their drinking water contained poison.

SAYS LITTLE WILL BE DONE

He Thinks Insurgent-Democratic Alliance Is Ended.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Senator Eugene Hale of Maine, Republican leader of the senate by virtue of his position as chairman of the party caucus and of the senate committee on appropriations foresees little of accomplishment in the coming short session of congress. Beyond the passage of the usual appropriation bills and possibly of an apportionment measure and one providing an ocean mail bounty, he believes no important business will be passed.

"Should an expiring congress, in its last days," he said, "undertake by any death-bed action to rob the victorious party of its natural inheritance, it will be resisted to the utmost and nothing will follow but a protracted struggle which will shut out certain important measures which otherwise may perhaps carry in both houses."

No Tariff Legislation.

Mr. Hale was emphatic in his declaration that there would be no tariff legislation in the coming session. The senator went so far as to express the conviction that while the president may suggest a general program he will not try to force it on congress.

Mr. Hale made it clear that he was not speaking for the president nor in any way forecasting the probable attitude of the chief executive.

Dismissing the question of an extra session as "most improbable," Mr. Hale discussed the proposed ocean mail subsidy measure.

Help Steamship Lines.

"With the Central and South American trade rapidly increasing and ready to come to us," he said, "we ought to pass some bill to aid in establishing steamship lines to command this trade. We can pass such a bill, limiting it, if necessary, to Central and South America, almost any day in the senate, and such a measure must, of course, take its chance in the house, which I am led to believe may be found more favorable at this session than it has been before.

"We shall, I suppose," he continued, "as is usual in the short session pass the new apportionment bill under which the next congressional elections will be held. In this action, as to the numbers and membership of the house of representatives and the apportionment to the different states, the senate generally has deferred to the judgment and action of the house."

Expects United Party.

Mr. Hale said he did not look forward to a combination of the insurgent force with the Democratic party "either now or herafter," and that he fully expected to see the Republican party in congress get together again. Incidentally he referred to the insurgent leaders as men of "conviction and natural force of character."

"Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth,'", said the senator, "and the defeats of 1910 will do the party good. It must bear its reverses and make the best of it. Painful as it all is, it must submit to its temporary reverses and bear up as well as it may, under even such calamities as the repulse of Roosevelt and the lamentable overthrow of Beveridge."

Mr. Hale declared he had little fear of any long continuance of Democratic ascendancy in politics.

No Pension Action.

No general pension legislation is expected at the coming session of congress. The most important measure now before congress, designed to remove the restriction which has kept many widows of soldiers off the pension rolls, is upon the senate calendar; but Senator McCumber, chairman of the senate pensions committee, and other members of the committee are not in favor of further consideration of the bill during the Sixty-First congress.

Widows who married soldiers after June 27, 1890, are now barred from receiving pensions. The bill before the senate is to remove this restriction and permit any soldier's widow to receive the benefits of the pension system. It would add approximately $20,000,000 to the pension rolls, according to estimates made by pension officials, and the wisdom of the removal of the restriction is seriously questioned.

Thousands of Bills.

Thousands of private pension bills are pending before the two houses of congress. All of these measures that have been passed and aproved by the committees will be submitted for passage and members of the senate committee expect that from 2,500 to 3,000 such bills will be passed. Most of these are to increase pensions where the general law does not give sufficient authority.

The pension appropriation bill will not exceed $147,000,000 it is believed. For the present fiscal year the appropriation is about $155,000,000, and for the last year the pension expenditures were in excess of $162,000,000.

BANK GUARANTY LAW ATTACKED

Brief Against Kansas Measure Filed in the Supreme Court.

Washington, Nov. 30.—Attorneys for a number of banks in Kansas have filed a brief in the supreme court of the United States attacking specifically the Kansas bank guaranty law. The constitutionality of the Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma laws shortly will be argued orally before the court.

It is argued in the brief that the acts "arbitrarily and capriciously discriminate" between depositors and other creditors of the bank, rendering the law unconstitutional. It is also argued that depositors have no voice in deciding whether a bank shall or shall not comply with the bank guaranty law, and hence the result will be that depositors, in order to obtain the advantages or benefits of the law, must deposit their money only in banks which do accept the law and that this means a discrimination against and destruction of the business of banks which do not or cannot comply with the law.

The Police Power.

Much of the brief is devoted to answering the argument that the law is a proper exercise of the police power of the state. It answers that the police power is the law of necessity. As the law leaves it to the banks to decide whether they shall accept the provisions of its terms, the law is not one of necessity. Further, it is contended that the police power can be exercised only for the public, not for a class.

STEAMSHIP AND GRAIN MAN HELD

Harvey C. Miller Is Arrested on Rate Charges.

Savannah, Ga., Nov. 30.—Harvey C. Miller, wealthy clubman and president of the Southern Steamship company and of L. F. Miller & Sons, grain merchants of Philadelphia, has been arrested by United States marshals on the charge of violating the United States interstate commerce act as amended, "in that he did unlawfully obtain transportation of property in interstate commerce at less than established and legal rates."

It is said the basis for the warrant, which was sworn out before Commissioner Hewlitt here, was the shipment of grain by L. F. Miller & Sons from Philadelphia to Jacksonville, via Savannah, at a less than published rate.

He was arrested just as he was going for an automobile ride and taken before the commissioner, where the government obtained a continuance of the hearing until Friday. Mr. Miller was held in $10,000 bail.

FOOLED THE CONFEDERATES.

Dorance Atwater, Who Kept List of Dead in Andersonville, Dies.

Meriden, Conn., Nov. 30.—A message from San Francisco to Francis Atwater, a newspaper publisher of this city, brings word of the death of his brother, Dorance, widely known as the man who made the secret record of the deaths of federal prisoners in the Confederate military prison at Andersonville.

Mr. Atwater, born in this state, at the age of 16 enlisted for the war with the First squadron, Connecticut cavalry, and later served with Harris' Light cavalry of New York. He was taken prisoner in February, 1864, and sent to Andersonville prison, where he was detailed as clerk to make a record for the prison of the deaths among the federal prisoners.

Suspecting that the list as compiled by him was not being sent to the government, Mr. Atwater made a duplicate of the list given the prison authorities, keeping it from their knowledge. His list contained some 13,000 names. When, in 1865, he was sent to the parole camp at Annapolis, he carried this list with him, secreted in the lining of his coat. The question of the ownership of the list caused considerable litigation, but recently recognition of his services was given Mr. Atwater by the government.

He is survived by a widow who, before her marriage to him, was a princess in the island of Tahiti, one of the Society Island group.

INUNDATE SIX VILLAGES.

To Make Room for Big Reservoir in New Mexico.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 30.—Preparations are being made by the government to remove nearly 2,000 people from their homes to make room for the great Elephant Butte reservoir, near Engle, N. M.

Six Mexican villages, ranging in population from 50 to 700, will be inundated when the water is turned in. Among the towns to be obliterated is Paraje, once an important station and distributing point on the old Santa Fe trail, with a population then of 3,000. Some of the towns are among the most ancient in America, their origin running back several centuries.

The government is now engaged in buying up the farms and village property of the native residents, and by the time water is available the great basin of 40,000 acres will have been deserted.

J. G. CARLISLE DIED POOR.

Friends in Covington, Ky., Contribute to Bury Him.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Nov. 30.—Reports from Covington, Ky., are that John G. Carlisle, the distinguished Kentucky statesman and lawyer, who died recently in New York, was so poor that financial assistance was necessary from his friends for his burial, and that collections were taken up for that purpose at his old home.

The casket containing Mr. Carlisle's remains arrived in this city from New York and was hauled about town in an express wagon with an ordinary load of miscellaneous packages before being deposited at an undertaker's establishment. No committee or individual was on hand to take formal charge of the remains. The body of Mr. Carlisle's wife, who died in New York city several years ago, and which has been since then in a receiving vault, arrived here later in the day, and both bodies were buried together.

GIRLS MARRY SO THEY NEED NOT GO TO SCHOOL.

New York, Nov. 30.—New York's board of education is alarmed over the increasing marriages of Italian girls of 16 years or less, who become wives with their parents' consent in order to avoid the compulsory education law. Edward B. Shallow, who is in charge of the department of compulsory education, says that fifteen girls, all under 16 years and several under 14 years, have married and left school within the last three months. While being a wife does not necessarily exempt them from school attendance, the board finds it difficult to handle such cases.

LAURIER SAYS CANADA FEARS WESTERN INVASION.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 30.—Speaking upon Canada's naval policy before parliament, Sir Wilfred Laurier said the new navy was designed entirely for coast defense. He had no fear that there ever would be an invasion of Eastern Canada, for such an invasion could only be made by the United States. With Russia, Japan and China as neighbors of British Columbia, the situation on the Pacific coast was different, the premier said. Canada must prepare a naval defense on the Pacific.

White House Calf Dies.

Washington, Nov. 30.—There is sorrow at the White House, for Bill Wayne, bovine son to Pauline Wayne III, the presidential milk provider, is dead. Big Bill was weaned on Saturday, and the direct cause of his demise is believed to have been over-attention on the part of his feeders.

LATEST SPORTING NEWS OF THE DAY

THE SPORTS OF WINTER

Curling and Skating Will Be in Full Swing By Saturday.

First Curling Games Are Played at West Duluth Rink.

In the language of the small boy, "winter has came."

With it has come skating, curling, hockey and other winter sports. They will continue to hold the boards for some time to come.

Last night there was good freezing weather, just about right for ice making and it was going on at all the rinks in the city. Tonight it is going to be colder if the weather man is making a fair prediction. He also predicts that the temperature will hold steady for the next few days.

Last night at the West Duluth Curling club rooms rattling good games were played. They were the first of the year and the West Duluth Scots beat the uptown men to it by a day. Today at the Duluth club there will be some practice games. The skating ice with a few more floodings will be in fine shape, and it is expected that the skating session will start Saturday night.

If present plans are carried out, play in the presidents' and vice presidents' events of the Duluth Curling club, will be held Saturday afternoon and evening. This event usually starts the regular season of the club.

It has been decided the present season to play the trophy games in bonspiel fashion, which will eliminate a ring when it loses a game. Heretofore the games have been played in squad form, gradually working down to the two final rinks.

The schedule is being completed by the games committee at the present time. Among the events to be played the present season are the St. Louis cup contest, the Bagley and the Manley-McLennan trophy events.

The ice is nearly fit for use at nearly all of the out-door city rinks, so that just at present, skating will be the first and most popular of early winter sports.

The several hockey teams have already organized and some of them have already held a practice. As soon as the skating ice at the Duluth Curling club is ready the team which has been organized to represent the club, will get busy. Already the team manager has arranged games with Superior, a number of the other city teams and some of those from St Paul and Minneapolis.

Already the ice in the bay has begun to interfere with navigation about the harbor and as soon as the freeze up comes, an ice track will be laid out and horse races planned for Saturday and Sunday afternoons. Last winter there was some good sport along this line and this winter the horsemen plan an even more successful winter.

Waiting for Snow.

All that worries the ski club is lack of snow. The riders are anxious to get busy, and they will when the first fall comes. Several tournaments are being planned this winter, and the club hopes to have the most successful season in its history.

The snowshoe enthusiasts are also anxious for snow. Many of them make the Spirit Lake branch of the Duluth Boat club their headquarters, and the club will be kept open for them this year as it was last.

Although not generally known, there are several toboggan clubs in Duluth. These, too, are looking anxiously forward to a heavy fall of snow. There is a slide at the country club grounds which is used exclusively by the members of that club. The ski club has an excellent slide and many do their coasting there.

The season of winter sports is on in Duluth, and it looks at the beginning as though it will be most successful from every standpoint.

SEE WHO'S HERE— LITTLE JIMMY GARDNER.

Look who's here:

Little Jimmy Gardner, erstwhile lightweight, later welterweight, and now middleweight—who would have believed it?

Last night, at Boston, this veteran put blankets on the hopes of Frank Klaus of Pittsburg, the strong boy who held ill-trained Ketchel more than even in Pittsburg, and is also reported to have had the best of Billy Papke, in their no-decision clash in the city of smoke and art that strikes you in the face.

Last evening is the second occasion Klaus and Gardner have clashed. On the former occasion the Pittsburg boy is reported to have had the better of the argument. Probably Gardner, who hates to train, was not in the best of condition. The outcome of the fight of last evening would indicate that Gardner must be counted seriously in the elimination process of the middleweights.

With Ketchel gone, there is Papke, Kelly, Houck, Klaus, Gardner and Tom Thomas, the English fighter. It is doubtful if Langford can longer make the middleweight poundage.

Gardner may seek fights with the best of them, and on his form shown in the battle with Klaus, he may fight his way up to the top.

ROBERT MARS LEADS CENTRAL

Crack End Chosen Captain of High School Football Team.

"Bob" Mars, left end on the Central high school football team for the past two years, was yesterday unanimously elected captain for the season of 1911. The honor came to the player both because of his brilliant playing the past season, and also because he is well liked by his team mates. Mars has been a steady, consistent and at times brilliant player, and is personally popular with his fellow students.

The "D" men will receive sweaters, voting to get the V neck kind. Several of the subs will also receive a reward for their faithful work.

Lloyd Le Duc made a regular speech yesterday, one of those put-your-hand-in-your-third-vest-button kind, eloquent and to the point placing Mars in nomination. The effect of the inspired words of Le Duc was decisive and to the point.

HERO OF WORLD'S SERIES IS MARRIED.

Palestine, Texas, Nov. 30.—John Coombs, pitcher of the Philadelphia American League baseball club, was married last night to Miss Myy Ross of this city. The couple left later for Cuba.

AMERICAN TEAM WINS MARATHON

New York, Nov. 30.—The American team, Hans Holmer and William Queal, won the international Marathon team race over the full Marathon course at Madison Square garden last night. Their time was 2 hours, 2 minutes, 16 1-5 seconds.

Henri St. Yves and John Svanberg, the French-Swedish team, were second, and William Kolehmainon and Karl Niemimem, the Finnish team, were third.

The American team took the lead in the first lap and was never headed thereafter. Of the five teams starting, but three finished. Fred Meadows and Abbie Woods, carrying Canada's colors, retired during the second mile and Alfred Shrubb and A. F. Wood, representing England, left the track in the fourteenth mile.

The three teams to finish kept in the same positions from the fifth mile to the finish, the American team winning by two laps with the French-Swedish team second; the Finnish team, William Kolehmimem and Niemeimem third, four laps behind the winners.

KEOGH LEADS DE ORO IN POOL MATCH.

New York, Nov. 30.—Last night's play in the 600-point tournament for the world's pool championship resulted in Jerome Keogh, the champion and Alfred De Oro, the challenger, making 200 points apiece. This brings the total score for two nights' play to 411 for Keogh, De Oro 381. De Oro made a high run of twenty-nine, four better than his previous high tally of twenty-five made last night. Keogh's best effort netted him twenty-one.

Both men played a steady, plodding game, with few brilliant spots. Play will be resumed tonight.

Adams Organize League.

The Adams Athletic association bowlers met last night and decided to have a bowling league of their own. There will be four teams in the league, and the games will be played on evenings when the major and commercial leagues have no games scheduled. The teams will not play under any handicaps.

GOSSIP PICKED UP ALONG THE SPORTING HIGHWAY

(BY BRUCE.)

They say in Minneapolis that the big Iowan, who retired with the world's championship, is to start light training with Henry Ordemann. This looks as if the famous farmer was going to make some reply to the many things George Hackenschmidt has stated, since starting his sensational tour of the United States.

Those who know Frank Gotch best, say that down in his heart he confidently believes that he can throw any man in the world. Those who are also in the wise tack in wrestling affairs, give it out as on the square that Hackenschmidt also really believes he can beat Gotch, and that he is really honest and thoroughly sincere in his efforts to get on a match with the one man in the world who holds a decision over him.

A meeting between Gotch and the international fanous Russian Lion would be a match that would attract attention from every part of the civilized world. It is generally recognized that there is but one man in the world capable of putting up such a match that will bring out every ounce of wrestling ability possessed by the most scientific wrestler that the world has yet produced, and that man is George Hackenschmidt.

That Hackenschmidt excells Gotch in strength, there is little doubt. In the recent Buffalo match he threw Zbyszko around the ring at will, something scandalous but whether the famous Russian can match the wonderful skill of the American, his wonderful knowledge of wrestling, his lightning-quick brain, and his wonderful resourcefulness under the most trying and gruelling conditions, is a question that was not settled in the meeting between these two marvelous specimens of physical manhood.

When it comes down to records, it might be said that no man in the world has pinned the shoulders of Hackenschmidt to the mat. Gotch didn't do it, but just the same we are all proud to think that Gotch carried the battle to Hackenschmidt all the time, and was the last man to leave the ring.

They will tell you that Gotch could have never beaten the Russian and we can all say that Hackenschmidt would have never beaten Gotch. The argument is which of the two men has gone back since that famous mat battle, for battle it was between two of the strongest men the modern world has produced.

Gotch has gained a lot of confidence since the meeting with Hackenschmidt. You see before that match Frank never claimed anything but the 200-pound championship of America. He was only billed as the American champion. After the match with Hackenschmidt, he was quite sure that he could hold his own with any man in the vorld.

Ad Edgren, the famous sporting editor of the New York World, laughed at Gotch when the Iowa farmer stated to a bunch of Easterners that he was going to beat Hack. They told the American that he was crazy. Gotch kept up his nerve, though there were very few who would concede Gotch an outside chance.

Gotch was naturally nervous, for it was the hardest game he had ever tackled, while Hackenschmidt has beaten Madrali, the Turk, and the best that Europe has sent against him. Hack believed that Gotch was a second wrestler, of the same class of Tom Jenkins, whom Hackenschmidt beat in New York city with little effort.

Therefore the unexpected ending of the match may have resulted in several things—namely, that Hackenschmidt may have lost some of his confidence, and that Gotch has gained a lot of belief in his ability to beat the Russian.

Frank never looked better than he did the last time he appeared in this city. He worked faster than he ever did in his life, and his strength was bull-like. The rest he has taken the present season should benefit rather than injure him, and for a wrestler, Gotch is not old. Last season he garnished the very pinnacle of his wrestling prowess, and he should be able to at least retain that marvelous form the present season.

As to Hackenschmidt, one has but to look at the telegraphic reports of his victories he is achieving almost daily, to realize that some of the reports about this wonderful man are true. Newspapers where the Russian Lion has wrestled the present season, state that he is wrestling with wonderful speed and strength, that he looks to be in wonderful condition, and that those who have seen him wrestle before, are of the opinion that the Russian really is in better condition than on the occasion of his first visit to the United States.

Therefore, there will be a lot of people favoring the chances of Hackenschmidt, should the Russian meet the wonderful American. There are those of us who shout first and last for the institutions of our own dear old land, and there are also those of us who will believe Frank A. Gotch invincible until he is defeated.

No matter how good this great fellow may be, and there is no disputing the fact that he is great, Frank A. Gotch will remain the king of the wrestlers in the minds of most of us, until the day his shoulders are pinned to the mat, a feat, by the way, that no foreign wrestler has been able to accomplish as yet.

Cornelius McGillicuddy, a name so Irish that it must have originated among the bogs of the land that produced the father of John L. Sullivan, has met the Pope.

Imagine, if you have a good imagination, some one informing Connie Mack he was to meet the Pope, in those days when he was merely a catcher and not a Johnny Kling or Lou Criger, at that. Can you imagine what Connie would have said? He never says much, but he would have very likely have said something to the point.

How the fleeting years—fleeting when you are getting the copious kale, and dragging when you are working in a pickle factory—have changed the man who was merely a catcher. Then he was a baseball player, without special fame or a large following; today he is believed by thousands to be the shrewdest man in baseball, literally worshipped by thousands of fans throughout the country.

And they say that prosperity has not changed Connie Mack in the least. He is the same, quiet, modest, almost retiring man he was in those days before a big chunk of fame was shoved to him on the platform of opportunity.

He is the first baseball man to meet the Pope, and in view of the victories achieved by a team moulded and trained under the skill of this remarkable man, the tribute and honor is most fitting.

Three men have made a remarkable rise in baseball. Connie Mack, Charles Comiskey and Ban Johnson. Of the trio, Comiskey was the best known, for he was captain of the old St. Louis Browns before the other two were ever known by the baseball public.

The American league made these men. Here we have Connie Mack winning the highest honors in baseball, getting married and meeting the pope, all in the same year. And yet, they say, that he is keeping his nerve in a remarkable manner.

Comiskey is the president and owner of the White Sox, the owner of a baseball plant valued at $1,000,000, and even more famous and beloved than in the days of his great fame as one of the greatest of all players.

And Ban Johnson. From president of the old Western league, to the president of the American league and almost an absolute dictator in the realms of baseball. Truly, the world moves on.

Here's to Connie; he is one of the best that the great game has produced and it has made some of the most influential men in this big land of ours. He is great in his greatness, which, Bill, is more than can be said for some men.

Every time a man springs headlong into the tank of public praise, we want to know little details regarding his personality, his cravat, his neck tie and his bull dog, if he happens to have one. If we fail to find interesting things about him, they are invented by his press agent.

Here, gents, we have Owen Moran, the latest and perhaps the greatest aspirant for lightweight laurels.

A telegraphic story says he has limpid blue eyes. Fine! That guy is on to his job. Then he goes on, and says that the sturdy little Briton has a Jove-like brow. That means it is broad and looked as if some gray matter panted and palpitated beneath it. Instead of it being filled with solid bone.

Going on further down the biographical road, we find that Owen is 26 years of age and loves his wife; that he has emotions, even as you and I. That was the great trouble with Battling Nelson—he didn't have any emotions to speak of.

The story neglects to state whether Owen was born in a log hut. In the best of biographies this little incident is never neglected. However, Moran fought his way to the top, or almost there, for he has been battling industriously these past ten years.

Moran never brawls never drinks to excess, and is strong for this outdoor idea. This is according to the men behind, and according to the showing made by Moran against Nelson, he must have steered fairly clear of the breakers that, breaking over the bars, have broken some of the sturdiest little vessels on the sporting sea.

Eddie Johnny Gorman, who was recently here with "Swat Milligan," knows Moran well. He says that the one burning ambish of the Irish-Englisher, is to get enough money to invest in some kind of English home investments. You put your money in working men's homes, or something to that effect, and in the end you have a fixed income for life.

Johnny says that when Moran makes the family wad strong enough to swing the home investment deal, he will have had about all of the fighting game he cares for, and will retire to the little home with the little wife and the little glass of ale, you know, and the little polpe.

Somewhere stories have been written with the happy ending like the one pictured by the rather romantic Johnny Gorman. At least it would be a change. A rude and sudden departure into the wilderness of originality, from the prosaic trail on the highway of the usual way, should one fighter retire while he was still good, free from those habits that have sent so many lads down the ladder of fame, and live quietly and contentedly the remainder of his life.

One is tempted to hope that Moran will win the world's highest honors in his chosen profession, just so that he may be able to furnish a psychological study for Bernard Shaw and the rest of the human motive bugs.

Across land and sea comes news of the doings of Billy Papke, in the lovely land of the kangaroo. He has already beaten two of the aspiring middleweights of the land where Fitzsimmons really worked for his money. Johnny Thompson, a member of the Papke party, has pinned the 23 number on Ruddy Unholtz, the Boer who has proved a bore. Jimmy Clabby is a third member of the party, and he has been matched with some of the aspiring welters of the country.

At one town the American boxers were pitted against a bunch of those bamboo blacks, who have some ingrained notion of fistic prowess since the sad occasion of Lil' Artha's victory over a burden-bearing white man.

The blacks were made to jump out of the ring, one jumping clear out of the hall window. In some small measure the burden has been eased. Let us hope that the rout of the bungalow blacks continues.

SOME FEW FACTS REGARDING OWEN MORAN.

He was born Oct. 4, 1884, and stands five feet four inches.

He began fighting in 1900, but did not acquire fame until he defeated George Dixon in six rounds in 1904. He also fought draws with Pedlar Palmer and Billy Plimmer the same year.

In 1905 he won and lost in bouts with Dicker Stanley, defeated Monte Attell and knocked out Jem Kendrick. He spent 1906 in London and Glasgow, knocking out a bunch of second raters. He then came to this country again, and knocked out Frankie Neil in San Francisco, also fighting a six-round draw with Tommy O'Toole.

In 1908, he fought two draws with Abe Attell, one with Ad Wolgast and won from Eddie Hanlon and Frankie Neil.

He continued to fight in this country in 1909. He met Tommy Murphy three times, winning once, the other two being draws. He also won from Matty Baldwin.

He then returned to England and rested. On his return last spring, he again met Tommy Murphy and lost the decision, the victory being Murphy's without a question.

With the exception of Frankie Neil, he has never knocked out a fighter of reputation until he met Nelson.

FRANK KLAUS BEATEN BY JIMMY GARDNER.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 30.—Jimmy Gardner of Lowell, who lays claim to the middleweight championship, clearly outclassed and badly defeated Frank Klaus of Pittsburg before the Armory Athletic association last night. Gardner was given the decision at the end of twelve rounds. Klaus at no time had a lead.

STAND NOT CONSISTENT

Minnesota Students and Alumni Want Michigan Game at Any Cost.

Just at the present time there are rumors afloat of the organization among the Western colleges of a Big Four, which would include Minnesota, Michigan, Chicago and probably Wisconsin. This is only a rumor and has been given little credence. It s believed at Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Chicago that the conference will still continue its pfcayunish control of Western college athletics.

There is a crisis at Minnesota, which is engaging the interest of students, the alumni and all those interested in football. At the present time it looks very much as if Minnesota will meekly swallow the dictates of Stagg, and like a subservient heeler, refuse to schedule a game with Michigan.

The students of the school are loud in their cries for a game with the Wolverines. They naturally want revenge, and also want to witness at least one real game during the course of the season. But Old Lady Williams, a friend of Pana Stagg, and who has had about enough of the advanced football of Yost, anyway, has come out and declared for the conference, and he may swing the school back into its weak, mope-ridden mood.

Here is what is so inconsistent—

Chicago is the conference. Stagg is its mouthpiece and the whole machinery. Well, now Chicago schedules games with Cornell and other Eastern schools, or has in the past, and does not even think it necessary to ask the permission of Minnesota about this matter.

Now what is the difference between Cornell and Michigan? Cornell surely has no more rights than Michigan—not as much, for that matter, as Michigan is a Western school, and in the game with Minnesota plays under conference rules.

But Stagg and his heelers have declared that Minnesota must not schedule a game with Michigan, and it looks as if Minnesota is actually going to stand for this.

If Williams and the faculty members are going to be allowed to ride over the sentiment of the student body at the state university, they are going to hurt the game in the end. Minnesota is bigger and more important than the Western conference with Michigan out, and if Stagg is allowed to dictate the course of Minnesota, it will be a bum reflection on the spirit and courage of the institution.

The conference meeting is set for the third of next month. There seems no chance for the return of Michigan. Those who have the uncloaded facts in the case admire the stand of the Ann Arbor school. Michigan was a good and obedient member of the conference until that body started some of its petty politics and dictating stunts, when the Wolverines hiked for the open heather.

Ever since that occasion the weak mouth of the conference had drooped dolefully and it has kept up spirit and consoled itself by saying nasty things. The conference has hoped that Michigan would return, but the Wolverines have gotten along very well without the aid of a body that is being ridiculed in many quarters of the West.

It is consistent with the character of Williams that he would want Minnesota to remain in the stagnant small pool, where there has been no competition the past two years, rather than to take a stand that would bring more credit and better games to the school.

If Minnesota had not played Michigan the past two years, Williams would have been the big white ray of light in Western football. As it is, Fielding Yost stands clearly as the greatest football mentor of the West.

Williams is not big enough to take the big chance. Minnesota has come to be looked upon as one of the big teams of the country. If the school follows the dictates of the conference rule or ruin policy, it will settle down in the rut of old, which will make the Western championship a joke, with Michigan out of the fold.

The students have made their protest, and if Williams and the faculty members overrule this strong college desire, they are going against a strong head wind, and they should reef for squalls.

JOHNSON IN GOOD HEALTH

Negro Champion Shows No Traces of Reported Case of "Nerves."

Chicago, Nov. 30.—Denying in emphatic terms that it was necessary for him to go to a sanitarium in Lowell, Mass., because of a nervous breakdown and asserting he was in perfect health, Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion, arrived in the city yesterday from New York and aside from showing in a few nearby towns will remain at his South side home until the first of the year, when he will go West to open a nine weeks theatrical engagement which will include all the principal cities between Chicago and the coast.

The champion was much wrought up over the statements which have been attributed to him about his fighting days being over. He said he would fight as soon as a suitable opponent was found and enough money put up for a battle. Johnson said he never had nervous prostration and never expects to have it, but asserted the continual monotony of one-night stands had worn him out and he came home for a rest before starting West.

The colored fighter has not made up his mind whether or not he will go abroad in March. He has received several tempting offers from theatrical agencies on the other side, but is of the opinion he can make more money by making the trip alone and fixing his own theatrical dates. Jack is anxious to tour Europe while he is champion and from the manner in which he spoke about different places it is almost certain he will make the trip some time during the winter or early spring.

Never On Verge of Breakdown.

"Say for me that I never was in a sanitarium and never was on the verge of a nervous breakdown," the champion said last night as he entertained a number of friends at his home. "Persons never will get through circulating untruths about me and I guess I am the goat for persons who take the liberty of printing anything they like about me. It is true I was not feeling well when I was in Massachusetts, but this was due to the hard grind of one night stands, and in making some of the towns I was compelled to stay up two nights in succession and appear on the stage with little or no sleep. This sort of work will have its effect on the strongest of men and it was telling on me until I got back to New York.

"I am feeling pretty good now, and the rest I will get while I remain in Chicago will put me back on my feet. I am considerably overweight, weighing about 235 pounds stripped, but a little hard training will take this off, for I do not intend to get fat on the inside, for that kind of weight can never be taken off no matter what kind of training I do. While I remain in Chicago I intend to do a little boxing and road work most every day. Walter Monihan, my sparring partner, who I believe is as good as any of the present day heavyweights, will box with me every day, and this sort of work, with the elimination of the theatrical grind, should put me in great shape when I start West.

Nothing Doing in Fight Line.

"There is absolutely nothing doing new in the fight line as far as I am concerned. As soon as they find some good fighter Jack Johnson is ready to meet him but I will not fight any of the second raters who are clamoring for battles simply to get the money."

Johnson expressed regret at the inability of Battling Nelson to "come back," but he paid the adne a compliment by saying he was one of the gamest fighters that ever stepped into the ring. The champion is anxious to match Walter Monihan with "Kid" Cotton, Con Kelly, or Hank Griffin.

JEM MACE, BRITISH PUGILIST, IS DEAD

London, Nov 30.—"Jem" Mace, the hero of many prize fights, died today at Harrow-on-Tyne of old age. He was in his 79th year. Mace was at one time worth more than $1,000,000, but of recent years he had been dependent on friends. Occasionally he had appeared in music hall exhibitions.

"Jem" Mace was born at Beeston in Norfolke, and in his day was one of the greatest of boxers. His first great fight was with Bill Thorpe, whom he beat in eighteen rounds. When Tom Sayers retired from the championship in 1860 Mace was regarded as his legitimate successor, but his supremacy was soon challenged by Tom King. The two met in February, 1862, when after forty-three rounds Mace was given the verdict. For the next ten years he was practically invincible.

WILLIE HOPPE MAKES NEW BILLIARD RECORD.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30.—Willie Hoppe last night broke the world's record for a high run at 18.1 billiards in his game with Joseph Mayer, the amateur champion of this city, by piling up 155 points. The best previous record of 150 was made by Hoppe tour weeks ago in New York. Hoppe who is to play 1,800 points at 18.1 to Mayer's 1,400 points at 18.2, now leads in the three blocks play by 442 points, the score being: Hoppe 1,100; Mayer 658. The score last night was: Hoppe, 403; Mayer, 108.

Hoppe's high run las night was 155 and his average 31 1-12; Mayer's best run was 42, with an average of 8 4-13.

JOHNSON IS GREATEST.

Bob Fitzsimmons Says the Black Outclasses the Present Fighters.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 30.—"I don't believe there is a white man in the United States who is in Jack Johnson's class," said Bob Fitzsimmons today. The old time champion is here on his theatrical tour.

"Since last July I have seen a lot of the best fighters of today in action, and have even boxed with some of them myself, and in my opinion not one of them would have a chance with the negro."

Fitzsimmons reiterated the charge that Jeffries must have been doped before he entered the ring at Reno.

"That was handed to me once," said Bob, "and I know the symptoms. Jeff wasn't himself when he went into the ring. I was close to him and spoke to him, but he didn't even see me. I have met him since and he seemed like the spry old fighter he used to be when in his prime. When they passed me the sleep stuff in White Rock I had to come up here to Mount Clemens to get rid of the numbness it caused me."

The afternoon was given over to bowling singles. Today five Iowa teams will bowl. The Chicago players left for home last night.

S.S.S. CURES CATARRH

The diagnosis of disease is the first and really most important step in the successful treatment of any trouble. In other words, first find the source or cause, and then use the remedy most naturally and scientifically suited to the condition.

We do not believe there is any disease in which improper treatment is more often used than in Catarrh. So many persons treat the symptoms without giving thought to the causes which produce these symptoms, and the result is that Catarrh is considered incurable by a great many, simply because local treatment has failed to accomplish the desired result.

Every symptom of Catarrh points to impure blood; we are sure a short analysis of the disease and its symptoms will convince any one that this statement is true. First we have irritated and inflamed mucous membranes of the head, nose, and throat, from which there is a constant and copious discharge of watery matter. This comes from inflammation of these mucous surfaces and is caused by catarrhal matters and impurities in the circulation. Nature intends that these membranes shall all be nourished by the blood, and so long as this vital fluid is pure it satisfactorily performs this necessary work, but waste matters and impurities deposited into these delicate parts sets up inflammation, and the discharge is a natural result. When this secretion begins to dry it assumes thicker proportions and becomes sticky; then it adheres to the throat and upper back portion of the mouth, causing the "hawking" and straining so troublesome to Catarrh sufferers.

Other ordinary symptoms of the disease are headaches, pains above the cheek bones, roaring sounds in the ears, etc. These symptoms too point directly to diseased blood, and are caused by congestion of the circulation. The impurities and catarrhal matters in the blood stream interfere with its easy and natural flow, and it becomes feverish and thus affects the delicate fibres and membranes of the throat and head.

S. S. S. cures Catarrh by cleansing the blood of all impure catarrhal matter, and at the same time building up the system by its unequalled tonic effects. It goes down into the circulation, and removes every trace of impurity or foreign matter. In other words S. S. S. cures Catarrh by purifying the blood so that the mucous surfaces and linings of the body are supplied with healthy blood instead of being constantly irritated and diseased from the saturation of catarrhal impurities. Then the inflamed membranes heal, the discharge is checked, the head noises all cease, the stomach is toned up, the throat is no longer clogged with phlegm, but every annoying symptom of Catarrh is corrected. There is but one way to cure Catarrh—purify the blood, and there is but one absolutely safe and sure blood purifier—S. S. S. We have a special book on Catarrh; we will send this book, and also any medical advice desired free to all who write.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Gentlemen:—I wrote you some time ago giving you an account of my sufferings with an awful case of Catarrh. I had all the symptoms that accompany this disease, such as mucus dropping back into the throat, a constant desire to hawk and spit, feeling of dryness in the throat, cough and spitting upon rising in the morning, scabs forming in the nose, which required much effort to blow out, sometimes causing the nose to bleed and leaving me with a sick headache. I had thus suffered for five years. As soon as I heard from you I commenced to take S. S. S. as you advised, and after I had taken several bottles, I noticed a change for the better. Thus encouraged, I continued to take it, and in a short while was entirely cured.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF LEGISLATORS AND POLITICIANS

Fight for Appointment as Surveyor General of Logs and Lumber Getting Strenuous—Sam Langum of Preston Is Stirred to Wrath—Some Municipal Politics on the Last Filing Day—What the State Press Says About the Speakership.

News Tribune and Bennett's Place.

The fight for appointment to the job of surveyor general of logs and lumber is getting pretty fierce. Guy A. Eaton, formerly postmaster, wants the place, and he has a lot of friends who do not hesitate to spend money for telegrams urging Governor Eberhart to give it to Eaton. But it's not a simple proposition. According to the best information, that job has already been promised, and not to Eaton. But that makes no difference to Eaton's friends. They are determined that said promise shall not stand. It is up to the governor to notify the parties to whom the job was promised that he can't deliver, according to their view of things.

It is stated that the News Tribune induced Eberhart to put the appointment in escrow, to be so disposed of as that publication might determine. This program was based on the proposition that the News Tribune should do nothing in the campaign to hurt Eberhart, and it is presumed that its management thinks the News Tribune "played marbles," and that therefore it is entitled to the place, or to the disposition of it. There has been mention of a News Tribune man as the prospective appointee, but the latest rumor is to the effect that the manager of the News Tribune might take it himself.

This is more or less surprising to the general run of Duluth politicians, especially those of Republican persuasion, for it is not the popular belief among them that the News Tribune extended itself at all during the campaign to help the party ticket. However, it is taken to be the fact that the governor is looking to the future rather than to the past and on that theory say the politicians, there may be some political sense in his outlined course of action on the surveyorship.

Commander Eaton's friends are making every possible effort to land the appointment for him, and there are indications that they will succeed. He was secretary of the Republican county committee during the recent campaign and has a host of backers who have come to the front for him.

Another Duluthian who is being mentioned for the state office is Otto Gaffert, deputy internal revenue collector, whose friends want to see him get the job of state dairy and food commissioner, which pays $2,000.

Filings for City Offices Closed.

Today is the last day on which candidates for city offices to be voted for in the primary election Dec. 20 can file for party nominations. There has been but little interest in the rivalries of aldermen and would-be aldermen shown by the general public, and the primary fights will not attract much attention on election day, if the temper of the people continues to be as careless as it has been so far.

Discussion of municipal politics, wherever it is started these days, in almost every case veers around to debate on the commission form of government. That subject is the most engrossing one before the public today and the people show a disposition to pay more attention to its consideration than to the personal ambitions and desires of candidates for city offices.

Aside from the aldermanic positions, there are no real contests on. Comptroller McCormick, Treasurer Voss and Judge Cutting are quite as good as re-elected, and Justice of the Peace Flack of West Duluth, has no reason to expect a hard fight, it is understood.

"Too many elections" is the comment that usually crops out in any discussion of municipal affairs, the average citizen being inclined to resent the persistent recurrence of bothersome campaigns.

Langum Exonerated By Buck.

Sam A. Langum of Preston, postmaster of the national house of representatives and editor of the Preston Times, is red in the face and quoting Shakespeare because certain brother editors of his kept before the public eye after election had passed a paragraph asking "How much Langum is paid for betraying the party whose beneficiary he has been for these thirty years." His Shakespearean quotation has to do with pursey trashiness and that property entailed by the pilfering of good names.

Mr. Langum reproduces a letter he wrote to the Democratic First district committee chairman, declining to print that party's political advertising because he didn't want to do so. It is explained that no copy of this letter was kept at the Times office, but Judge Buck, when appealed to, returned the letter, with one over his own signature, in which he said:

> At no time during the campaign was there any other communication between you and either myself or committee with reference to supporting me, nor was there any consideration or promise of consideration ever passed between us or any person for us.
> I want to express to you now my appreciation of the fact that in the position you took in reference to the two candidates you regarded me as the better man. I made as good a fight as I could, straight and square and have no regrets and even consider that I did pretty well when all the other conditions are taken into account. Your actions and course have been certainly those of an honorable man and patriot.

Mr. Langum comments on this correspondence to the extent of saying that he liked a good fight and good fighters, but he hands a few hot ones to those who accuse him of acting in political battles from mercenary motives.

State Press On the Speakership.

Although the candidates are not making much of a stir about their ambitions, the contest for the speakership of the house is attracting considerable attention throughout the state. Such comment as appears in the state press, except in the case of papers that are boosting favorite sons—and they are few—is of an admonitory nature, warning the legislators against going too fast and too far on this speakership proposition before the session is fairly upon us. Says the Roseau Region:

> Several candidates for speaker of the house in the next legislature are urging themselves upon the members-elect. Several of the thoughtful members, however, refuse to pledge themselves to any candidate in advance of the meeting of the legislature. These members are determined upon such an organization of the legislature that actual constructive work will be the result, insisting from the beginning on an organization that will be a real power for the effective promotion and enactment of wholesome and valuable remedial legislation and equally effective to defeat every vicious measure. The members who are distinctively and honestly interested in the welfare of the state and in legislation calculated to give effect to the highest aspirations of an intelligent people must at this stage become active and aggressive in promoting what is right and just, irrespective of individual ambition and personal interest.

> The campaign for speaker of the house of representatives appears to be on in full blast and from present indications the matter will be decided ere the holidays roll round. It is to be hoped that the members will give the subject much thought before committing themselves upon the matter, for a great deal depends upon the speaker who possesses almost arbitrary power and it is of prime importance that one be selected who has no corporation affiliations. The senate is very fortunate in the quality of its presiding officer to be and it is to be hoped that the house will be equally fortunate.

> Northern Minnesota legislators should be slow in pledging themselves on the speakership question. This section of the state is demanding several things of the coming legislature and before these pledges are given we should be sure that the confidence is not being misplaced. Northern Minnesota should stand for her rights now or forever hold her peace. The time is right.

NOT ENOUGH TO SUIT TAFT

Washington, Nov. 30.—A cut of $14,000,000 in the estimates of the running expenses of the government during the next fiscal year was reported to President Taft today as a result of his ultimatum to the various heads of departments at the cabinet conference yesterday. The president was greatly gratified with the showing, but declared there must be a still deeper cut. So the cabinet meeting scheduled for today was postponed until Friday to allow the cabinet officers to make another revision of the figures.

The delay in the president's message is said to be due to the necessity of waiting for the estimates in their final form. By Friday, it is expected that the message will be ready in its entirety for consideration by the cabinet.

Hughes' Appointment Seems Sure.

Just as soon as the message is out of the way the president will devote the next three or four days to seeing senators and representatives regarding the legislative program. He will not take up the appointments to the supreme court and the court of commerce until the latter part of next week.

The nomination of Justice Charles E. Hughes as chief justice seems to be the only appointment decided upon up to this time.

President Taft was at work on his message until 3 o'clock this morning. He remained at work in his study today. The only visitor he saw there was President James McCrea of the Pennsylvania railroad. McCrea declared the call was purely personal.

Payne at White House.

Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York, Republican floor leader in the house, called at the executive offices today, but did not see the president. As to what the legislative program was likely to be Mr. Payne declared that any man's guess would be as good as his own.

Former Vice President Fairbanks is to be a guest at the White House next week. The visit is attracting a great deal of attention politically.

Probable New Judges.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—If there was any truth to the rumors in circulation during the ratification meeting of the Democrats here yesterday, J. A. Coffey of Courtenay will be named by Governor Burke to succeed Judge Burke of the Fifth judicial district and K. E. Leighton of Minot will be selected to succeed Judge Goss of the Eighth, when the two district judges move up to the supreme court bench.

FIGHT FOR OFFICES IN DIVIDE COUNTY.

Williston, N. D. Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The selection of the temporary county seat of a new county is not the only question that serves to agitate the residents of such a community, as the conditions in Divide county, recently created out of the north half of Williams county, indicate. The contest for appointment to the several new county offices that are created to manage the affairs of the new county is extremely hot, and the field of aspirants is an unusually large one.

DEERWOOD CLUB BANQUET.

Deerwood, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The banquet of the Commercial club held at the Adams hotel Monday night was attended by fifty people all voicing the sentiment that this community has a great future before it.

Emil Carlson was the toastmaster and addresses were delivered by President Dr. William Reid, Vice President H. J. Ernster, Secretary Charles G. Osterlund, Treasurer H. J. Hage and visiting friends and others.

PURE FOOD MEN SEE THE MANUFACTURE OF SUGAR.

New Orleans, Nov. 30.—An inspection of sugar manufacture in Louisiana claimed the attention today of the Association of State and National Pure Food Departments, in annual convention here. "Milk Standards" was one of the principal topics for discussion scheduled for this evening's session.

LET YOUR STOMACH HAVE ITS OWN WAY.

Do Not Try to Drive and Force It to Work When It Is Not Able or You Will Suffer All the More.

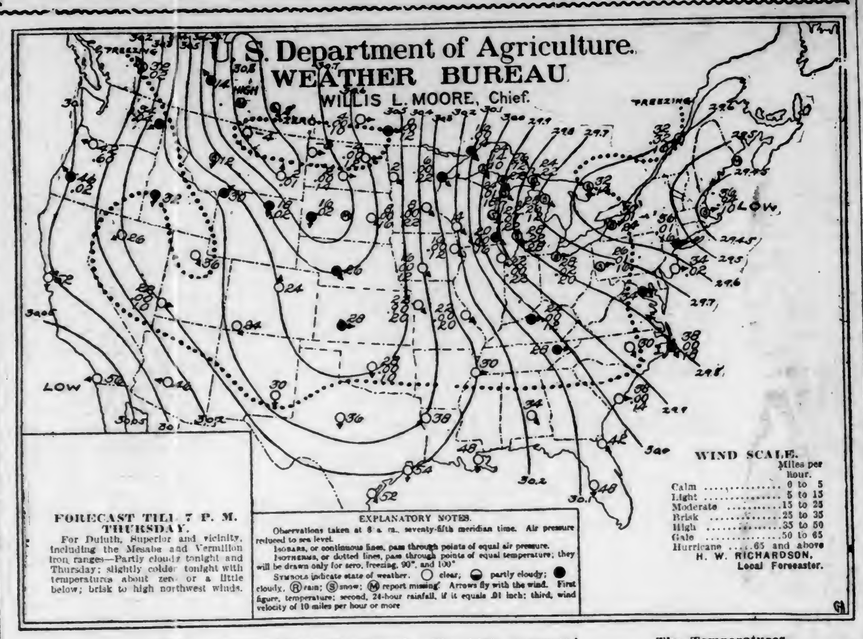

You cannot treat your stomach as some men treat a balky horse; force, drive or even starve it into doing work at which it rebels. The stomach is a patient and faithful servant and will stand much abuse and ill-treatment before it "balks," but when it does you had better go slow with it and not attempt to make it work. Some people have the mistaken idea that they can make their stomachs work by starving themselves. They might cure the stomach that way, but it would take so long that they would have no use for a stomach when they got through. The sensible way out of the difficulty is to let the stomach rest if it wants to and employ a substitute to do its work.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do the work of your stomach for you and digest your food just as your stomach used to when it was well. You can prove this by putting your food in a glass jar with one of the tablets and sufficient water and you will see the food digested in just the same time as the digestive fluids of the stomach would do it. That will satisfy your mind. Now, to satisfy both your mind and body, take one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after eating—eat all and what you want—and you will feel in your mind that your food is being digested because you will feel no disturbance or weight in your stomach; in fact, you will forget all about having a stomach, just as you did when you were a healthy boy or girl.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets act in a natural way because they contain only the natural elements of the gastric juices and other digestive fluids of the stomach. It makes no difference what condition the stomach is in, they go right ahead of their own accord and do their work. They know their business and surrounding conditions do not influence them in the least. They thus relieve the weak stomach of all its burdens and give it its much-needed rest and permit it to become strong and healthy.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are for sale by all druggists at 50 cents a box. They are so well known and their popularity is so great that a druggist would as soon think of being out of alcohol or quinine as of them. In fact, physicians are prescribing them all over the land, and if your own doctor is real honest with you, he will tell you frankly that there is nothing on earth so good for dyspepsia as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

OFFICIAL MAP OF THE WEATHER

COLDER

The promised zero weather didn't materialize last night, but it was cold enough to cause discomfort to anybody who has been clinging tenaciously to summer garb. The mercury dropped to 6 deg. early this morning. A brisk wind made the low temperature more pronounced last night. Zero weather is the prediction for tonight and storm warnings were ordered up this morning. Duluth didn't fare so badly last night, for Winnipeg had 8 deg. below.

There were signs of rain in the sky a year ago today.

The sun rose this morning at 7:32 and it will set at 4:21 this afternoon, giving eight hours and forty-nine minutes of sunlight.

Mr. Richardson makes the following comment on weather conditions:

"The storm off the North Atlantic coast has increased somewhat in intensity. During the last twenty-four hours it caused further rain or snow over North Atlantic states and the Lake region and strong northwesterly winds over the latter district. Rain or snow also fell over Oregon, Washington, British Columbia, Montana, Wyoming and Western South Dakota, probably in connection with the disturbance central Tuesday morning over Colorado and which in the meantime has disappeared. The high pressure area overlying Alberta has developed great strength and has caused colder weather over the entire Rocky mountain region and thence southward to including Texas. Zero temperatures prevailed this morning over Northern Minnesota, Manitoba, North Dakota and Northern Montana. Storm northwest warnings were ordered on Lakes Superior and Michigan at 9:30 a. m. Indications favor zero temperatures and windy weather at the Head of the Lakes tonight.

Joseph Chamberlain, who is encouraging his followers through letters from the sick room, has been urging them to concentrate their efforts upon the matter of home rule and the constitutional questions involving the house of lords, to which the contest is now narrowed down and over which the parties are carrying on the hardest kind of a fight.

The results, which will have been declared by Saturday night, should provide a fair indication of the outcome. At least 100 members, of whom sixty are Unionists, will be elected without contest. Saturday will see polling for forty-five seats, so far as now arranged. Of these twenty-five are at present held by Liberals. Among them are the Manchester constituency, which the Unionists are making every effort to capture. Should they succeed, the effect upon the rest of the country will be important.

Situation in Ireland.

In Ireland, where the voting will take place later, the Nationalists are renominating the present members. Shane Leslie, Nationalist, is again contesting Londonderry City, which was lost to the Unionists by a few votes in January. The O'Brienites are receiving the financial support of the Moderates, who consider John Redmond's plans impossible and also are disgusted with the Orangemen's threats of violence and bloodshed if the existing government for Ireland is changed. They have more candidates than in the last elections. Donald MacMaster, Unionist, is given a walkover in Chertsey division of Surrey.

AX STRIKES CLOTHESLINE; IRONWOOD MAN INJURED.

Ironwood, Mich., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The next time County Treasurer-elect Richard Banfield of Gogebic county goes out in the back yard at his home to cut some kindling for the kitchen fire he will keep away from the clothes line. He is nursing a wound in his head, resulting from the wood-splitter catching in the line as he brought it down on a pine knot, glancing and cutting his head. The wound is not serious and the newly elected official expects to be on hand at Bessemer when it is time to assume his new office.

STOVE PIPE HIS BANK.

Recluse Living Near St. Cloud Did Not Die Pauper.

St. Cloud, Minn., Nov. 30.—With three warranty deeds to property about Avon, west of this city, a small amount of cash, and more than $500 in notes hidden away in an old piece of stovepipe, Anton Schiefer, an aged recluse, died alone at his little house a mile from the village. Heart failure was given as the cause of the man's death, and he was given burial at the expense of the town on Saturday.

After his burial the neighbors and authorities of the village, searching for concealed wealth, brought forth only $15 in currency. But while looking over an old rusty unused stove, which was standing in the rear of the hut, a was standing in the rear of the hut, a tin tobacco box containing $10 in currency and $500 in notes was found in a short piece of stovepipe, which had been closed at both ends and placed in the stove. The pipe had been thrown on the ground by one of the men.

Schiefer's son is believed to be in Colorado and an attempt will be made to locate him.

TROOPS MAY BE USED.

To Prevent Slaughter of Elk Driven From Yellowstone Park.

Livingston, Mont., Nov. 30.—More than 200 hunters left here yesterday for Gardiner, sixty miles distant, where they are attracted by the report that 3,000 head of elk have been driven from within the boundaries of the Yellowstone National park. According to a report here, fully 500 elk have been killed. A message from the superintendent of the park states that nearly 4,000 elk have been driven from the reserve by the heavy snows. It is expected that the troops from Fort Yellowstone will be called out to attempt to drive the elk back into the park.

WHAT IS MEANT BY THE COMMISSION FORM OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

The commission form of government puts the affairs of the city on a business basis and gives the people full control.

Its essential features are the initiative, referendum and recall, with the administrative and legislative duties and powers devolving upon an optional number of commissioners, all elected by the city at large.

Each member of the commission has a department of the city government in his charge and is responsible for the administration of its affairs. Should he prove remiss, the people have in the recall an agency by which he can be removed, his successor being elected at a special election following close upon the exercise of the recall.

Not only are ward lines eliminated under a commission form of government, but partisan politics is excluded from municipal affairs. Candidates for places on the commission cannot run as members of a political party, all party designations being barred from the ballot. The result of this provision is that candidates are selected on their personal merit, without regard to political affiliations.

Under the commission form of government, the public business is transacted by the commissioners on the same basis as that of the successful private corporation, the commissioners being in the same relation to the people as are the directors to the stockholders, with the advantage to the people of having the privilege of initiating measures and of exercising the recall when needful.

Wastefulness and delinquency are penalized under that system by forfeiture of office, whereas under the present system the people must wait for election day before they can rebuke unfaithful servants.

The commissioners devote all their time to the business of the city and are paid a reasonable compensation. It is incumbent upon them to advance the interests of the whole city and all its people rather than those of a ward or part of a ward, of a party or a ring within a party.

the commission whether, in their judgment, the present charter should be amended, indicating the general nature of such amendments, or a new charter should be framed and submitted to the voters. In the latter event the sub-committee is instructed to indicate generally the nature of such new charter. If upon receipt of the report the commission believes that a new charter should be submitted another committee of five will be appointed to draft it, with the power to employ an attorney to aid them.

Under this program it will be practically impossible to submit a new charter at the general election in February. In that event it is probable that a special election will be called to lay the matter before the voters, and this has been the plan urged from the beginning.

Report of Committee.

The report of the sub-committee, which consisted of Chester A. Congdon, chairman; T. W. Hugo, H. H. Phelps, Mayor Cullum and City Attorney Fesler, is as follows:

"To the chairman of the Charter Commission:

"The committee appointed by you to consider and report upon the question of what amendments, if any, should be made to the present city charter, or whether the whole charter should be recast, beg leave, after giving the matter careful consideration, to submit the following as their report.

"The present charter was framed some ten years ago when the city was about half its present size. At that time the city was seriously involved financially and the chief object sought in the new charter was to save the city from insolvency. It efficiently accomplished that result. The present charter is largely a compilation from a former charter of Duluth and an old charter of St. Paul. Duluth has a unique situation and an unusual environment; it therefore has peculiar needs. The existing charter was not framed especially to meet such unusual conditions.

"At the present time there seems to be a desire on the part of many citizens of Duluth for the adoption of the so-called commission form of government. We understand that the reason for this modern form of municipal government is to secure greater economy and efficiency in the management of municipal affairs.

"Government by commission does not mean identity in charter provisions. Indeed, we think that, among the hundred or more cities now operating under this form of government there are probably no two having substantially identical charters. We believe that much could be learned from an examination of these charters. We therefore recommend:

After Information.

"First—That the commission forthwith proceed to secure from every municipality operating, wholly or in part, under a so-called commission form of government (intending to thereby include all the recent or newest phases of municipal government), a copy of the charter or law or laws under which any such municipality may be conducted; and also, if possible, an expression of opinion, from as many officials and citizens of each municipality so governed as is reasonably convenient as to the advantages and disadvantages of such form of government in each such case; the opinion of the mayor and city attorney to be obtained in every case, if possible, and as many others as practicable.

"Second—That when such charters and laws and opinions are so obtained they shall be referred to a committee (of three or five, as the commission may determine) which shall be appointed by the chairman of the commission, with instructions to carefully investigate the same and report to the commission (a) whether the charter of Duluth should be amended, and if so, they shall indicate generally the nature of such amendments, or (b) whether a new charter should be framed and submitted to the voters, and if so, they shall indicate generally the nature of such new charter.

"Third—If upon receipt and consideration of such report the commission shall be of the opinion that a new charter should be framed and submitted to the voters, they shall indicate generally the nature of such new charter and shall appoint a committee of five, of which the chairman of the commission shall be chairman, to draft a charter along the lines so indicated by the commission, and it shall employ an attorney to aid said committee in making such draft, who shall be named by such committee. As soon as it can reasonably be done such draft shall be submitted to the commission.

"Fourth—If the commission shall be of the opinion that the present charter should be amended, committees should be forthwith appointed to draft and submit the amendments so determined upon. Respectfully submitted.

ON THE IRON RANGES

ARE BLOWN TO PIECES

Two Powder Men at Hartley Mine Instantly Killed.

Blasting Frozen Ground Near Chisholm When Fatality Occurs.

Chisholm, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frank Lavanivick and Joseph Fitach, powdermen employed in the Hartley, an open pit mine, near here, were blown to pieces about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a heavy charge they had placed in the ground went off sooner than expected.

Their work consisted of blasting up the frozen crust of ground ahead of the steam shovel. This is done by driving a hole of about one foot in diameter and from fifteen to twenty feet in depth into the side of the bank. Into this hole there is placed a charge of black powder, usually about four or five kegs, which, in all would weigh from 200 to 250 pounds.

Big Charge Goes Off.

By some unknown manner it is supposed that a spark must have come into contact with this powder just as the men had the hole ready to be fired. In an instant the big load went off and the men were shattered to pieces without ever knowing what struck them.

Lavanivich was 38 years old and single; Fitach was 42 years old and had a wife and three children in the old country. They will be buried from the St. Joseph's Catholic church Thursday morning, interment to be made in the Hibbing cemetery.

VIRGINIA SPENT VERY LARGE SUM

Over $22,000 Expended on Street Improvements in Two Years.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—This city expended over $22,000 in street improvements during 1909 and 1910, according to figures presented to the council meeting last night by City Clerk Bickford. The amount expended in paving nineteen blocks was $120,096.30 and for curbs and gutter, $10,378. The city attorney was instructed to draft a resolution for the transfer of about $90,000 from the general fund into the improvement fund.

Building Ordinance Laid Over.

The building ordinance, which was laid over for a week at the previous meeting was again laid over for another week, some of the aldermen being of the opinion that the provisions of the ordinance were a little too strong, and that it gave too much authority to the fire warden.

An ordinance amending ordinance No. 101, empowering the poundmaster, Ole Johnson, with the authority to act as humane officer, received its first reading. Charles J. Johnson made application for the position as humane officer, and stated that he would serve in that capacity for $30 per month, devoting only a portion of his time on the job. No action was taken on the application. The city clerk was instructed to write to the police and fire commission for its co-operation in eliminating the abuse of animals by instructing its police force to arrest all violators of the law in this regard.

SEEKS $25,000 FOR BEING HURT

Man Who Tumbled Into Franklin Pit Sues Oliver Company.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The case of Matt Frankovich against the Oliver Iron Mining company is on trial before a jury in the district court. The plaintiff is suing to recover $25,000 damages for injuries alleged to have been sustained when he fell into the open pit near the Franklin mine, near this city early last spring.

Frankovich claims that while on his way home one night he walked into a hole in the pathway and from there fell into an open pit a distance of about 150 feet, going to the bottom and sustaining internal injuries, which have since incapacitated him from working. The trial of this case will probably last for several days.

MINISTER'S BUSY DAY.

Aurora Preacher Marries Two Couples on Vermilion Range.

Tower, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Saturday of last week was a busy day in the matrimonial line for Rev. John W Schenck, pastor of the Aurora Methodist Episcopal church, who was called upon to make two couples life partners.

Saturday evening Nick Nelson and Miss Selma Johnson were married by Mr. Schenck at the home of Martin Nelson, three miles south of Tower. A large number of guests were present and the young couple were the recipients of many useful presents.

After the ceremony and the wedding supper Rev. Mr. Schenck returned to Tower, where another couple was in waiting to have a like service performed for them, at the home of Mr. August Carlson. Here a few of the most intimate friends of the family were gathered to witness the marriage of Alfin Carlson and Miss Minnie F. Johnson.

Among those present was Mrs. Johnson of Hayward, Wis., mother of the bride.

HAUTA ACTS QUEERLY.

Brought to Duluth to Be Examined as to His Sanity.

Virginia, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Deputy Sheriff Owen Gately took Mike Hauta to Duluth today to be examined as to his sanity. Hauty came here several days ago from Tower and secured employment at the Virginia & Rainy Lake company's mill. At his boarding place he began acting strangely, his hobby being religion, and the police were called and placed him in the city jail. Hauta spends most of his time crying and pleading or in laughing and talking to himself. Monday night he cried so loudly that the turnkey called in a physician. Hauta is about 30 years of age, single, a native of Finland, and has no known relatives in this country.

A meeting will be held some time next week to elect officers and make the final arrangements. The band will be a great acquisition to the town, and the benefit will be felt by all who are connected with musical matters.

GETS TWO YEARS FOR EMBEZZLING

Former Village Treasurer of Keewatin Sentenced at Grand Rapids.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles F. Good, former village treasurer of Keewatin, who pleaded guilty to embezzling money received for a saloon license, was sentenced by Judge McClenahan to two years in the state penitentiary at Stillwater.

The grand jury is still continuing its investigation of pending cases. Joseph Le Jande is being tried for first degree assault. He is alleged to have struck Lewis Nolan on the head with a club while at work in the former's mill at Cohasset.

The case of Mike Iron, charged with assault in the first degree, he having, it is said, shot a man at Nashwauk, March 1, will follow the Le Jande case. Joseph Renaile will be tried on the charge of murdering John Anderson at Keewatin about two weeks ago.

HIBBING GRANTS LIQUOR LICENSES

Apparently Not Deterred By Possibility of Town Becoming Dry.

Hibbing, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—In the face of reports that the government would close local saloons, the village board last night ignored such rumors and granted eight applications for the renewal of liquor licenses. The renewals were ordered advertised in the usual manner, while two applications for transfers were accepted.

It is understood the members of the council acted on the theory they had received no official notice as to the proposed action of the government agents, if such action ever materializes.

Local saloons are said to be well supplied with all kinds of "wet" goods.

Cannon of the faculty, and will open the season Dec. 16 at Chisholm, playing the strong high school team of that place. A return game will be played with Chisholm here, Jan. 9.

The indoor baseball season will soon be opened by the militia, high school, Modern Woodmen of America and city teams. The Vail hall will be used and games will be scheduled with out-of-town teams. An indoor baseball league may also be formed here.

ISLAND FARM IS MUCH IMPROVED

Place Furnishing Hibbing Milk and Dairy Products Fixed Up.

Hibbing, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Island farm that furnishes the bulk of the milk and dairy products used in Hibbing has completed about $4,000 improvements that make it one of the substantial places in this section. The new road to Floodwood also has just been finished.

Prior to the completion of this road the only means of transit to the splendid farm was the railroad, and while the train service was fairly good, yet the business was considerably handicapped owing to being unable to haul produce or supplies to or from the farm by road.

J. H. Black, the manager, states that the new work that has been done is very extensive, and includes new cement and galvanized iron work on the big barn.

The farm, which is well known throughout the state, is one of the finest and most modern in Minnesota, and the interior work which has just been finished is absolutely sanitary and fireproof, being entirely iron and cement.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist Episcopal church gave a 10 cent lunch this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hannibal Hart, in the Fayal location.

MISSABE TRAIN IS LATE; HERALD READERS GLOOMY.

Eveleth, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Many local residents were very badly disappointed by the late arrival yesterday of the 6:32 Missabe train which carries the Duluth Herald, the train did not arrive until after 8 p. m., making it impossible for the postoffice department to distribute the mail. The postoffice was crowded by patrons who were forced to get their Tuesday mail this morning.

Gave Eveleth a Scare.

Eveleth, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The sudden ringing of the local fire alarm last evening attracted many people to the fire hall where it was discovered that the alarm was false, it being only a test by City Electrician Fred E. Lister.

The street commissioner will begin the erection of two city skating rinks, one opposite the Fayal school, the other by the Adams school. The council may also have rinks built at the Spruce school and high school. MANY GOING TO BRAINERD

Chisholm—C. T. Knapp and James Arneson.

Two Harbors—W. L. Lawrence.

Hibbing—A. P. Silliman.

Cloquet, Two Harbors and Hibbing each will be represented at Brainerd by five delegates, it is expected, but those named are the only ones who have made arrangements through the Duluth Commercial club to go to the meeting. Eveleth is to have three delegates, Buhl two, Virginia two and Tower one.

It is probable that St. Louis county will have a delegation of at least seventy persons at Brainerd.

That the proceedings of the convention will be of prime importance to every part of Northern Minnesota is generally recognized. Public Affairs, the monthly publication of the Duluth Commercial club public affairs committee, says of the Brainerd gathering:

"Development of Northern Minnesota is still the furthest reaching project with which Duluth has to deal and the Northern Minnesota Development association is a body in which Duluth has vital interest. It is not only that justice is to be sought in reapportionment but that an entirely new set of ideas on the part of the whole state is desired in handling the problems peculiar to this region.

"Fortunately the attention of Governor Eberhart and other state officials has been gained, the press of St. Paul and Minneapolis, both the daily papers and agricultural journals, have given generous and intelligent discussion to the problems, and the whole state is in a receptive frame of mind that promises well for gaining the better methods that will advance the interests of this section and all Minnesota.

"The convention to be held in Brainerd Dec. 1 and 2 is of supreme importance to the state and this end of it. Preliminary discussion has clarified the situation and the association, if not the whole state, is ready to formulate a plan for legislative action that will meet the situation in all respects.

"Since the first meeting in Bemidji eight months ago, remarkable progress has been made in settling the main facts to receive consideration and blocking out the essential features of remedial measures to over come the hindrances.

"Here is a domain as large as New York or Pennsylvania, one of the richest countries in the world, almost virgin wilderness. We think we know why it has not shared in the development of other sections, we think we know how opportunity can be opened on terms favorably comparing with all others. We are asking the whole state to consider our recommendations and adopt them if they are found on fair consideration to be reasonable and beneficial for the whole state.

"The Brainerd convention will carry one step further the project toward accomplishment."

Glover's Accusation of Hattie Le Blanc Barred as Evidence.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 30.—The alleged "dying statement" of Clarence G. Glover, of Waltham, for whose murder 17-year-old Hattie Le Blanc of West Archat, N. S., is on trial for her life, and which statement is said to have named the girl as firing the fatal shot, was ruled out of the case by Judge Bond at the opening of the case today. The district attorney maintained yesterday that the statement is essential to the prosecution of the case, but said today that the trial would proceed.

The little French-Canadian girl is the youngest of her sex to be tried for first degree murder in the annals of New England courts. Her aged father has come from his home in West Arichal, C. B., to aid his daughter.

Clarence F. Glover was shot in the back in the Waltham laundry, of which he was the proprietor. The girl was in the laundry with him at the time and was found three days later under a bed in the Glover home, where she was employed.

An embossed copy of the resolution will be sent to President Taft.

THE PURE FOOD LAW—A MAGNIFICENT VICTORY

Never was such a law more needed than in this country, nor more welcome than to us, who have suffered enormously from the fraudulent imitation of popular labels. This law, some years ago, would have saved us hundreds of thousands of dollars. Yet, to our amazement, a law designed to protect honest manufacturers no less than the public, was immediately made the pretext for an attack upon our world-wide and previously unimpeached reputation. After a costly contest, lasting four years, we have gained a signal and complete victory: in doing which, we have also shown that the law is the just measure it was intended to be.

We have not, as the public has been led to believe, obstructed the PURE FOOD LAW nor opposed the views of the GOVERNMENT. We have simply resisted a mere Bureau's usurpation of authority, and its novel and preposterous theories, submission to which would have driven us out of the American market.

The story is almost incredible, and difficult to tell briefly; yet, in justice to ourselves, and to the patrons who have remained so splendidly loyal to us, we must outline the facts.

For generations, the one universally recognized impurity of Whisky has been FUSEL OIL, which we have always removed by distillation. The Bureau referred to, as late as 1904, insisted that to be "good for consumption" Whisky must have practically no FUSEL OIL.

Kentucky "Straight Whisky," when new, is rank with FUSEL OIL, but the makers always assured consumers that this noxious impurity was transformed by age into delightful ethers, etc. A few years ago it was found that age makes no change in the FUSEL OIL except to remove its vile odor. The Kentucky distillers, knowing well the aversion to FUSEL OIL, were in desperate straits; so they boldly declared that REAL Whisky new or old, must contain all the FUSEL OIL, and denounced all REFINED WHISKY as a base imitation. And the Bureau backed them up.

This is no pleasantry, but sober fact. CANADIAN CLUB WHISKY was condemned, solely because it contains practically no FUSEL OIL.

Some months ago, President Taft, after a searching investigation by the Solicitor-General, overruled the Bureau completely. Now the Attorney-General has decided that the PURE FOOD LAW does not require our label to be changed by a single letter.

At the WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION in 1893, Dr. H. W. Wiley, then, as now, Chief of the Bureau referred to, reported CANADIAN CLUB to be "pure and fully up to the examination required," and, by authority of Congress, it received an award for "Fine aroma, very pleasant taste, thorough maturity, purity and absence of alien matter," which expresses every excellence any whisky can possess. CANADIAN CLUB is the same now as then.

If any consumers really want FUSEL OIL in their whisky, they should use Kentucky "Straight Whisky:" CANADIAN CLUB will not suit them. All who desire that the PURE FOOD LAW shall be rationally administered, and not as the weapon of any one man, should send for our History of this remarkable case. Please name this paper.

Why is Everybody So Silent About Leather?

The only things shoe people talk about these days are "style," "fit" and "appearance." They are very important things, but they mean little without careful tanning of the leather. They all disappear when a shoe loses its shape.

Why is everybody so silent about leather? Because of the Hide Trust, the Leather Trust and because of the short cuts and the hasty processes in tanning. All shoes look good when they are new—the great shoe trouble is premature old age.

The style, fit and good looks of Endicott-Johnson shoes are there to stay. They begin with the men at the tan vats. When the leather reaches the shoe experts something good can be made of it.

For street and business wear—ask for their ENDWELL shoe. It sells for $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00—wears better than any shoe you ever bought at the same money, and holds its style, shape and finish to the end.

ENDWELL shoes are as stylish shoes as any man wants to wear—correct in design and handsome in appearance. You can make your choice from all the fashionable lasts and shapes of toe—high cut and low cut—lace or button.

Look for the name stamped on every shoe—

ENDWELL

"More than half the shoe dealers in the United States are handling Endicott-Johnson shoes. Always ask for them and look for the name stamped on the sole. If you have any difficulty finding what you want, write Endicott, Johnson & Co., Endicott, N. Y., and receive detailed information and list of dealers by return mail."

WOULD TAX STATE LANDS

State Tax Commission Favors It in Interest of Settlers.

Needed for Building of Roads, Bridges and School Houses.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 30.—The need of taxing unsold state lands in Northern Minnesota to aid the settlers in building school houses, roads and bridges, is taken up by the state tax commission in its annual report, soon to be issued. The commission earnestly recommends such a tax. Advance proofs of the recommendations were given out by the commission yesterday. They say:

"The northern counties are large in area, sparsely populated and, while susceptible of cultivation, are, by reason of the numerous lakes, basins and water-courses everywhere existent, much more difficult of utilization for agricultural purposes than were the broad prairies of the older portions of the state.

"Hitherto, outside the iron ranges and lumber centers the agricultural growth of this section has been slow and difficult. It is not alone the physical conditions of soil and climate which have hampered its growth. The settlers are as a rule without sufficient capital or means to hasten progress.

"In a new country nothing is so essential to its development as the construction and maintenance of roads and bridges. They constitute the avenues by which civilization and prosperity penetrate and subdue the wilderness. But the consruction and maintenance of bridges and highways requires capital, and capital is the one thing in which new countries are deficient. Whatever means they have to make these improvements come to them by taxation.

Building School Houses.

"The building of school houses and the maintenance of schools is a problem scarcely less in importance than that of roads and bridges. In a sparsely settled country schools and school houses are of necessity far apart, and a small number are compelled, as best they can, to do the work of a large but unsettled area.

"In each of these counties the state is the owner of large tracts granted to it by the Federal government, which from time to time is sold at its full value, and the proceeds invested as a part of our educational endowment fund. In the past, so long as these lands remained the property of the state they have been entirely exempt from taxation. They have not contributed anything to the building of schoolhouses or the construction of roads or bridges, or to any other improvements which have enhanced the value of the lands.

"Every schoolhouse built, every road or bridge constructed anywhere within a broad neighborhood of such lands necessarily renders them more accessible and desirable, and, therefore, increases their value and the price for which the state can sell them.

Should Bear Full Share.

"Sound policy dictates that wherever taxes are imposed upon real estate and used in making those physical improvements which inevitably enhance the value of lands within the taxing district, the state, as an owner of such lands and a beneficiary of such improvements, should bear its full and fair proportion of such taxes.

"Is there any constitutional method by which the state can contribute to such value-enhancing improvements its pro rata share of their cost to the same extent if not in the same manner as a private owner of real estate is compelled to contribute by taxation?

"If it be found that such legislation is within the constitutional powers of the legislature, this commission unanimously recommends the enactment of a law subjecting such state lands to taxation for local road, bridge and school purposes."

HUNTS OUT "DEAD" SPOUSE AND LANDS A FORTUNE.

Tucson, Ariz., Nov. 30.—After five months' search through the West and ten years of separation, Mrs. Robert Archibald of Elgin, Ill., has found her husband at Oracle, near here, and started for home to claim a fortune. The efforts of others to have him declared legally dead caused her to search for him so that he might obtain his share of an estate bequeathed by a relative.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY RE-ELECTS OFFICERS.

Yesterday's meeting at the Commercial club of the Northeastern Minnesota Horticultural society resulted in the re-election of all the old officers and in the selection of Duluth as the meeting place next year. The society adopted a resolution indorsing C. E. Roe's project for establishing a nursery business here. It is the society's aim to give fruit growers of this part of the state the most practicable encouragement.

Mrs. J. H. Crowley, speaking as a representative of the Twentieth Century club, told of the work that organization has done in the way of interesting the children in tree growing, having distributed 6,000 fruit trees among them at a nominal cost.

A. B. Hostetter, agricultural director for the Commercial club, is on the program of the Minnesota State Horticultural society's forty-fourth annual meeting in Minneapolis, Dec. 6-9. He will tell of the success that has been attained by horticulturists in this part of the state.

Thief River Falls, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The proclamation of Governor Eberhart announcing the establishment of Pennington county out of Red Lake county has been received with joy in this city. The county commissioners named in the petition for the organization of the county of Pennington had in the meantime met and appointed a full corps of county officials. These all filed their bonds and took their oaths of office and the new county is organized and officered and to some extent supplied with material for county business. The city of Thief River Falls donated its city hall to the county of Pennington in October in case the division of the county carried. This building will be the county house, but for this winter some of the county officers will find office room in the city department of the new auditorium building.

The county officers named by the governor and appointed by the commissioners are: Commissioners, Olaf Larson, Peter Hedeen, Peter Wold, Daniel Shaw, Edward Aubol; county auditor, A. H. Fasel; register of deeds, Ernest Quist; treasurer, Andrew Trovaton; sheriff, Jesse Labree; clerk of court, Harry Ives; judge of probate, Wilhelm Michelet; county attorney, E. M. Stanton; superintendent of schools, W. Mostue.

GREAT HELP TO STATE.

Lignite Deposits in Western North Dakota Great Boon.

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 30.—Western North Dakota's tremendous deposits of lignite coal, estimated at 5,000,000,000 tons, will prove a source of great wealth to the state in future years, according to Dean E. J. Babcock of the State School of Mines. He gave an address on the subject before the Grand Forks Commercial club last evening, showing that the step taken by the state in authorizing and appropriating for the conduct of a series of experiments on lignite to determine its value for commercial purposes, would go a long way toward bringing about the much hoped for results. The work so far as it has already progressed has shown that lignite for briquetting purposes and for the manufacture of gas has excellent qualities, and in the work that is still being done Dean Babcock expects to find even better results. Dean Babcock is in charge of the state's experimental work on lignite coal.

TYPHOID MAY HAVE AFFECTED MAN'S MIND.

Anamoose, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Typhoid fever is believed to have led to the insanity of Anton Satle, who was arrested while on his way to the Charles Bednar farm after having made threats to kill members of the family. Satle had left the Bednar farm, where he had been employed, and borrowed a team of horses from a neighbor, ostensibly for the purpose of coming to Anamoose. Instead, he went in another direction toward the Bednar farm, and Bednar, becoming alarmed for the man's safety, caused an investigation to be made, which ended in his arrest. He will be arraigned before the county board of commissioners at Towner.

Accused Man Is Suicide.

Bucyrus, Ohio, Nov. 30.—Arrested and confronted with a charge of defalcation in falsifying accounts on pay checks of employes of the Toledo & Ohio Central railroad, Lewis Irwin, 25 years old, shot and instantly killed himself in the offices of the company. Suspicion toward Irwin was aroused because he is said to have spent money excessively.

NOT IN THAT DISTRICT.

North Dakota School Located in the Wrong District.

Williston, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—The discovery that the so-called Stony Creek school is not in Stony Creek township but is in the Nessen school district, has brought out a peculiar complication involving salaries paid teachers for the last six years. It has been supposed, ever since the school was constructed in 1904, that the building was located in Stony Creek, and the school board of that district has been maintaining the school, paying the teachers, etc. Now with the discovery that the school is in the Nessen district, Stony Creek school officials want their money back, and unless a settlement is effected, the matter will go into the district court for settlement.

Pierce county expects to have one of the most modern and complete courthouses in the state when the work is concluded. The structure will cost approximately $70,000.

You wash dishes about two hours every day. That's one hour wasted!

Dishes get dirty, greasy and sticky and soap will not clean them. Soapy dish water merely cleans the surface; it doesn't dig out the corners and drive out the decayed food particles. Moreover, soap leaves your dishes with a soapy, animal-fat smell, that is far from inviting.

GOLD DUST is the sanitary dish washer. It not only cleans the surface, but digs deep after hidden particles of dirt and kills the germs of decayed food which ordinary dish-water overlooks. GOLD DUST sterilizes as well as cleanses.

Besides doing the work better than soap or any other cleanser can, GOLD DUST will save just half the time you spend in washing dishes.

GOLD DUST is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

BEDRIDDEN NINE YEARS

Ned Ferry Taken From St. Mary's to Detention Hospital.

Crippled From Rheumatism He Also Is Diphtheria Patient.

Bedridden for nine years at St. Mary's hospital, his limbs drawn into knots from the anguishing pains which he has suffered since his confinement, Ned Ferry, once well known about the city, was yesterday removed under the supervision of the health department from the institution to the city detention hospital, suffering from diphtheria.

Ferry was taken down with rheumatism the winter of 1901. He was first attacked by a severe cold which later became more serious. It is stated that he was caught in a severe snow storm when trying to help a companion who had become exhausted from the struggle which they made to get into Duluth from the country, where they had been visiting.

Through his efforts it is explained that both of them managed to reach shelter in a house on the outskirts, but at the cost of Ferry's health. He was in such a crippled condition when removed yesterday that he could only lie on his back in the ambulance. The detention hospital authorities state that he is doing well.

As far as is known, Ferry hasn't a relative in this country. His small savings were soon gone and since that time he has been cared for by the sisters at St. Mary's hospital. They have shown him every attention and have done all in their power to alleviate his sufferings.

One pleasing feature of his illness is the constancy of an old friend whom he had met in his better days. Every Christmas this friend visits the hospital and leaves a $20 gold piece with the hospital authorities. He is not making a large salary, holding a position as watchman with a railroad. The $20 is all that he can afford to give, but he never fails to donate it as regularly as the holiday season comes around.

SUPERIOR

ASK COUNCIL TO RETURN FORFEIT

Superior Aldermen Pondering on Question "Can Dead Man Forfeit Bail?"

Can a dead man forfeit bail?

When Judge Parker called the case of Albert Erdman, charged with the violation of the midnight closing ordinance, two months ago in police court, he declared the bail money forfeited because of the non-appearance of Erdman.

Shortly after his arrest and subsequent release on $100 bail, Erdman shot himself and although the fact was known to the police and in police court at the morning of the trial, nevertheless the court held that the bail money was forfeited.

However, the administrators of the Erdman estate take issue with Judge Parker and in a communication to the city council at its meeting last evening, they ask that the city return the $100, declaring that it was impossible for a dead man to appear in court.

At the time, the court held that it did not officially know of Erdman's death. The matter has been referred to the finance committee of the council. If the claim is not allowed the matter may be taken to a higher court.

CITY WILL PUSH VIADUCT MATTER

Council Opens Fire on Traction Company Over Car Line.

The first step in what may prove a long fight between the city council and the street railway company was taken last evening when the council passed resolutions bearing on the Twenty-first street viaduct, which the street railway company claims will not support the large cars.

The resolutions are four in number and propose that the city legal department lay the entire matter before the state railroad commission and determine the respective rights of the city and the traction company in the matter. The city wants the 80-pound rails laid on the approaches of the viaduct by the company at once; the approaches planked and put in a safe condition; the Great Northern railway, according to an agreement to strengthen the viaduct so that it will carry the large cars of the street railway company.

• • •

The city fathers placed a ban on the sale of fireworks. The ordinance which was passed is very explicit and will even prevent the dealers from selling what stock they have left over from last year.

• • •

The city's legal department was authorized to make an appeal to the supreme court in the Hughitt avenue paving case.

SEASON'S TOLL OF DEER WILL BE CLOSE TO 2,000

Express Companies Have Already Handled More Than 1,500 Carcasses.

Most Successful Season in Years Comes to a Close.

From estimates made by the various express companies in this city, of the number of deer and moose that have been shipped into the city during the season that opened Nov. 10 and closed today, it is figured that more than 1,500 animals have been handled at Duluth, which may be said to be the clearing house for big game, and when the returns are all in probably 2,000 carcasses will have been received.

The Great Northern Express company places the estimate of game handled by it during the present season at over 200 deer and moose. The shipping bills have been sent in to the general office, so that the only method of figuring is that of striking an average of the number of carcasses received daily.

The estimate of the Great Northern company is made low, as the officials have no reason to make the figures any larger than they really are. The officials stated today that 200 carcasses was a conservative estimate of the business handled by the company during the season.

Over at the United States Express company, which has handled the business of the Rainy River region, which is one of the best hunting sections, daily averages show that about 710 carcasses were shipped to the company, either for residents of this city or for points beyond Duluth.

The American Express company officials place the estimate of business handled by them at 400 carcasses. The three companies handle the bulk of the business from the game country.

These figures are conservative, when it is considered that thero are two more days in which game can be shipped. In these two remaining days it is logical to expect that there will be a very heavy shipment through all the local express companies.

There have been few fatalities during the season that closes today, despite the fact that it has been one of the most successful in the history of big game hunting in the big natural game preserve region of Northern Minnesota.

In the neighborhood of 2,000 licenses were issued to hunters. With so many hunters in the woods, it has been surprising that there have not been more fatalities. The agitation of the past few years has undoubtedly had much to do with the exercise of greater caution upon the part of the hunters, while the wearing of red coats and caps by the hunters, has also had something to do with the safeguarding of human life.

One reason given by hunters for the success of the season was the big fires in the Rainy River and Baudette districts. The deer have been bigger and hardier in many instances than the big game generally found in this immediate district, and hunters have inferred from this fact that deer and moose from the more northerly regions have been driven south.

Could I but see you face to face, I am sure I could convince you from facts and figures that a training at the DULUTH BUSINESS UNIVERSITY is what you need. It matters not what your vocation in life may be, such training will be an invaluable asset to you as it has been to hundreds in past. Call at the college and let us talk it over. SPOONER FAVORED FOR SPEAKERSHIP

Ninth District Legislative Delegation Holds Caucus at Crookston.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—With only three absentees, the legislative delegation of the Ninth congressional district is in session here today, thrashing over the speakership issue with small chance of arriving at a definite conclusion. It is probable that the caucus will be transferred to Brainerd tomorrow and that when the delegation gets in touch with legislators from other districts who will be there, some positive action will be taken.

F. T. Johnson of Fergus Falls and Lewis C. Spooner of Morris, candidates for the speakership, are here, and J. A. A. Burnquist of St. Paul, one of the leading candidates, is represented by letter. In his communication Mr. Burnquist said he expected support from the Ninth, but according to one member of the delegation the St. Paul aspirant will be disappointed, and it is said that H. H. Dunn will not be favored because it is thought he is not sound on the reapportionment proposition.

Representative Holten, one of the prime movers in John Saugstad's successful fight against A. D. Stephens for the senatorship, and who is an ardent advocate of county option, said today that the option question should not be permitted to influence any member in the speakership contest. He said further that as an issue county option should not be permitted to obstruct legislation when the session begins. Nothing can be done in the coming legislature to advance the option cause, in his opinion, except to secure a record vote on the question. Further than that, it would be a waste of time to work for option, he said.

Later—At the noon hour the Ninth district house members indorsed L. C. Spooner for the speakership unanimously, with the exception of Selerud of Hastad, who did not vote.

A vote of confidence was also taken in the Northern Minnesota Development association. Another meeting will be held at Brainerd.

VISITOR MET BY SAD NEWS

Charles S. Scott Finds Wife's Watch at Scene of Her Death.

When Charles S. Scott, husband of the woman who was killed on the Northern Pacific bridge, was on his way to Duluth from his home at Boylston, Wis., yesterday to visit the scene of the tragedy in the hope that he might get a clearer understanding of the manner in which it happened, he found his wife's brother at the depot at Superior on his way to visit her.

The man had heard nothing of his sister's death and had come all the way from his home in California to see her. He accompanied Mr. Scott to Crawford's undertaking parlors and said there that it has been his custom for a long time to visit his sister every two years. He was greatly shocked to hear of her sudden death.

Accompanied by his brother-in-law Mr. Scott went to the Northern Pacific bridge to go over the place personally. While there he found his wife's watch, which had been missing, and also a hairpin. The bridge had been carefully examined after the tragedy, but no trace of the watch was found. Mr. Scott accidentally happened to look between the ties and saw its edge glinting, where it had fallen into a wide crack.

How Mrs. Scott came to be on the bridge has never been ascertained. The bridge watchmen state that they would have seen her had she walked over and no one can understand how she could have jumped from a vestibuled train, at least, without being seen. She had taken the wrong train from her home in the first place, and it was through the agent at Poplar, Wis., that her identity was first established. This took two or three days. It is thought that she was slightly demented.

INJURED BY STREET CAR

Cloquet Man Is Hurt While His Son Escapes Without a Scratch.

While crossing the street car tracks in a lumber wagon, Edward Wood, 40 years old, and his 14-year-old son, were struck by an eastbound car on the West Duluth line at the Jenswold street cut, about 5:30 o'clock last evening.

The man was seriously, though not fatally injured and the son escaped with a few scratches. The elder Wood was taken to the Duluth hospital, Central avenue and Bristol street, where Dr. David Graham dressed his injuries. Wood is employed by the Cloquet River Lumber company and came to Duluth yesterday with his son. He purchased a team of horses for the lumber concern and was driving them back, when the accident occurred.

The car collided with the rear end of the wagon, throwing both occupants out on to the street. Wood struck on his head sustaining an ugly cut over the right ear and also badly scraped his right leg. The horses were also bruised in the mix-up and the wagon was practically demolished. That the boy escaped without any injuries, is considered nothing short of a miracle.

The team was brought back to West Duluth and turned over to Roach Bros. livery. Wood was able to leave the hospital this morning, but he as yet has not sufficiently recovered to be able to start for his home at Cloquet.

The blame for the accident cannot be fixed. The street car had just turned a sharp curve and was on a down grade when the motorman saw the wagon. Before he was able to apply the brakes with any success, the collision occurred.

CLAIMS BULL CALF WAS STOLEN DURING NIGHT.

Emil Stanley, living at 5620 Raleigh street, forgot to tie his bull calf inside, and when he went to his barn this morning to search for the animal, the bovine was missing.

In view of the fact that the door of the barn was closed, Stanley is of the opinion that some one purloined his 2-year-old. The matter was reported to the authorities.

WEST DULUTH AND COMMISSION PLAN

Judge J. B. Flack of the West Duluth justice court says that he will be numbered among those who will work for a commission form of government for Duluth, declaring that he is very much in favor of the proposed change.

"A commission form of government for Duluth," said Judge Flack this morning "would be a good thing. The present city charter is not what we want. It seems to bind us in too many ways. We need more elbow room, more chance to expand. Under the present system one department of the city government stands still while the other grows. The commission plan will take civic government out of politics. We perhaps will pay out more money in salaries under the new administration, but it will be more efficient and will be the means of saving money in other directions."

ONEOTA SCHOOL IS GIVEN BANNER.

Bert N. Wheeler was elected president of the West Duluth branch of the St. Louis County Sunday School association at its annual meetinf last evening at Asbury M. E. church. Forest Kent was chosen vice president and Andrew Meldahl was elected secretary-treasurer.

The Merritt Memorial M. E. church won the banner given to the school having the largest percentage of its officers and teachers present at the meeting. This is the second time in succession that the Oneota church has been awarded the banner.

SAYS STATE LAND CANNOT BE TAXED

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—According to an oral opinion given today by Attorney General Simpson, state lands cannot be taxed. This is in answer to the state tax commission, which proposes to submit the question to the legislature.

"It cannot be done," said Mr. Simpson, "but there is a way around it. The legislature is a sovereign body and if it deems the things asked for by the northern counties, such as roads and schools, necessary, it can supply them. It can pay for roads through its own lands and supply funds to schools for districts where its own lands are in the majority. It can apportion this relief on a per acre basis."

SALOON "BOUNCER" IS FOUND GUILTY

Moorhead, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Louis Dahl of Fargo, "bouncer" in a local saloon, who has been on trial in the district court here on the charge of causing the death of S. Fossum in the saloon several weeks ago, was today found guilty of manslaughter in the second degree. The evidence went to show that Dahl unmercifully beat his victim.

MADE WILL BEFORE TAKING HER LIFE

Grand Forks County Woman Killed Herself Because of "Unpardonable" Sin.

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thanksgiving was selected by Mrs. Sarah E. Hobby of Kempton, Grand Forks county, for the drawing of a will, preparatory to committing suicide, the will being filed in the probate court here this afternoon. She leaves all her property to her son, Bert Hobby. In a note, written supposedly at the same time but not dated, the woman made reference to some supposed unpardonable sin committed by her, and that is the reason she assigns for taking her life. Investigations by the authorities indicate that the woman had such a belief because of being mentally unsound.

RUSSIAN CHOLERA NEAR CUMBERLAND

One Emigrant Develops Disease and Whole Party Is Quarantined.

Cumberland, Wis., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Acting upon instruction received from the state board of health, the local board of health of the township of Almena, Barron county, quarantined the entire Russian colony, twelve miles south of this city, this morning.

A couple of days ago a band of Russian emigrants arrived at Almena, among them being Gotlieb Jonschke, all coming from the Black Sea district. Jonschke was very sick upon his arrival and the Almena physicians pronounced his ailment cholera. These emigrants came into this country from Sault Ste. Marie over the Soo line to Almena, but were soon apprehended and questioned, as the local board had been advised by the state board of health to be on the lookout for these emigrants, as they came from the cholera-stricken district of Russia. A strict quarantine is enforced and the only fear of the disease spreading is among those exposed on trains, and the emigrants were put in quarantine immediately upon their arrival at Almena.

HEAVY DECLINES IN COPPER STOCKS

Copper stocks declined swifty today and closed around the low levels. The long interest which accumulated stocks last summer appears to be dumping stocks overboard at a profit. Whether the bull pool was disorganized by internal trouble or whether it is acting in concert is a supposition. Whatever the status of the pool its operations have been immensely profitable as it spread its purchases over a long period in which prices were low and it has succeeded in getting rid of large blocks in a short time at high prices. The local market was weak and depressed. Trading was light.

* * *

During the week ending Nov. 20, the East Butte smelter treated 1,971 tons of company's ores which averaged 6.9 per cent copper. Of this tonnage 1,342 tons was high grade ore, which averaged 8.9 per cent while the remaining 629 tons of second class ore averaged 2.9 per cent. Day to day developments continue to open up an extension of the rich ore body recently encountered on the eighth level.

RAILROADS

NORTHERN PACIFIC WISE

In Extending Its Line Into Cannonball District.

Mandan, N. D., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—With an excellent business right from the start, it is evident that the Northern Pacific railway made a wise move in the construction of its line into the Cannonball district south of here. The number of trains moving over the line is remarkably great for its being a new line, while the passenger traffic is decidedly excellent.

Considerable steel bridge work remains to be done on the line as yet, and within a few weeks it is expected that the new steel spans to replace the present trestles will be begun. These are across the Heart, Cannonball and several other smaller creeks.

New York Central Orders Engines.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Nov. 30.—The New York Central has placed an order with the American Locomotive company for 323 passenger and freight engines to be delivered during the year 1911.

Will Build Railroad.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 30.—The Ontario government has decided to build at once a branch line of the Temiskaming & Northern railroad from Kelso into the Porcupine mining camp. The distance is thirty-two miles and the cost will be $450,000.

DELEGATES TO RIVERS AND HARBORS CONGRESS.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 30.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Eberhart today appointed the delegates to the national rivers and harbors congress which will be held in Washington, D. C., Dec. 7-9. Among them are Alexander McDougall, C. C. Cokefair and W. A. McGonagle of Duluth.

LAW CONCERNING COINS.

Thousands of dollars are lost yearly by big firms through ignorance or carelessness in observing the federal laws governing abuse of coins.

Just lately in Chicago a piano company came to grief in this way. Had they asked the proper authorities (the information would have been furnished gratis) or had they looked up the law they would have found in section 165, public act No. 350, these words:

"Whoever fraduently, by any art, way or means shall deface, mutilate, impair, diminish, falsify or lighten * * * the gold or silver coins which have been or which may hereafter be coined in the mint of the United States * * * shall be fined not more than $2,000 and imprisonment of not more than five years."

Much trouble and expense would have been saved the firm and the government had the law only been read.

It all happened in this way: Some clever advertiser conceived the idea of an "ad" of metal just the size of a dime, with the wording and printing placed in such a way that at first glance it would appear as a dime. The idea was cleverly executed. A fair imitation of the head of Liberty was on one side and the advertisement on the other. The number was placed where the date on a dime is and the first glance is seemingly impressed one as the real coin. The other side had a sheaf of wheat and in the center the words "On Time."

The firm had no desire to defraud the public. But unscrupulous people who had access to them did. Several waiters at a summer park lost money by accepting the advertisement for real money, chewing gum machines were filled with them and at last the secret service learned how matters were and began an investigation.

There were 150,000 of the metals confiscated. Some stray ones, however, were in circulation and it took almost a year to "hunt them down."

Jewellers are guilty every day of committing a criminal offence. Every day some one of them lays himself liable to the law. According to the ordinance quoted above, to mutilate money is an offense in the eyes of the law. Jewellers file one side of a coin smooth and monogram it. The other side is perfectly good. Pins, bracelets, lockets and numerous other things are made. The owner never means to use the article for money. But some one gets hold of the pin or locket. They think the money would be more useful and so pass the coin with the pin or ring pulled off and the good side up.

To "change the complexion" of a coin also is an offence. That means to dip silver in gold. Only a few days ago a "lot" of shirt sets were confiscated and sent to Washington. The sets were made of Panama halfpennies gilded. Carlessness of the law again.

The only kind of coin that can be worn is that so completely mutilated that there can be no chance at all of passing it; for example, the filligreed dimes that the Mexicans make.

CHARITY COVERS, ETC.

Los Angeles Times: Mrs George McFadden, the beautiful Philadelphian who made the Spanish dance of "The Roses" the feature of the Newport season, sail at a dinner in answer to a compliment on her success with this waltz:

"Yes, I had better luck than a friend of mine in Philadelphia. My friend gave a charity concert in the ball room of her country house, and the piece de resistance of the concert was the Spanish dance, performed by six young bachelors and debutantes.

"The old women looked at one another in some embarrassment, and finally in a soothing voice one replied:

"'Well, ma'am, least said soonest mended, and besides, the object was so deservin'.'"

GREAT CONCRETE BRIDGE.

Scientific American: There was recently opened for traffic at Auckland, New Zealand, a reinforced concrete bridge which contains the largest masonry arch in existence. The structure consists of nine approach spans of from 43 to 81 feet, and a great central arch of 320 feet. The latter is hinged at the abutments and at the center.

It consists of two separate ribs, connected by cross struts, with a floor resting on slender columns, built up from the ribs. Provision is made for a 24-foot roadway and two 6-foot sidewalks.

MILLERS BUY IN NORTHWEST

Take Choice Grades of Wheat —Southwest Still Dry.

Foreign News Bearish—May Flax Continues to Advance.

Duluth Board of Trade, Nov. 30.—Wheat closed up today. December and May gained ⅞c. Cash was ½c over December. Oats, rye and barley closed unchanged. December durum gained ½c. November was especially strong, however, on account of covering by shorts. Low point was 86⅜c bid and high point was 88⅜c bid. The close was 88½c.

Flax was erratic. November lost 1½c; December, 1½c and May advanced 1½c. By the close of navigation tonight all flaxseed will have been removed from this market with the exception of about 100,000 bushels, nearly all of which will be delivered on November contracts and shipped later by rail to Chicago.

Factors in the wheat world were mixed. There was a plentitude of both bearish and bull news and opinion on the market was more divided than for some time. Owing to the sentimental effect of bullish factors near at home and light offerings combined with buying by Northwestern mills the market advanced and bearish factors temporarily lost their place of vantage.

The bullish factors included continued dry weather in the Southwest, buying of choice Spring wheat in Minneapolis by a leading milling interest, buying of Manitoba wheat at Winnipeg by exporters, short covering, buying of American futures by France, the firm Paris market and continued reports of an unfavorable nature from Southern Buenos Ayres, Argentina, higher Liverpool markets, light offerings in American markets, and a sharp slump in the primary receipts.

These factors were enough reason for any confirmed bull to buy wheat. On the other hand bearish factors were as follows: Extremely favorable official Russian wheat report, excellent weather conditions in Northern Argentina, favorable reports from Australia, the presence of large supplies of wheat, inability to sell burdensome cash supplies which would tend to minimize the effect of damage to wheat that has just gone into the ground, poor demand for cash wheat and a lack of shipping directions and continued heavy shipments by the East European exporting countries. You pay your money and you take your choice.

It is seldom that the speculative movement of durum wheat attracts particular attention, but the action of November durum occasioned some comment as there were several shorts who were forced to bid up values sharply in order to cover.

The spread between Winnipeg and Duluth wheat markets widened. The market is only 2c or 4c away from an importing basis. If this millers' market continues and the scarcity of hard and choice spring wheat in the Northwest is manifest later in the crop year it would not be surprising if this country imported wheat from Canada.

MAY FLAX.

With the passing of interest in the November delivery the May option assumes form rank in the speculative division of the flaxseed market and in interest is paramount to the December delivery. The May delivery will come to an end at a time when flaxseed supplies in the Northwest will be confined literally to the "scrapings," and when the Argentina movement will be at its height or past it, and the Indian crop will be holding the attention of buyers.

The flaxseed crop of the world, so far as the market is concerned, differs from the wheat crop in one pronounced particular. In almost every month of the year a wheat crop is either maturing or approaching maturity in some part of the world while a flax crop matures only every few months. A wheat crop in one country can be seriously damaged and the world's supply will not be materially affected. No flax crop in any country can meet with partial disaster without having a vital effect on the world's supplies. Buyers can ignore for a time, or altogether, a partial calamity to a wheat crop in any country just as the disaster to the spring wheat crop in the United States this year did not have a permanent effect on the world's markets. But no buyer can fail to take cognizance of a serious deterioration to any flax crop regardless of its location.

Will history this crop year repeat the succession of incidents of the last crop year? To theorize on this it is necessary to detail the sudden changes in prices within the last few days in this market and the quick transposition of the November-December deliveries and the May option, the former sinking below the price level of the latter after November soared as high as 15 cents above the May delivery.

The complexion of the market was materially changed a few days ago when November lost 10½ cents. December declined 7½ cents and May lost 6 cents. These declines brought the three deliveries practically to a common level. The drop was caused by the sudden flux of seed which was rushed to market by the country so that sellers could take advantage of the existing premiums both for cash seed and seed to arrive within a near period. Seeing the congestion of offerings the buyers backed away and prices quickly receded. It was apparent to buyers that the high prices and the premiums had drawn out about all of the seed that could get to this market before the close of navigation tonight and they immediately lost interest in both the November option and the cash article. This is not to say, however, that any cash seed went begging. On the contrary it was snapped up quickly but buyers were not disposed to push the market to more favorable prices when most of the stuff available for delivery this month was either on track, on the way or was being offered in the pit. The seed was in some position to be sold and the sellers did not have the whip hand.

Another factor which contributed to the decline was the closing out of long flax by people who had bought the November and December options as an insurance against the possible failure of the Argentine crop. A phase of the Argentine situation which contributed a sympathetic effect to the market was the offering of Argentine seed in crushers at Minneapolis at several cents under the price for which the seed could be bought in this market for either near or future delivery. An Eastern crushing interest which is also in the wholesale trade in several lines had been successful in purchasing large supplies of Argentine seed, both old and new crop, for early shipment in January. Argentine officers were so plentiful and the outlook for the crop was so good that this interest closed out its line in this market. Eastern buyers have bought oil from the continent and the United Kingdom on favorable terms and have been able to purchase fair supplies of Argentine seed, old crop for immediate shipment and Argentine new crop seed for shipment early in January at prices considerably under the cost of seed in this market.

Selling May Short.

Another factor which entered into the decline was the selling of the December and May options by a Northwestern crushing interest which operates a mill in Minneapolis and controls a mill in Chicago. This interest is reported to have been offered Argentine seed delivered at Minneapolis as soon as possible after the new year at a price under which the seed could be purchased here. Influenced by this condition the Northwestern crusher not only sold out a long line in December and a small line in November but even sold the May option. This crusher evidently overreached itself as it has had some difficulty in covering since the drop of prices last Friday.

All things being equal, Northwestern seed is in this country entitled to a premium over Argentine seed because the oil producing qualities of the American seed are superior to the seed of the South American republic just as American steel is also far superior to Indian seed, which is unsatisfactorily graded and mixed in a manner to drive any self-respecting crusher to despair. Allowing for this justifiable premium, however, prices on the Argentine seed have been so favorable that some American buyers have refused to come into the Northwestern markets for American seed. Argentine seed will not grade in the Duluth market but there is no obstacle to purchases of seed from Argentina by the Minneapolis crushers.

In the remainer of this crop year, especially from now on to future, it is expected that offerings of seed in the Northwest will dry up. American crushers control the Canadian crop and it may be left out of the discussion. The Northwest will take all of the seed that this territory and it is doubtful if there is enough seed to go around. By the close of navigation tonight it is expected that Minneapolis and Duluth will have received about 7,000,000 bu of seed in the current crop year. This probably indicates a crop in the Northwestern states of slightly more than 9,000,000 bu. The marketings of flaxseed in the remainder of the crop year probably will not go over 1,500,000 bu, making a total of 8,500,000 bu that maye be received in 1910-11 at the two leading primary flaxseed markets of the United States.

With this shortage a known fact it is remarkable that a Northwestern crushing interest has had the audacity or the courage, whichever one is pleased to call it, to sell in this market seed that it does not own and which it may have a strenuous time in obtaining. The selling short of the May option last year resulted in a rout of the short sellers and the spectacle of short selling of the May option this year is somewhat remarkable in view of what happened last year when the crop in the Northwest was 9,000,000 or 10,000,000 bu larger than this year.

Yet, several traders who cautioned against going short in the December and December deliveries have advised their friends that they could sell the May option freely because of the prospective generous yield of the Argentine crop, not taking into consideration the fact that Europe in other years not only has accepted all of the Argentine surplus but has bought from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 bu of the American crop in addition to taking the exportable surpluses of India and Russia. These short sellers are getting rid of seed that is not owned by them and which is not now available. If the short interest in the May expands to a notable size the technical position of that delivery may be stronger than the position occupied by the May delivery last year. The May option will be susceptible to manipulation because of its narrowness and the small supply of seed which will be available for delivery in May.

Shortage in Supplies.

A singular feature of the May situation is the absence of purchases of spring supplies by several Eastern people who usually are considerable buyers. These interests are pushing their lines and although their output is reduced yet by their progressive sales methods they are creating a demand for their products which must be met. Whether they can get enough seed from the Argentine republic in time to meet their needs is problematical. Their domestic purchases have been on a hand-to-mouth basis and it may be impossible for them to buy either the cash article in this market next spring or to depend upon the delivery of seed in May to meet requirements that will exist at that time. Some interests saw early the present condition and they have supplied themselves with all of the Northwestern seed available and have bought heavily of Argentine seed besids taking a small amount of Indian old crop seed.

A carrying charge in the wheat market is generally indicative of a bearish situation but the reverse is usually true of the flaxseed market, especially as regards the distant situation. The decline of the December and the November options, therefore, to a level below the May is not indicative of a weak situation in the flaxseed market. In fact, a close analysis of the recent decline does not disclose any sign of a weakening of the technical position of the market.

Shipments of flaxseed from this port down the lakes in the few days prior to the close of navigation have been moderately heavy. At least 600,000 bu will have left this port in the last few days and supplies here will be practically cleaned up. At Minneapolis not more than 13,000 bu were available at the close of last week, any other stocks of seed being in the hands of private interests. It is probable that the seed in public stores at Minneapolis is controlled by the Northwestern crushers and that it might as well be in private elevators so far as its effect in the show windows is concerned. Eastern crushers have practically cleaned up their purchases here. There probably will be some scattered shipments of seed by rail to Chicago as a Chicago crusher was a purchaser of the December option here last week and a small buyer of cash seed.

The flaxseed crop in Argentina is progressing favorably and exporters are offering seed in large quantities in all of the markets of the world. It seems to be the intention of Argentine sellers to take advantage of the extremely high prices for seed and to market the Argentine crop as fast as it is available.

Broomhall cabled from Liverpool: Wheat at the opening was influenced by the firmer American cables, and values were unchanged to ¼d higher. Following the opening, weakness developed with liberal realizing and prices declined ⅝@⅞d. This selling was the result of a bearish Russian official report, cheaper Plate offers and continued favorable weather in Northern Argentina and favorable reports from Australia. During the morning speculative support of a good character caused a falling from the extreme low prices, gained ⅜@½d on reports that France is a fair buyer, firmness in Paris and continued bad reports from Southern Buenos Ayres. At midday the market was ⅝@½d up from the low and ⅛@¼d lower.

• • •

The early Russian estimate on the last wheat crop was 640,000,000 bu. The latest is 772,000,000 bu which is certainly bearish. The figures include both winter and spring wheat.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Oats Traders Are Nervous and Feeling Spreads to Wheat.

Chicago, Nov. 30. — Nervousness of shorts in oats regarding the small amount available here for delivery on contracts communicated a feeling here of unrest to traders in other pits today. There are only 339,000 bushels of standard oats on hand for such purposes out of a total stock of more than 50,000,000 bu. Quite a commotion in the oats crowd was caused by one firm alone purchasing in a few minutes 150,000 bu. The May delivery opened a shade lower to a shade higher at 34⅛@¼c to 34¼@34⅜c and rose to 34⅝@34½c.

Wheat trading was unsettled and light at the start, but later advanced on news of export sales at New York and because of reports that millers were buying at Minneapolis.

The opening was ⅜c lower to ⅛@½c higher. May started at 95½c to 95⅝c, a shade off to ⅛@¼c up, and rose to 96c.

The fact that primary receipts were light and shipments liberal aided the bulls, but enlarged estimates of the Russian crop led to a reaction. The close, however, was firm, with May at 96⅜@98½c, a net gain of ⅜c.

Corn after opening easier owing to absence of urgent demand became firm in line with oats and wheat. May started a sixteenth to ⅛c off at 47⅛c to 47⅛@47¼c, and advanced to 47⅜@47⅝c.

Lightness of country offerings assisted in toning up prices, but free short selling later made the market easier. The close was easy with May at 47⅛@47¼c, a net loss of a shade.

Weakness in the hog market had only a temporary effect on provisions, early losses being soon wiped out. First sales were unchanged to 5c lower with January at $16.95 for pork, $9.67½ for lard and $9.07½ for ribs.

DECLINES IN STOCKS

Rally When Shorts Begin to Cover But Prices Yield Again.

New York, Nov. 30.—Opening prices on the stock exchange today did not vary much from yesterday's closing, Reading showing the widest changes, with a loss of ½ point. The market generally was down a trifle on light business.

Professional operators could not obtain a following in trying to move prices one way or the other and soon abandoned their efforts, causing the market to fall into a rut. The undertone was heavy.

The market's irregular tone became more pronounced in the second hour, with special weakness in the active issues. Aside from rumors of possible price cutting by the steel manufacturers, who are in session here today, none was heard to account for the setback. The market as a whole, however, was so professional as to make it more than ordinarily susceptible to passing gossip. The Gould issues registered severe declines, Missouri Pacific reacting 3¼, Denver & Rio Grande preferred 2, the common 1¼ and Wabash preferred 1½. Lehigh Valley was very active with a loss of 2, while Union Pacific, United States Steel, Reading, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and Chesapeake & Ohio, lost a point or more each. Some of the specialties displayed marked heaviness. Bonds were steady.

The market closed easy. Speculative sentiment improved when the market began to show signs of resistance to pressure and the shorts began to cover, carrying the representatives up a point or so from the lowest. In the final dealings the market began to yield again.

HERALD WANT-ADVERTISE FOR BOARDERS AND DO BUSINESS TO THE CAPACITY OF YOUR HOUSE.

For a long period of years The Herald has issued a Christmas edition. On the news and editorial side, it everywhere breathes the spirit of Christmas. In the advertising department it contains the final big announcements of all the merchants. It is not too early for both merchants and the public to begin thinking of Christmas. And it is for that reason that we announce today the date of this annual Christmas edition.

The Herald makes an effort to have each of its Christmas papers an improvement on the year before. This year we hope that Duluth will be prouder than ever of this splendid newspaper, which always expresses the wonderful importance of Duluth as a retail shopping center.
